April 19, 1894 to Oct 24, 1896

1894 — 1895
MARK TWAIN'S

SCRAP BOOK.

PATENTS:

UNITED STATES.
JUNE 24TH, 1877.

GREAT BRITAIN.
MAY 16TH, 1877.

FRANCE.
MAY 18TH, 1877.

TRADE MARKS:

UNITED STATES.
REGISTERED NO. 5,866.

GREAT BRITAIN.
REGISTERED NO. 15,979.

DIRECTIONS.

Use but little moisture, and only on the gummed lines. Press the scrap on without wetting it.

DANIEL SLOTE & COMPANY,
NEW YORK.
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>R</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>S</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>T</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
PRINCESS VICTORIA MELITA.

of Hesse. Flags of many nations floated in the mild breeze, and over the ducal palace floated the royal standard of Great Britain. The weather yesterday was perfect. Queen Victoria was escorted by the band of the 1st dragoon regiment of the Prussian guard of which the queen is honorary colonel, and yesterday afternoon she drove out with her granddaughters, the Princesses Alexandra and Beatrice of Coburg.

The most perfect precautionary measures against an attempt upon the life of some member of the reigning families assembled at Coburg have been taken and hundreds of detectives of all nations are there mingling with the crowds. This action has been taken in consequence of an intimation received by the police some time ago that an anarchist plot existed of which the queen is aware. At daylight the streets were filled with a happy-faced and orderly crowd of people. The crowd kept increasing until by 9 o'clock the great square in front of the ducal palace was packed. The band of the First Regiment of Dragoons of the Prussian guard was playing outside the palace and at 9:30 Empress Frederick made her appearance dressed for a drive. As she entered her carriage a mighty cheer broke up and the crowd seemed wild with enthusiasm.

Members of the various imperial and royal families assembled at the marriage ceremony of the Grand Duke Ernest Louis of Hesse to his cousin, the Princess Victoria Melita of Saxe-Coburg, passed and repassed in front of the palace, and as they did so they were greeted with cheers and other manifestations of the feelings of good will which inspired the crowd.

The marriage-ceremony, which took place in the palace chapel, began at 12:30 p.m. In the wedding procession to the chapel, the Duchess of Saxe-Coburg, mother of the bride, was escorted by Emperor William of Germany and followed by ex-Empress Frederick, who walked alone.

The Prince of Wales and the Czar of Russia came next, walking side by side.

Queen Victoria was escorted by her son, Prince Leopold. The betrothal is officially announced.

The marriage ceremony of the Grand Duke of Hesse who was divorced from his cousin, Princess Victoria of Saxe-Coburg, in 1900, to the Princess Eleonore of Solms-Hohenzollern.

NOVEMBER 21, 1901

A ROYAL DIVORCE IMPENDING.

There appears to be foundation, says a Berlin dispatch, for the renewed reports that one gun was fired which indicates that a divorce of the grand duke and grand duchess of Hesse is impending. Important manifestations at the court of Riga afford an indication that the grand duke and grand duchess of Hesse are estranged in invoking the spirit of peace.

The marriage ceremony, which took place in the palace chapel, began at 12:30 p.m. The marriage is regarded as an address to the crowd which show affection and loyalty to the king and queen, as well as manifestations of the feelings of good will which inspired the crowd.

The marriage ceremony took place in the palace chapel, began at 12:30 p.m. The marriage is regarded as an address to the crowd which show affection and loyalty to the king and queen, as well as manifestations of the feelings of good will which inspired the crowd.

The Grand Duke and Grand Duchess of Hesse were divorced, and the divorce was pronounced by Em-press Frederick. The marriage was announced.

The wedding ceremony was attended by the grand duke and grand duchess of Hesse, and the marriage was pronounced by the bishop of Erfurt. The marriage was announced.

The marriage ceremony, which took place in the palace chapel, began at 12:30 p.m. The marriage is regarded as an address to the crowd which show affection and loyalty to the king and queen, as well as manifestations of the feelings of good will which inspired the crowd.

The marriage ceremony, which took place in the palace chapel, began at 12:30 p.m. The marriage is regarded as an address to the crowd which show affection and loyalty to the king and queen, as well as manifestations of the feelings of good will which inspired the crowd.

The marriage ceremony, which took place in the palace chapel, began at 12:30 p.m. The marriage is regarded as an address to the crowd which show affection and loyalty to the king and queen, as well as manifestations of the feelings of good will which inspired the crowd.

The wedding ceremony was attended by the grand duke and grand duchess of Hesse, and the marriage was pronounced by the bishop of Erfurt. The marriage was announced.

The marriage ceremony, which took place in the palace chapel, began at 12:30 p.m. The marriage is regarded as an address to the crowd which show affection and loyalty to the king and queen, as well as manifestations of the feelings of good will which inspired the crowd.

The marriage ceremony, which took place in the palace chapel, began at 12:30 p.m. The marriage is regarded as an address to the crowd which show affection and loyalty to the king and queen, as well as manifestations of the feelings of good will which inspired the crowd.

The wedding ceremony was attended by the grand duke and grand duchess of Hesse, and the marriage was pronounced by the bishop of Erfurt. The marriage was announced.

The marriage ceremony, which took place in the palace chapel, began at 12:30 p.m. The marriage is regarded as an address to the crowd which show affection and loyalty to the king and queen, as well as manifestations of the feelings of good will which inspired the crowd.

The marriage ceremony, which took place in the palace chapel, began at 12:30 p.m. The marriage is regarded as an address to the crowd which show affection and loyalty to the king and queen, as well as manifestations of the feelings of good will which inspired the crowd.

The wedding ceremony was attended by the grand duke and grand duchess of Hesse, and the marriage was pronounced by the bishop of Erfurt. The marriage was announced.

The marriage ceremony, which took place in the palace chapel, began at 12:30 p.m. The marriage is regarded as an address to the crowd which show affection and loyalty to the king and queen, as well as manifestations of the feelings of good will which inspired the crowd.

The marriage ceremony, which took place in the palace chapel, began at 12:30 p.m. The marriage is regarded as an address to the crowd which show affection and loyalty to the king and queen, as well as manifestations of the feelings of good will which inspired the crowd.

The wedding ceremony was attended by the grand duke and grand duchess of Hesse, and the marriage was pronounced by the bishop of Erfurt. The marriage was announced.

The marriage ceremony, which took place in the palace chapel, began at 12:30 p.m. The marriage is regarded as an address to the crowd which show affection and loyalty to the king and queen, as well as manifestations of the feelings of good will which inspired the crowd.

The marriage ceremony, which took place in the palace chapel, began at 12:30 p.m. The marriage is regarded as an address to the crowd which show affection and loyalty to the king and queen, as well as manifestations of the feelings of good will which inspired the crowd.

The wedding ceremony was attended by the grand duke and grand duchess of Hesse, and the marriage was pronounced by the bishop of Erfurt. The marriage was announced.

The marriage ceremony, which took place in the palace chapel, began at 12:30 p.m. The marriage is regarded as an address to the crowd which show affection and loyalty to the king and queen, as well as manifestations of the feelings of good will which inspired the crowd.

The marriage ceremony, which took place in the palace chapel, began at 12:30 p.m. The marriage is regarded as an address to the crowd which show affection and loyalty to the king and queen, as well as manifestations of the feelings of good will which inspired the crowd.

The wedding ceremony was attended by the grand duke and grand duchess of Hesse, and the marriage was pronounced by the bishop of Erfurt. The marriage was announced.

The marriage ceremony, which took place in the palace chapel, began at 12:30 p.m. The marriage is regarded as an address to the crowd which show affection and loyalty to the king and queen, as well as manifestations of the feelings of good will which inspired the crowd.

The marriage ceremony, which took place in the palace chapel, began at 12:30 p.m. The marriage is regarded as an address to the crowd which show affection and loyalty to the king and queen, as well as manifestations of the feelings of good will which inspired the crowd.

The wedding ceremony was attended by the grand duke and grand duchess of Hesse, and the marriage was pronounced by the bishop of Erfurt. The marriage was announced.

The marriage ceremony, which took place in the palace chapel, began at 12:30 p.m. The marriage is regarded as an address to the crowd which show affection and loyalty to the king and queen, as well as manifestations of the feelings of good will which inspired the crowd.

The marriage ceremony, which took place in the palace chapel, began at 12:30 p.m. The marriage is regarded as an address to the crowd which show affection and loyalty to the king and queen, as well as manifestations of the feelings of good will which inspired the crowd.

The wedding ceremony was attended by the grand duke and grand duchess of Hesse, and the marriage was pronounced by the bishop of Erfurt. The marriage was announced.
The magnificent jewels and bright dresses of the ladies of the ducal court and their imperial and royal guests, the gorgeous uniforms of those in military garb and the exquisitely beautiful costumes of the bride and her attendants formed a most brilliant picture of splendor.

Queen Victoria wore a crown of diamonds. She remained seated throughout the ceremony. The other royal and imperial personages and all the other guests stood while Doctor Møller addressed the bridal couple and received their responses.

After the benediction the bride and bridegroom turned to the Queen and kissed her affectionately. The bride then kissed her parents, the Prince of Wales and the other royalties, and the procession was re-formed and marched out of the church to the strains of Mendelssohn's "Wedding March." The guests went immediately to the great hall, where the wedding breakfast was served.

Next was such a good-natured crowd of people assembled anywhere as packed the streets and every other foot of space where they were permitted to occupy in the vicinity of the palace, and remained during and long after the ceremony. Upon every conceivable pretext they crowded until they were hoarse, and when the bridal party left the church the cheering was positively deafening.

The civil marriage ceremony was performed in Queen Victoria's room in the palace, at noon, prior to the departure of the bridal couple for the chapel.

Elegant Presents.

The presents received by the bride were numerous, costly and beautiful. Among them were a diamond pendant from Queen Victoria, a pendant of diamonds and sapphires from Emperor William, a brooch of diamonds and emeralds from the Czar, a necklace of diamonds, a brooch of diamonds and emeralds, a pair of diamond earrings and a bracelet of diamond and emerald, a pair of diamond earrings and a bracelet of diamond and emerald, a pair of pearl and emerald, a pendant of diamonds, and sapphires, a pair of diamond earrings and an emerald bracelet and a diamond heart with a diamond surround.

Family Dinner Party.

That evening there was a family dinner in the throne room of the ducal palace. Queen Victoria sat in the center of the table, between the Czar and the Czarina and Empress Frederick, her daughter, and the Prince of Wales. Upon the queen sat the Duchess of Coburg between Emperor William and the bridegroom and bride.

The royal family parley was a most brilliant affair and remarkable from a historical point of view, when the conflicts of European policy are taken into consideration.

At 10 o'clock a gala theatrical performance was given in the Reichenwald. All the royal personages in Coburg were present. The hall was superbly illuminated.

The Bridal Party.

The bridal party, Ernst Louis Charles Albert William, Grand Duke of Hesse and the Rhine, 23 years of age. He succeeded to the title two years after the death of his father, the Grand Duke Louis IV. His mother was the late Princess Alice, Queen of the Hessian and Rhine.

The Royal Wedding.

Europe is having a week's talking spell over the royal wedding, the marriage of the grandchild of Queen Victoria, Ernst Ludwig Karl Albrecht Wilhelm, Duke of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, to Princess Victoria Melita, daughter of the Duke of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha (Duke of Edinburgh) and the Russian Grand Duchess Marie, is a tall, handsome girl, only 17 years of age. She is the daughter of the late Grand Duke of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha, and thus it comes to pass that she bears the island's ancient Greek name. She is dark, of the Romanoff type of beauty, and one of her chief attractions consists in her dark, of the Romanoff type of beauty, and one of her chief attractions consists in her

The Grand Duke's mother was the sister of Prime Minister Viscount Castlereagh, and he is dark, of the Romanoff type of beauty, and one of her chief attractions consists in her

The Grand Duke's mother was the sister of Prime Minister Viscount Castlereagh, and he is dark, of the Romanoff type of beauty, and one of her chief attractions consists in her
Many Hartford people will read with pleasure the marriage of Miss Georgina Bette, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George T. Bette, to T. Tieson Wells, which took place in the drawing room of the family residence, No. 102 Madison avenue, New York, yesterday at noon. Rev. Dr. W. R. Huntington of Grace church officiated.

Lawrence Poole was the best man and Charles Beekman, Joseph Lawrence, William Ward and Samuel R. Bette acted as ushers. Miss Fannie J. Bette and Miss May Sturges were the bridesmaids. The bride's gown of white satin was trimmed with point lace and her veil was fastened with a handsome star, crescent, sun and cluster of diamonds, arranged as a large gift from the groom and from the bride's brother.

Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. John Wells, Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Bette, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Porter, Rev. and Mrs. Charles Stoddard, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Headley, Mr. and Mrs. James B. Metcalf, Misses Frank and Frederick Goodridge, Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Hillhouse, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Jennings, Misses Joseph Drexel, Mrs. Lawrence Wells, the Misses Wells, Mr. and Mrs. George Post, Jr., the Misses Livingston, the Misses Cook, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Whitehead, Andrew Hibben, the Misses Bessie and Annie Sands and Samuel H. Betts.

Mrs. Wells is a sister of Mrs. John A. Porter of this city, and is well known in the society circles of Hartford and New Haven.

Maerklein-Hale Wedding.

Herbert L. Maerklein of the Park Church choir and Miss Effie L. Hale, daughter of Edwin J. Hale of 12 Linden Place, were married at the home of the bride last evening at 7:30 o'clock by the Rev. J. W. James of the First Baptist Church. The best man was Burdett Maerklein, a nephew of the groom, and the bridesmaid was Miss Lottie E. Hale, a cousin of the bride. The best man and bridesmaid were each 19 years of age. A large number of friends were present, and the presents were many. Among those who were present were the members of the Park Church choir and the clerks in the office of the Phoenix Insurance Company, where Mr. Maerklein is employed. Mrs. Maerklein, after supper, took the train for New York, to be gone a week or two. Upon their return they will reside in the Linden Place.

A Remarkable Woman.

Ballston, N. Y., April 19.—Mrs. James Webster, living in Milton, aged 57 years, gave birth last Sunday evening to twins. There is no parallel case in medical records.

Invitations have been sent out for the wedding of Sidney W. Clark of this city, to Miss Ray of New York. The ceremony occurs on Tuesday, April 24. at church.

The engagement was announced on Tuesday of Lucius F. Robinson to Miss Eleanor Cooke of Paterson, N. J. Mr. Robinson is the eldest son of the Hon. Henry C. Robinson and is a young lawyer from Yale in 1885 and studied law in his father's office, with whom he is now a partner. Miss Cooke is a Miss Porter's school. She has two brothers, Barclay and Walter Cooke, the former a graduate of Yale last June. Miss Cooke has been a frequent visitor in Hartford at the homes of former school friends and is a very attractive and popular young lady.

Graduated Thirty Years Ago.

Dr. John O'Flaherty of this city, who graduated from the Albany Medical College, will attend the thirtieth anniversary of his class in Albany, to-morrow, and will meet a large number of men who were with him in his college years. There were forty-six members in the doctor's class. During the thirty years since they graduated only three of the class have died. The class historian, Dr. Brandreth of Philadelphia, reports this as an exceptional fact in the history of the medical college graduates. Dr. O'Flaherty will be accompanied to Albany by Dr. Dunlop of Holyoke, who graduated fifteen years ago. The anniversary in Albany is looked forward to with great pleasure by Dr. O'Flaherty.

Dr. O'Flaherty Honored.

Dr. John O'Flaherty of this city, who attended the Albany Medical College commencement, Wednesday, was elected vice-president of the Alumni Association. Dr. O'Flaherty was present at the thirtieth anniversary of his class, and was the recipient of its honors. The alumni roll shows 2,941 graduates since the college was founded in 1830. Dr. Hutchinson of Portage county, class of '59, was elected president. Dr. O'Flaherty came to this country from Ireland in 1850 and began his career in Holyoke. He studied at Williamsburg in Easthampton and graduated from the Albany Medical College in 1854. He went into the army immediately after graduating and served in the One Hundred and Seventieth New York and remained until the conclusion of the war. He came to Hartford in the fall of 1865 and has since

"AUNT CHARLOTTE'S MAID".

Cast of the Characters Who Will Be Represented.

April 21st, 1894.

So this evening the High School Athletic Association will give a farce-comedy and a dance at Foot Guard Hall, the proceeds to be devoted to athletic purposes. The comedy will occupy only about forty-five minutes.

Aunt Charlotte's Maid" is an old English comedy which has been modernized and adapted to the environments of this city. The scene is supposed to be laid in apartments in Hartford, and a number of local points have been introduced. The company has been under the training of the electrician, Miss Woodward of the Arsenal School.

After the play, the floor will be cleared and a programme of ten dances will be enjoyed. The following is the cast of characters in the comedy:

Horatio Thomas Sparkins...Elijah H. Owen
Major C. P. Bryant...Henry L. Bryant
Puff (a lawyer)...Morrison B. Young
Mrs. Fuddfoot (Aunt Charlotte)...William F. Sage
Fannie Volley...Misses Bessie and Annie Sands
Charles Dick...Philip L. Hoadkins
Matilda Jones (Aunt Charlotte's maid)...John S. Garrie

High School Selectors.

"Aunt Charlotte's Maid," by the High School Athletic Association, at Foot Guard Hall last evening, was very well acted for amateurs, especially the parts of Matilda Jones by John S. Garrie, and Horatio Thomas Sparkins by Elijah H. Owen. The fainting scene was a little out of the usual way in which such parts are brought. Mr. Owen showed his strong points during the scene. Morrison B. Young took the part of the lawyer, Philip L. Hoadkins was Fannie Volley, William F. Sage was Puff, Charles Dick was Major C. P. Bryant, and Horatio T. Sparkins was Horatio Thomas Sparkins.

The gallery was well filled and half of the body of the hall was taken. The play finished before 9 o'clock, and dancing, with music by Emmens' Orchestra, followed.

WEDNESDAY MORNING APRIL 25, 1894

The Hartford Courant
A brilliant ceremony took place at the church of the Unity yesterday at high noon, the occasion being the marriage of Miss Jean Bleloch, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Bleloch, to Orval Pool Townsend of Washington, son of the late Congressman Townsend of Illinois. The ceremony, which was performed by Rev. Bradley Gilman, was witnessed by a large number of guests. The bride was charming in a gown of white satin cut on train and trimmed with duchess lace. Her veil was carried with orange blossoms and she carried lilacs of the valley. She wore diamond ornaments. Miss Ethel Childs of Bennington, Vt., made a very pretty maid of honor, dressed in a damask gown of French green satin trimmed with white lace and pearls. She carried a bouquet of ferns and roses. The bridesmaids were Miss Lucy Childs of Bennington, Vt., Miss Anna Allen, Miss Emma Sprague, Miss Maud Bidwell of this city and Miss Gertrude Noble of New Britain. Ct. Their dresses were of white Swiss over white lace and they wore Leghorn hats trimmed with maiden-hair ferns. Each carried a bouquet of maiden-hair ferns and white carnations. The best man was Spring Cameron of Parkersburg, W. Va., and the ushers were W. H. Gallinger, son of Senator Gallinger of New Hampshire, and Frank H. Beighler of Washington, D. C., and T. W. Hyde, Robert Fuller, Charles H. Hall and Harry G. Fisk of this city.

Shortly before noon, while Organist A. T. Mason played the first strains of the Lohengrin wedding march the ushers and bridesmaids came from the chapel down the center aisle, where they were met by the maid of honor and the bride, who was escorted by her brother. W. H. Gallinger, the party proceeded to the altar rail, where the groom and best man joined them, the church choir singing the words of the wedding march. The organ was played softly during the ceremony and at the end of the prayer Mendelssohn's hymn was sung by the choir. Green and white carnations were the dominant decorations in the church. An arch of white birch, trimmed with ferns and hyacinths spanned the center aisle and underneath was a gate of birch through which the bridal party passed. The altar rail was beautifully decorated with Easter lilies, jonquils, hyacinths and pears. After the ceremony there was a reception and wedding breakfast at the Massasoit house. Forty-five relatives and intimate friends of Mr. and Mrs. Townsend were present and a pleasant feature of the occasion was the announcement of the engagement of Miss Childs, the maid of honor, to Hammond Talbot of New York.

The bride's presents were numerous and very costly. The pin of diamonds, rubies and sapphires, which she wore was a gift from the groom. The maid of honor's gift was a gold pin set with emeralds and the diamonds and the groom gave to the best man and ushers gold scarf pins set with precious stones. The bridesmaids received gold pins set with pearls.
The marriage of Mr. Joseph M. Clark and Miss Sarah H. Hartley took place Wednesday afternoon at 5 o'clock, at the bride's home, No. 512 Main St. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Charles H. Smith of the Windsor Avenue Congregational church. The rooms were handsomely decorated with palms and cut flowers. The bride's costume was white organdy with pearl trimming, and she carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley. Mr. Fred B. Clark, brother of the groom, and David N. Case, cousin of the bride, acted as ushers. There were many beautiful gifts, including a silver tea set and tray, onyx table and banquet lamp, silver table ware, China tea set, cherry table, rockers, etchings, etc. There were guests present from New York, Brooklyn, Bridgeport, Boston and Portland. After the reception and luncheon the newly married couple left on the 7:10 train for a short wedding trip. They will be "at home" to their friends after May 20, at No. 166 Clark street.

PRESENTED WITH A LOVING CUP.

G. Wells Root Entertains Some Old Employees and Friends.

G. Wells Root was 68 years old Thursday, and he had been fifty-one years in business. He celebrated the two events by giving a dinner at the Hartford Club in the evening. The occasion brought together, besides a number of Mr. Root's friends, many of the men who have been employed in the firm of Root, Childs & Co., many of whom are now well known business men. H. C. Childs and A. C. Pomery, the New York partners, came up to the dinner. They entered heartily into the affair, and the reunion of the proprietors and eighty-four years old.

Sensus Morrill's Birthday Party.

The home of Senator and Mrs. Morrill, in Thomas Circle, was the scene of a brilliant party, Saturday evening, in celebration of the senator's eighty-fourth birthday. From 9 until 12 o'clock, the drawing-room held a distinguished company, and the occasion was one of festive congratulations and superb floral gifts to the host and hostess. The house was filled with the sweetness of music, and in the evening the guests were served with a banquet which was the talk of the town.
Married at the Blaine Residence, Washington.

A Distinguished Assemblage—Elegant Presents and Beautiful Floral Decorations.

Washington, April 30.—Miss Harriet Blaine, the remaining single daughter of the late James G. Blaine, was married to-day to Mr. Truxtun Beale of Washington, formerly Minister to Persia and to Greece.

The wedding took place at the Blaine residence, on Lafayette Square, near the White House, where the Maine's statesman died, and it marked the ending of the period of deep mourning for the family. All the arrangements tended to rob the event of an official character, and while personal presents in official life were present at the ceremony, they were invited in a private capacity as old friends of the family. No formal invitations were issued. Many had been given through informal notes; while many more were verbal. Mrs. Blaine and her family did all that could be done to make the affair as private as possible.

The ceremony took place at 1 o'clock, and at that hour a large company assembled in the big drawing-room on the second floor of the old mansion. The decorations were superb. White lilies and bride roses were used, and they were distributed throughout the room in wonderful profusion. Preceded by little Ned McLean, the son of Mr. John R. McLean, dressed in the costume of a medieval page, and carrying the bridal bouquet, the bride entered, leaning on the arm of her brother, Mr. James G. Blaine, and met beneath the bridal cell by the groom, attended by his best man, Mr. Edward Woolston of New York. The ceremony was performed in front of the fireplace in the dining-room, when breakfast was served.

The bride's gown was of beaded silk, simply made, higher their married life has been preceded by Mrs. Beale. "Abagail Dodge (Gail) Blaine," compatibility of temper is the re-nown of Mr. Beale. Signed for the secession. The table decorations are splendid.

Washington, October 18.—It is sterted that Mr. and Mrs. Truxton Beale have separated. Their unhappily married life has been pro-flawks line, two side caught orange blossoms and flowers of lihgen. Flowers of Damsos down the side, were of Mrs. Beale. The separated, their unhappily married life has been pro-flawa city, many Mrs. Blaine should assist her daughter. To Mr. Beale, a member of one of the distinguished Washington families, supposed to be a genuine love, and their union was regarded with a of the late James G. Blaine, and marriage in May, 1894, to Mr. Beale, the late James G. Blaine, was married to-day to Mr. Truxtun Beale of Washington, formerly Minister to Persia and to Greece. A Distinguished Assemblage—Elegant Presents and Beautiful Floral Decorations.

An absolute divorce was granted Mrs. Blaine from Mr. Beale by Judge Whitehouse, in the Supreme Judicial Court at Augusta, in 1886, Mrs. Beale last week filed a bill for divorce.

Harriet Blaine Divorced.

The youngest daughter of the late James G. Blaine Separated From Her Husband.

New York Sun.

Washington, October 18.—It is stated that Mr. and Mrs. Truxton Beale have separated. Their unhappily married life has been prolonged, and friends on both sides are well acquainted with the fact, say that separation is final. Proceedings for divorce will ultimately be instituted by Mrs. Beale. Mr. Beale has gone abroad, and Mrs. Beale insists that her mother at their home in Mrs. Beale's mother has charge of the estate of the late ex-secretary. Mrs. Beale's mother has charge of the estate of the late James G. Blaine, and from there they will go to California, where the groom has much property.

Washington, Oct. 20.—Mrs. Truxtun Beale, daughter of the late James G. Blaine, is said to have departed from her husband and will shortly institute proceedings for divorce. Mr. Beale has gone to South America, and Mrs. Beale should do something for her son, and Mrs. Beale insists that Mrs. Beale should assist her daughter.
Pretty Home Party.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Burton celebrated their crystal wedding at their home, No. 18 Bolden street, last evening. Over fifty relatives of the bride and groom were present. From out of town were Mr. and Mrs. Potter, Mr. and Mrs. Tucker, Springfield; Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Bickel, Thurber, Mass., and Mr. and Mrs. Woodbridge, East Hartford. The presents were quite numerous, being costly and beautiful. Among them were a French clock, rug, chintz and several solid pieces of silver ware, a writing desk, a beautiful embroidered center piece, handkerchiefs. The house was elaborately decorated with roses and lilacs. The evening was pleasantly passed with music and dancing. A notable feature was the presence of Mrs. Burton's five aunts, all over 80 years of age and their taking part in the evening's festivities. The popular bride was becomingly dressed in a gown of yellow crepe with crystal ornaments.

Miss Lucille Saunders.

The management of the Bostonians introduced a new member of that organization in Wednesday evening's performance of "The Maid of Plymouth" at the Tremont Theater in Boston. This was Miss Lucille Saunders, contralto, who appeared as 'Maaumee.' The famous Indian maiden, the role taken on the opening night by Jessie Barlett Davis. Miss Saunders is a native of Hartford, being the daughter of Captain Charles H. Saunders, who has spent most of the past twelve years in Europe. He now represents the Gardner gun. At the conclusion of her studies abroad she joined the Carl Rosa opera company, touring successfully with that organization until she joined the Bostonians for the present season. Miss Saunders, says the Boston Herald, has a thoroughly good voice, of large range, musical in quality, and it speaks her lines with intelligence, and altogether her success last evening shows how she used to enjoy Mrs. V. P. Marwick's singing and how pleased she was to know that Mrs. Marwick continued to delight Hartford audiences.

"How did you come to go abroad and where did you develop your voice?" asked the reporter.

"My father was in Paris transacting business for the Pratt & Whitney Company. I went there by my desire, and soon, for I had some voice and was ambitious to develop it, I began studying with Madame La Grange, under whose instruction I remained three years. She was the only teacher I ever had. From Paris I went to London, where fortunately it was my lot to become acquainted with Mrs. Ronalds, a wealth American lady living in Cadogan Place, who immediately became much interested in me. To her I am indebted for my start in operatic life. She is one of my dearest friends and patrons, and much of whatever success I have attained is to be attributed to her kind advice and assistance. She gave me introductions into London society, through which I was enabled to get engagements for drawing-room concert work, with occasional stage concert engagements, for about three years. Her house is visited by the best people in London. She is very hospitable and a most generous entertainer.

"Then, one day, I sang for Sir Augustine Harris, who engaged me to sing alternately with Agnes Huntington, as 'Paul Jones,' in the Carl Rosa Grand Opera Company; a fifteen months' engagement. I sang many of the principal parts in the repertory of grand opera. I made a tour of England, Ireland, and Scotland with the company, and it was while filling this engagement that I met Albert Meggickin, a barrister.

A HARTFORD GIRL IN OPERA.

Interview With Miss Lucille Saunders, Who sang Last Night.

"Yes, I'm a Hartford girl, and am proud of it and my American parentage," said Lucille Saunders, the Alan-Dale in "Robin Hood," to a reporter of "The Courant" in the parlor of The New House, yesterday afternoon. "I was born here, lived here with my parents—Captain Charles H. Saunders is my father—on John street, attended the South School in Miss Harriss's class and the high school, but went abroad when I was 17 years old, and haven't lived in the United States since. I have never before in my life had the long-desired opportunity to sing to a Hartford audience." "But weren't you ever in amateur opera in this city?" asked the reporter.

"Oh yes," was the reply. "Do you remember Sherlock's amateur opera company? I used to sing with lots of other Hartford girls, schoolmates, in the chorus of 'Dolanthe,' 'Pinafore,' 'Patience,' and others of Gilbert & Sullivan's operas."

Miss Saunders mentioned the names of many Hartford girls who were in the chorus, some of Misses Martha Langdale and Eliza.
THE REPUBLICAN.

THE DAWES GOLDEN WEDDING.

MANY HEARTY CONGRATULATIONS

Extended to the ex-Senator and His Wife
— A Suitable Observance of the Anniversary.

Special Dispatch to The Republican.

PITTSFIELD, Tues., May 7, 1899.

No fairer or more befitting a great event than that which took place on Monday, the wedding anniversary of Senator L. Dawes, the mell and cordial greeting of Pittsfield's townspeople in general and of the entire American nation in particular to mark in all the warmth and congratulatory spirit of the occasion. The morning found Mr. and Mrs. Dawes, as usual, held a very warm and cordial reception to their many friends in the yard of their home, which was transformed into a floral bower, and on every table and mantel were fragrant clusters of rarest buds. With the flowers came many letters, which were read and re-read with great pleasure, and the telegrams brought scores of messages of love and congratulations from the entire nation. The morning was delightfully celebrated by themselves, and the large house was crowded for several hours, the guests not all confined to society circles, but embraced the people of Pittsfield and nearby towns, including H. Torrey Cady and E. R. Tinker of North Adams, Z. M. and W. Murray Crane of Dalton, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Warner of Northampton, Mr. King and family, Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Taft, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas P. Pinigue of Pittsfield and a few other intimate friends, including Mrs. Thomas Allen and Mrs. E. S. Kellogg.

Two hours of keen enjoyment and reminiscence resulted, and nothing happier could be imagined. Mr. and Mrs. Dawes are held among the neighbors of Pittsfield and Pittsfield yesterday. It was an occasion long to be treasured in the memories of those fortunate enough to share in it. The day itself was soft and gracious, more lovely than the Berkshire hills, and the informal reception of friends at the Dawes homestead was of the ideal kind, hospitable, graceful, cordial. It is pleasant to observe the tender regard in which Mr. and Mrs. Dawes are held among the neighbors by whom they are best known. Fortunate and useful indeed has been their wedded career. Long may they be spared to enjoy together the honor and the peace with which it is crowned.

EX-SENATOR HENRY L. DAWES.

A number of presents were present from the American nation, including H. Torrey Cady and E. R. Tinker of North Adams, Z. M. and W. Murray Crane of Dalton, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Warner of Northampton, Mr. King and family, Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Taft, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas P. Pinigue of Pittsfield, and a few other intimate friends, including Mrs. Thomas Allen and Mrs. E. S. Kellogg.

The Monday Evening club, of which the ex-Senator is an esteemed member, sent him a particularly charming memorial, the 50th anniversary of the wedding of ex-Senator and Mrs. Henry L. Dawes was celebrated quite notably, on Tuesday afternoon. It was a family gathering of the Dawes family, with the presence of the son of the late Mr. Dawes of the city of Pittsfield, Jr., of South street, and a dinner was served. Mr. and Mrs. Dawes received several congratulatory letters, which were read and re-read with great pleasure, and the telegrams brought scores of messages of love and congratulation from the entire nation. The morning was delightfully celebrated by themselves, and the large house was crowded for several hours, the guests not all confined to society circles, but embraced the people of Pittsfield and nearby towns, including H. Torrey Cady and E. R. Tinker of North Adams, Z. M. and W. Murray Crane of Dalton, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Warner of Northampton, Mr. King and family, Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Taft, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas P. Pinigue of Pittsfield, and a few other intimate friends, including Mrs. Thomas Allen and Mrs. E. S. Kellogg.

Two hours of keen enjoyment and reminiscence resulted, and nothing happier could be imagined. Mr. and Mrs. Dawes are held among the neighbors of Pittsfield and Pittsfield yesterday. It was an occasion long to be treasured in the memories of those fortunate enough to share in it. The day itself was soft and gracious, more lovely than the Berkshire hills, and the informal reception of friends at the Dawes homestead was of the ideal kind, hospitable, graceful, cordial. It is pleasant to observe the tender regard in which Mr. and Mrs. Dawes are held among the neighbors by whom they are best known. Fortunate and useful indeed has been their wedded career. Long may they be spared to enjoy together the honor and the peace with which it is crowned.

T/G/G D/W/E/D/.

[Ex. Rogers in Berkshire Democrat]

May 7, 1899.

It was nearly night on the afternoon of the wedding anniversary of the Dawes golden wedding. Mr. Dawes was a crowd of little boys and girls, who had been playing in the yard, and two had ventured upon the piazza. When asked what they wanted, they said what they wanted for the Dawes wedding. Some of them needed a bath, but they were all invited in, though there were more than 30 of them. Each one took the hand of Mr. and Mrs. Dawes' children, and were given lemonade, candy, and flowers. Happy children will never forget the Dawes gold wedding.
The Telegraph's 50th Anniversary

Yesterday was the 50th anniversary of the sending of the first news dispatch by telegraph. It was a day deserving of a celebration, far more than many events which are glossed with the cannon's booming and the orator's eloquence, for, in company with the railroad, the telegraph has been a foremost agent in revolutionizing the entire circle of modern life.

The first telegraph news dispatch was sent from Baltimore, where the Whig national convention was held, to Washington, announcing the nomination of Clay and Frelinghuysen as presidential candidates. It is related that the cable in Washington would not credit the telegram until the first train arrived from Baltimore confirming the news.

Fifty Years Ago To-Day.

Fifty years ago this morning, May 11, 1844, 'The Courier' did not give an epitome of the world's news, for the reason that it was on that day that Professor Morse sent the first telegraph message from Baltimore to Washington, and the whole world was not so webbed as now with telegraph and cable lines. Perhaps there is nothing more interesting to the public than the remarkable history of the growth of this important factor in the civilization of the world. To-day every city, town and hamlet has its telegraph office and daily we have the history of the world for the preceding day's events in our morning paper. In memory of the fiftieth anniversary of the introduction of the telegraph, the president and the executive officers of the Postal Telegraph Company have invited its superintendents and managers of large offices to meet with them this evening in their new and elegant offices of their new building in New York to exchange greetings and get acquainted with each other. R. P. Martin, the manager in this city, will attend and represent Hartford.

The Republican.

SPRINGFIELD, SUNDAY, MAY 6.

To-day is the 60th anniversary of the introduction of telegraphy into the United States, and the occasion will be fittingly celebrated by the opening of the new building of the Postal Telegraph Company at 297 Washington Street. The company has been in existence for thirty years, occupying positions of trust and responsibility in the company. Mr. Baker spent eight years in the commissioner's office here, being selected by Commissioner George S. Miller, now superintendent of agencies in the Phoenix Mutual Life Insurance Company, Mr. Baker spent eight years in the commissioner's office here, but at the end of the time accepted an engagement with the Hartford Life and Annuity Insurance Company. He remained there thirteen years, occupying positions of trust and responsibility in the company. At the present time he is the treasurer of the Hartford Typewriter Company. Mr. Baker is a past master of Lafayette Lodge No. 5, with headquarters in the Mystic Shrine in Bridgeport. He is a thirty-second degree mason and is held in high esteem by the members of the fraternity throughout the state. He is a member of the Royal Arch Commandery, Knights Templar, and belongs to the Mystic Shrine in Bridgeport. He is a thirty-second degree Mason and is held in high esteem by the members of the fraternity throughout the state. He is a member of the Royal Arch Commandery, Knights Templar, and belongs to the Mystic Shrine in Bridgeport.

Col. and Mrs. Homer Foot, a couple who have been together for over forty years, celebrated their 40th wedding anniversary today. The occasion was marked by a quiet family gathering at their beautiful new building in New York, where many interesting stories of old times, telling among other things of the snow-storm that occurred 60 years ago to-day. Though the apple blossoms were out then as now, the people woke up to find three inches of snow on the ground, on the 4th of May, 1834. All of their family attended service at the church of the Unity yesterday morning, and formed an interesting and impressive group.

To-day is the 60th anniversary of the introduction of telegraphy into the United States, and the occasion will be fittingly celebrated by the opening of the new building of the Postal Telegraph Company at 297 Washington Street. The company has been in existence for thirty years, occupying positions of trust and responsibility in the company. Mr. Baker spent eight years in the commissioner's office here, being selected by Commissioner George S. Miller, now superintendent of agencies in the Phoenix Mutual Life Insurance Company. Mr. Baker spent eight years in the commissioner's office here, but at the end of the time accepted an engagement with the Hartford Life and Annuity Insurance Company. He remained there thirteen years, occupying positions of trust and responsibility in the company. At the present time he is the treasurer of the Hartford Typewriter Company. Mr. Baker is a past master of Lafayette Lodge No. 5, with headquarters in the Mystic Shrine in Bridgeport. He is a thirty-second degree mason and is held in high esteem by the members of the fraternity throughout the state. He is a member of the Royal Arch Commandery, Knights Templar, and belongs to the Mystic Shrine in Bridgeport. He is a thirty-second degree Mason and is held in high esteem by the members of the fraternity throughout the state. He is a member of the Royal Arch Commandery, Knights Templar, and belongs to the Mystic Shrine in Bridgeport.
Frank Lucius Pinney of South Manchester is nominated by Congressman Sperry.

In accordance with the advice of the board of examiners Congressman Sperry has nominated Frank Lucius Pinney of South Manchester to the vacancy at the naval academy at Annapolis. Mr. Pinney is the son of Mr. Lucius Pinney, bookkeeper for Cheney Bros. in South Manchester. Mr. Pinney, senior, was a member of the Twenty-fifth Regiment, Connecticut Volunteers, of which Colonel George W. Bissell was commanding officer. His son, the successful competitor for Annapolis, graduated at the West Middle School of this city five years ago and at the Hartford High School last year. He passed his entrance examination for the Yale Sheffield Scientific School.

Charles Lincoln Taylor, son of Edwin P. Taylor of this city, stood second in the competition, and Congressman Sperry has named him alternate for Mr. Pinney, in case of the latter's failure, from causes to be explained later. Charles Wells Eddy, son of John C. Eddy of Simsbury, stood third among the competitors.

Francis Pinney, who was selected to enter the Naval Academy at Annapolis and has been for the past two months at that college, is engaged in study preparatory to his examination, telegraphs his father, Julius Pinney of South Manchester, that he has passed the examination successfully. Young Pinney is a graduate of the Twenty-fifth Connecticut—one of the youngest lads in the service. Patriotism and efficiency are hereditary in the family.

APRIL 2, 1893.

NAVAL CADETSHIP.

Frank Lucius Pinney of South Manchester came up for the physical examination yesterday previous to graduating from the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis and was rejected because it was found that he had heart trouble.

The fact that these out of twenty-eight in the line division and two out of eleven in the engineer division were rejected shows how necessary the examination. The cadets are graduated some months ahead of time this year on account of the prospect of war. Frank L. Pinney is the son of Lucius Pinney of South Manchester. He was graduated at the Hartford High School in the class of '92 and has many friends in this city. He has done very creditable work at the naval academy and has a high standing in his class.

APRIL 4, 1893.

CADET PINNEY PASSES.

The Surgeon-General Sees That He Goes Through.

Frank L. Pinney of South Manchester, member of the graduating class of the United States Naval Academy, who was rejected on the physical examination because he had heart trouble, went to the surgeon to appeal. He was allowed to pass and will receive his commission and assignment to the navy at the same time as the other members of the class. The two others of the same examination who were rejected were also allowed to pass.
Mr. Collins's Long Service.

Mr. Collins, station master of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad in this city will, on Thursday, have completed forty-seven years in the service of the road. Mr. Collins entered the employ of the road in 1847 as freight handler. He remained in that capacity for twenty months, and, was later car inspector and afterwards ran a gravel train. He was appointed station master in this city twenty-eight years ago. Among other employees of the company who entered about the time Mr. Collins did and who are still retained are: Robert Reed, foreman of the freight office at Belle Dock, who went to work for the road in 1846; Sylvester Vanhorn, station agent at Thompsonville, who began working for the company in 1848; Cornelius S. Collins, a switchman in this city, and brother of William H. Collins, in 1849; Michael Burke, a switchman at New Haven, 1854; Ban N. Edmonds, station agent at Belle Dock, 1855; Bell Royce, Miss Helen Hough and Mrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Elsie Hart, Miss Sophia Tracy. The actors are Miss Mary Gorton, Miss Field, Miss Hoffister, Miss Thurston, Miss Annie M. Tracy and Miss Sophia Tracy who take the part of forest maidens, and Mr. Louis Breen and Mr. Alfred W. Dodd, who impersonate barbicians.

The Babylonian Marriage is in charge of Miss Sarah Foster and Miss Sophia Tracy. The actors are Misses Magdalen, Miss Leontine Thomson, Miss Allon, Miss Nettie Pierson, Miss Sally Bullock, Miss Corwin, Miss Charlotte, Miss Elsie Hart, Miss Pratt, Miss Royce, Miss Helen Hough and Mrs. E. F. Holt, and Mr. Louis Cheney, Mr. Joseph Blanchard, Mr. P. Royce, Mr. Huntington, Mr. Wurtz, Mr. Harry Elmore, Mr. W. S. Davis, Mr. Howell Cheney, Mr. Arthur Day, Mr. O. H. Clark.

The Egyptian, Jewish and Roman Weddings are under the direction respectively of Misses E. E. Risley, Miss E. E. Risley, Miss Field, Miss I. F. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Messrs. F. D. Rathbun, Miss Conklin and Miss Ruthann. The cast is: Miss Margaret Hart, Fillie Fluents, John Ed- geon as John Rolfe, Misses Ruthann

MAY 15, 1894.

The FITT-MOODY WEDDING.

The marriage of Miss Emma Moody, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Dwight L. Moody, to Arthur P. Fitt took place last evening at 6 o'clock in the Congregational church at Northfield. The church was filled with the guests invited.

The marriage ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Hartzler. The bride was given away by her father. Mendelssohn's wedding march was played as the bridal party retired. Alexander McGessen, Mr. Pier- son, Mr. Williams, Mr. Sankey, Mr. Walker and Mr. Felton acted as groomsmen and some of the guests present were Rev. and Mrs. George C. Needham, Rev. and Mrs. R. A. Torrey, Ira B. Sankey, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Sankey, Cunliffe, Miss Evelyn Hall, William Moody, Ambert G. Moody and Mrs. Bessie Revell.

Referring to the accident of last Monday and the death of Miss Blood the reception was omit. The young women from the seminary and the boys of Mount Hermon school attended in a body.
THE "MARRIAGE DRAMAS."

All Were Pleased with the Entertainment at Foot Guard Hall.

"Marriage Dramas" at Foot Guard Hall last evening, jumped into popular favor at the first performance. It should be attended by large audiences at the matinee at 3 o'clock this afternoon and the evening performance at 8 o'clock, not 8:15 or 8:30, as many late-comers last evening apparently thought was the hour, to the discomfort of many people already seated and the delay and interruption of Mrs. John M. Gallup, the graceful Greek chorus. Miss Mien, the Boston woman, who presented the entertainment, under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. and for its benefit, has arranged a unique and entirely original entertainment in the "Marriage Dramas," a series of nine dramas showing the various forms of marriage ceremony from the days of barbarism, when force was the only recognized law, and the maiden yielded to the claims of the primitive.

FOOT GUARD HALL FILLED WITH AN APPRECIATIVE AUDIENCE.

The production of "Marriage Dramas" by local talent under the direction of Miss C. R. Allen last evening exceeded the expectations of all. That Hartford could enlist such an array of pretty maidens and able young men was no surprise but the studied perfection of the many scenes presented both in the matter of pose and in the adaptation of costumes to the several nationalities was a subject of generous comment.

The succession of dramas, an epitome of all that has pertained to marriage rites since the earliest times was set on the stage with extremely brief waits. Foot Guard hall was nearly filled with the best class of Hartford's citizens. While the occasion was not formally a rechereche affair at which society alone was supposed to be represented, the occasion was an appreciable flavor of swelldom for the presentation is one that does not appeal to the less tutored of the community. The historical instruction of the dramas, including every nationality that had a curious or novel marriage custom is such as to make a lasting impression. Each scene was introduced by Mrs. John M. Gallup, who pleasingly impersonated the Greek chorus and her distinct enunciation of explanatory preludes to the various tableaux was accompanied by queenly grace and freedom from affectation.

A noticeable defect in the stage setting of each drama was the lack of special scenery but this was overcome by the predominance of artistic effects in grouping the characters, exhibiting correctness on the part of Louis Breton, the stage director.
A SECRET MARRIAGE JUST MADE PUBLIC.

Miss Bertha M. Adams of Wethersfield and Charles P. Backus of Brooklyn Were Married Last December and Their Friends Have Just Been Apprised of the News—On a Long Delayed Wedding Trip.

A marriage announcement was made Saturday that all the tongs of gossip in three Connecticut towns were agog, and not only the gossips. Everybody was surprised. In brief, the announcement could be condensed as follows:

Of course, the announcement was not made in just this abridged form, but few additional facts could be learned by the many friends of the contracting parties who are prominent society people, and a "Courant" reporter who called on the family of the bride was told that the family preferred to have nothing said. At the home of the groom, however, some facts have leaked out, and are contained in the following from our Willimantic correspondent:

A WELL-KEPT SECRET.
(Special to The Courant.)

The marriage of Charles P. Backus, cashier of the Windham County National Bank of Brooklyn, and Bertha M. Adams of Wethersfield, a teacher in the model schools in the First District of this city, was announced Saturday. The ceremony was performed at Framingham, Mass., December 30, 1893, by the Rev. F. E. Emrich of that place. The engagement of the couple was announced near the date above mentioned, it being not far from that time that Mr. Backus assumed the duties of cashier at the Brooklyn bank and severed his connection with the Windham National Bank in this city, where he had held a similar position. Mr. and Mrs. Backus have been prominent in society circles the past winter, having been regular attendants at the Harmony socials and other society gatherings, never causing a suspicion in the minds of their friends that they were anything more to each other than the announcement of their engagement indicated. Only two or three persons had been apprised of the closer relations existing between them, and they maintained the most perfect secrecy, notwithstanding some of them were women.

The relatives of Mr. Backus in this city were greatly surprised when the announcement of their marriage was made Saturday and the gossips were in no enviable frame of mind to think they had been cheated of the anticipated pleasure arising. To say that their friends and acquaintances were surprised would be putting it mildly. Mrs. Backus resigned her position in the model school Friday and met her husband at the depot in this city Saturday on the 11:30 a.m. train, on which they started on a five-months' delayed wedding trip to New York and vicinity.

They will be at home to their many friends at their home in Brooklyn, Conn., after June 1.

Backus's Parents Also Surprised.

The Backus-Adams wedding was the topic of conversation in Wethersfield yesterday. The announcement was the first telling anyone there of the marriage and expressions of surprise were made by everybody. Mr. Backus spent Christmas with the bride's family and Miss Adams has not been home since till Saturday, and it was not known until after she had left town that she was married. It is the general impression that the family were the most surprised of all when the news was broken to them Saturday.

On the wedding trip, they will be at home to their many friends at their home in Brooklyn, Conn., after June 1.
IN AND ABOUT SPRINGFIELD.

THE CHINESE STUDENT COLONY WHICH STUDIED AMERICAN IDEAS.

Experiences of Those Who Found Homes in This City, etc.

The announcement of the marriage engagement of an attractive and refined American girl to Yung Kwai, a Chinese, which was announced last week, has naturally aroused a deal of attention, Mr. Kwai was one of the colony of young Chinese students who were brought to Springfield to be educated a dozen years ago. They were all picked men and naturally represented the best products of the Oriental kingdom. Yung Kwai is the fine specimen of the aristocracy of his country.

Like many of the Chinese boys who formerly lived here, he has developed naturally fine qualities of mind by a thorough education and possesses an oriental polish of manner that makes him qualified to enter good society. Yet he is withal of a shy, diffident disposition that does much to hide unusual strength of character. This latter characteristic is illustrated by his giving up the religion of his fathers and joining South Church while he attended school here. This with the removal of his two in deference to public opinion on the question, "Is the world growing better?" has gone down in history. Yung Wing took the position that the world was growing better and his line of argument went original. He said that the idea made Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden, and they had two sons, Cain and Abel. Cain killed Abel, and then one-half of the people of the world onequarter was a murderer and one-quarter was dead. "That certainly is not the condition of the world to-day," concluded Yung Wing in triumph.

From this he went to Yale university where he graduated in 1854. He then went back to China, where he was employed in the foreign service. He was sent to this country to investigate all kinds of modern machinery which at that time was unknown to the Chinese empire. It was then discovered that the Young Wing conceived the plan of inducing the emperor to send some of his young men to study in this country. It was decided to dispatch 120 in four installments, the first coming in 1872.

So there were placed in the best families in Massachusetts and Connecticut some "running little Chinese boys" who attracted considerable attention from their quaint ways and queer costumes. Their clothing became somewhat somber; when India-rubber trousers, blouses, and small caps. They soon learned to tuck their cute behind their collars to conceal them as much as possible. They adapted themselves readily to the American language. They were young and enjoyed greatly the sight of stirring scenes so in contrast with their own country. They soon gave evidence of being of a remarkably studious disposition. It was in study and athletics that the ordinary young American to find himself beaten in sciences by a strange-looking, oil-yellow-eyed personage, and the intruder was not treated any too well in course. After graduation he went to New York where he was associated with the Chinese consulate. For the next three years he been connected with the Chinese legation in Washington, but the recent change in the ministry has prevented his continuing further in the office. As the world's colleges of religions at Chicago he had a prize essay. Yung Kwai escaped from the other young men who were ordered back to China when the students were withdrawn and so has been the unusual advantage of being able to complete his education.

Yung Kwai's experience with his government because he adopted the Christian religion is of special interest. He wrote of his conversion to his father, a Chinese noble, and every intelligible letter. He had graduated from Yale and was then in Hartford. His father ordered him to return home at once, threatening to beat him if he remained.

to be true in his new faith, he looked at his return to China as going to almost certain death. He started with the other boys for Boston, whence they were to sail for home by way of Europe. But Yung Kwai stopped from the train in this city on the condition of sending a carriage to his friends here and then disappeared with a Yale sophomore named Tan. They readily found friends who kept them shielded for a few weeks. Meanwhile employing a distinguished Boston lawyer to confer with Secretary of State Evarts, who assured them that the young men could remain here without being molested. When in 1872 it became known that the iron-clad conservation of the Chinese government had become broken and 120 young celestials were to be sent here to be educated there was no little surprise. The man to whom this unexpected advance was due was Yung Wing, the well-known representative of the race who has long lived in Hartford. He came to this country through the influence of the American missionaries in China and was educated here with two other boys. He was placed in Maysen academy and a debate he had on the question, "Is the world growing better?" has gone down in history. "That certainly is not the condition of the world to-day," concluded Yung Wing in triumph.

From this he went to Yale university where he graduated in 1854. He then went back to China, where he was employed in the foreign service. He was sent to this country to investigate all kinds of modern machinery which at that time was unknown to the Chinese empire. It was then discovered that the Young Wing conceived the plan of inducing the emperor to send some of his young men to study in this country. It was decided to dispatch 120 in four installments, the first coming in 1872.

So there were placed in the best families in Massachusetts and Connecticut some "running little Chinese boys" who attracted considerable attention from their quaint ways and queer costumes. Their clothing became somewhat somber; when India-rubber trousers, blouses, and small caps. They soon learned to tuck their cute behind their collars to conceal them as much as possible. They adapted themselves readily to the American language. They were young and enjoyed greatly the sight of stirring scenes so in contrast with their own country. They soon gave evidence of being of a remarkably studious disposition. It was in study and athletics that the ordinary young American to find himself beaten in sciences by a strange-looking, oil-yellow-eyed personage, and the intruder was not treated any too well in course. After graduation he went to New York where he was associated with the Chinese consulate. For the next three years he been connected with the Chinese legation in Washington, but the recent change in the ministry has prevented his continuing further in the office. As the world's colleges of religions at Chicago he had a prize essay. Yung Kwai escaped from the other young men who were ordered back to China when the students were withdrawn and so has been the unusual advantage of being able to complete his education.

Yung Kwai's experience with his government because he adopted the Christian religion is of special interest. He wrote of his conversion to his father, a Chinese noble, and every intelligible letter. He had graduated from Yale and was then in Hartford. His father ordered him to return home at once, threatening to beat him if he remained.

to be true in his new faith, he looked at his return to China as going to almost certain death. He started with the other boys for Boston, whence they were to sail for home by way of Europe. But Yung Kwai stopped from the train in this city on the condition of sending a carriage to his friends here and then disappeared with a Yale sophomore named Tan. They readily found friends who kept them shielded for a few weeks. Meanwhile employing a distinguished Boston lawyer to confer with Secretary of State Evarts, who assured them that the young men could remain here without being molested. When in 1872 it became known that the iron-clad conservation of the Chinese government had become broken and 120 young celestials were to be sent here to be educated there was no little surprise. The man to whom this unexpected advance was due was Yung Wing, the well-known representative of the race who has long lived in Hartford. He came to this country through the influence of the American missionaries in China and was educated here with two other boys. He was placed in Maysen academy and a debate he had on the question, "Is the world growing better?" has gone down in history. "That certainly is not the condition of the world to-day," concluded Yung Wing in triumph.

From this he went to Yale university where he graduated in 1854. He then went back to China, where he was employed in the foreign service. He was sent to this country to investigate all kinds of modern machinery which at that time was unknown to the Chinese empire. It was then discovered that the Young Wing conceived the plan of inducing the emperor to send some of his young men to study in this country. It was decided to dispatch 120 in four installments, the first coming in 1872.

So there were placed in the best families in Massachusetts and Connecticut some "running little Chinese boys" who attracted considerable attention from their quaint ways and queer costumes. Their clothing became somewhat somber; when India-rubber trousers, blouses, and small caps. They soon learned to tuck their cute behind their collars to conceal them as much as possible. They adapted themselves readily to the American language. They were young and enjoyed greatly the sight of stirring scenes so in contrast with their own country. They soon gave evidence of being of a remarkably studious disposition. It was in study and athletics that the ordinary young American to find himself beaten in sciences by a strange-looking, oil-yellow-eyed personage, and the intruder was not treated any too well in course. After graduation he went to New York where he was associated with the Chinese consulate. For the next three years he been connected with the Chinese legation in Washington, but the recent change in the ministry has prevented his continuing further in the office. As the world's colleges of religions at Chicago he had a prize essay. Yung Kwai escaped from the other young men who were ordered back to China when the students were withdrawn and so has been the unusual advantage of being able to complete his education.

Yung Kwai's experience with his government because he adopted the Christian religion is of special interest. He wrote of his conversion to his father, a Chinese noble, and every intelligible letter. He had graduated from Yale and was then in Hartford. His father ordered him to return home at once, threatening to beat him if he remained.
The Kwal-Burnham Wedding.

Interesting History of the Chinsuanu Who Won Springfield

There will be wide interest in the wedding on Long Hill this evening, when Miss May Burnham will wed Yung Kwai, the prominent young Chinsuanu, who has been a member of the legislature at Washington. The ceremony will be performed by Rev. Dr Buckingham, pastor of the bride and groom, and one of the ushers will be Mr. Morris Wing of Yale college, son of Yung Wing of Hartford, long commissioner of education, and who also won an American bride. Mr. Kwai is well known in this city, and the relatives and friends who gathered at the bride’s home yesterday needed no introduction. He came to this city in 1873 and fitted for Yale at the Springfield high school, graduating in 1880. He joined South church and identified himself with the American boys. He has dispensed with his crew and insists on wearing American clothing even when at Washington. He has a fairly regular face, a slight hint of moustache and closely cut hair, which stands up very straight. Gold-bobbed spectacles give him a sedate look, although the clear black eyes that shine through often sparkle with merriment. He is self-possessed, far from awkward, and although he is of Chinese ancestry, is a fair representative of the educated American Chinese. He joined South church of this city, and the relatives and friends who came were thrilled with his sincerity and charm.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr Buckingham, pastor of the bride and groom, and one of the ushers will be Mr. Morris Wing of Yale college, son of Yung Wing of Hartford, long commissioner of education, and who also won an American bride. Mr. Kwai is well known in this city, and the relatives and friends who gathered at the bride’s home yesterday needed no introduction. He came to this city in 1873 and fitted for Yale at the Springfield high school, graduating in 1880. He joined South church and identified himself with the American boys. He has dispensed with his crew and insists on wearing American clothing even when at Washington. He has a fairly regular face, a slight hint of moustache and closely cut hair, which stands up very straight. Gold-bobbed spectacles give him a sedate look, although the clear black eyes that shine through often sparkle with merriment. He is self-possessed, far from awkward, and although he is of Chinese ancestry, is a fair representative of the educated American Chinese. He joined South church of this city, and the relatives and friends who came were thrilled with his sincerity and charm.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr Buckingham, pastor of the bride and groom, and one of the ushers will be Mr. Morris Wing of Yale college, son of Yung Wing of Hartford, long commissioner of education, and who also won an American bride. Mr. Kwai is well known in this city, and the relatives and friends who gathered at the bride’s home yesterday needed no introduction. He came to this city in 1873 and fitted for Yale at the Springfield high school, graduating in 1880. He joined South church and identified himself with the American boys. He has dispensed with his crew and insists on wearing American clothing even when at Washington. He has a fairly regular face, a slight hint of moustache and closely cut hair, which stands up very straight. Gold-bobbed spectacles give him a sedate look, although the clear black eyes that shine through often sparkle with merriment. He is self-possessed, far from awkward, and although he is of Chinese ancestry, is a fair representative of the educated American Chinese. He joined South church of this city, and the relatives and friends who came were thrilled with his sincerity and charm.
Yung Wing of Hartford, who attended the Kwai-Burnham wedding Wednesday evening, called on Dr. A. S. McLean, who, and did not neglect the newly-arrived Chinese students brought to town 20 years ago. Mr. Wing was much interested in Mr. Kwai, the young man, and recalled his experiences when public attention was attracted to his marriage Miss Kellogg at Avon, Ct., 20 years ago. It was then reported that Mr. Wing would be beheaded if he dared visit China again. His wife was much distressed, but did not have a choice in the matter.

The wedding was a simple affair, in a small dress of heavy white satin, and trimmed with flowers, which matched her bouquet. The chairs also caught the bridal veil and she carried 25 bride-roses. The ushers were Robert Dwight, Robert Wallace, Fred P. Street and Morrison Wing of Hartford.

The ceremony was simple, the ring being used. After the service, the bridal couple went over the church, passing their friends and guests, and did not neglect the newly-arrived Chinese students brought to town 20 years ago. Mr. Wing was much interested in Mr. Kwai, the young man, and recalled his experiences when public attention was attracted to his marriage Miss Kellogg at Avon, Ct., 20 years ago. It was then reported that Mr. Wing would be beheaded if he dared visit China again. His wife was much distressed, but did not have a choice in the matter.

The wedding was a simple affair, in a small dress of heavy white satin, and trimmed with flowers, which matched her bouquet. The chairs also caught the bridal veil and she carried 25 bride-roses. The ushers were Robert Dwight, Robert Wallace, Fred P. Street and Morrison Wing of Hartford.

The ceremony was simple, the ring being used. After the service, the bridal couple went over the church, passing their friends and guests, and did not neglect the newly-arrived Chinese students brought to town 20 years ago. Mr. Wing was much interested in Mr. Kwai, the young man, and recalled his experiences when public attention was attracted to his marriage Miss Kellogg at Avon, Ct., 20 years ago. It was then reported that Mr. Wing would be beheaded if he dared visit China again. His wife was much distressed, but did not have a choice in the matter.
Mrs. Madalen Polk Buell, whose engagement to Charles Cramp, head of the great Philadelphia shipbuilding firm, was recently announced, has been given permission by Judge Hagner of the Equity Court to resume her maiden name of Polk. She was divorced from Augustus C. Buell in May, 1893.—[Washington News.

MAY 29, 1899.

The morning of interest in the matter.

The Hartford Courant.

TUESDAY MORNING, MAY 29, 1891.

SEVENTY-FIVE YEARS YOUNG.

JULIA WARD HOWE'S BIRTHDAY.

50th Anniversary Fitfully Observed at Her Boston Home.

May 29, 1891.

Julia Ward Howe tells the "Boston Advertiser" that she finds life at 75 full of pleasant work, and she has her garden roses and her cat and all spend the year.

"Yet I ex-

City Electrician Gilbert.

The Hartford's Competitor Won the Position.

Albert W. Gilbert of this city, son of Major Charles E. Gilbert, the engraver at the Aetna Life Insurance Company office, was appointed city electrician by the board of street commissioners, Wednesday night. Mr. Gilbert came on horseback, yesterday, from Hamilton, Penn., where he has a force of 300 men under

The Hartford Courant.

TUESDAY MORNING, MAY 29, 1891.

SEVENTY-FIVE YEARS YOUNG.

JULIA WARD HOWE'S BIRTHDAY.

50th Anniversary Fitfully Observed at Her Boston Home.

May 29, 1891.

Julia Ward Howe tells the "Boston Advertiser" that she finds life at 75 full of pleasant work, and she has her garden roses and her cat and all spend the year.

"Yet I ex-

City Electrician Gilbert.

The Hartford's Competitor Won the Position.

Albert W. Gilbert of this city, son of Major Charles E. Gilbert, the engraver at the Aetna Life Insurance Company office, was appointed city electrician by the board of street commissioners, Wednesday night. Mr. Gilbert came on horseback, yesterday, from Hamilton, Penn., where he has a force of 300 men under

The Hartford Courant.

TUESDAY MORNING, MAY 29, 1891.

SEVENTY-FIVE YEARS YOUNG.

JULIA WARD HOWE'S BIRTHDAY.

50th Anniversary Fitfully Observed at Her Boston Home.

May 29, 1891.

Julia Ward Howe tells the "Boston Advertiser" that she finds life at 75 full of pleasant work, and she has her garden roses and her cat and all spend the year.

"Yet I ex-

City Electrician Gilbert.

The Hartford's Competitor Won the Position.

Albert W. Gilbert of this city, son of Major Charles E. Gilbert, the engraver at the Aetna Life Insurance Company office, was appointed city electrician by the board of street commissioners, Wednesday night. Mr. Gilbert came on horseback, yesterday, from Hamilton, Penn., where he has a force of 300 men under

The Hartford Courant.

TUESDAY MORNING, MAY 29, 1891.

SEVENTY-FIVE YEARS YOUNG.

JULIA WARD HOWE'S BIRTHDAY.

50th Anniversary Fitfully Observed at Her Boston Home.

May 29, 1891.

Julia Ward Howe tells the "Boston Advertiser" that she finds life at 75 full of pleasant work, and she has her garden roses and her cat and all spend the year.

"Yet I ex-
Rev. Dr. E. P. Parker will go abroad for his health this summer. He expects to sail on the Vesta. The Rev. Dr. Parker and his son, John A. Parker, have been in Switzerland in Europe some time. The Rev. Dr. Parker will return to New York on the Vesta, and then go to Genoa. Robert F. Parker, who has been in Europe, will join his father on the Vesta at Genoa.

Successful Operation.

Dr. Arthur B. Kellogg of New York, son of Dr. E. W. Kellogg of this city, performed a most difficult operation, the removal of a large tumor from the brain of a patient, Mr. W. C. Wilson, Supt. of the plant of a sugar-refining firm, the removal of which was thought impossible. The operation was performed in Bellevue Hospital. Dr. Kellogg is a staff surgeon of Bellevue Hospital. Dr. Kellogg, however, undertook to do it, and succeeded. He first removed the upper part of the skull, leaving the brain exposed. Then he removed the entire skull, and the splintered bones were replaced in the brain. The operation was performed under a general anaesthetic.

Fashionable Middle-aged Hartford People. (Special to The Hartford Times)

Louis De Keyser H. Dooney, on Wednesday afternoon, married Miss Viola M. Dooney, Hartford. The wedding was held at the Church of the Messiah, Washington Street. A large crowd attended the wedding.

The wedding of Charles Cheney, Jr., and Miss Chauncey, all of New York; Ex-Congressman and Mrs. Wallace Gustave Wallace and Miss Chauncey, all of New York; Miss Belden of Syracuse and Miss Chauncy, all of New York; General and Mrs. Elmira Dyer of Providence, R.I., Mrs. Edgerton, a daughter of Mr. E. K. Hubbard, and Miss Underwood of Brooklyn, Miss Belden of Syracuse and Miss Chauncy, all of New York; General and Mrs. Elmira Dyer of Providence, R.I., Mrs. Edgerton, a daughter of Mr. E. K. Hubbard, and Miss Underwood of Brooklyn, Miss Belden of Syracuse, Miss Chauncy, all of New York; General and Mrs. Wallace.

MAY 7, 1896.

The wedding of Charles Cheney, Jr., and Miss Chauncey, all of New York; Ex-Congressman and Mrs. Wallace Gustave Wallace and Miss Chauncy, all of New York; Miss Belden of Syracuse and Miss Chauncy, all of New York; General and Mrs. Elmira Dyer of Providence, R.I., Mrs. Edgerton, a daughter of Mr. E. K. Hubbard, and Miss Underwood of Brooklyn, Miss Belden of Syracuse, Miss Chauncy, all of New York; General and Mrs. Wallace.

The wedding of Charles Cheney, Jr., and Miss Chauncey, all of New York; Ex-Congressman and Mrs. Wallace Gustave Wallace and Miss Chauncy, all of New York; Miss Belden of Syracuse and Miss Chauncy, all of New York; General and Mrs. Elmira Dyer of Providence, R.I., Mrs. Edgerton, a daughter of Mr. E. K. Hubbard, and Miss Underwood of Brooklyn, Miss Belden of Syracuse, Miss Chauncy, all of New York; General and Mrs. Wallace.

The wedding of Charles Cheney, Jr., and Miss Chauncey, all of New York; Ex-Congressman and Mrs. Wallace Gustave Wallace and Miss Chauncy, all of New York; Miss Belden of Syracuse and Miss Chauncy, all of New York; General and Mrs. Elmira Dyer of Providence, R.I., Mrs. Edgerton, a daughter of Mr. E. K. Hubbard, and Miss Underwood of Brooklyn, Miss Belden of Syracuse, Miss Chauncy, all of New York; General and Mrs. Wallace.

The wedding of Charles Cheney, Jr., and Miss Chauncey, all of New York; Ex-Congressman and Mrs. Wallace Gustave Wallace and Miss Chauncy, all of New York; Miss Belden of Syracuse and Miss Chauncy, all of New York; General and Mrs. Elmira Dyer of Providence, R.I., Mrs. Edgerton, a daughter of Mr. E. K. Hubbard, and Miss Underwood of Brooklyn, Miss Belden of Syracuse, Miss Chauncy, all of New York; General and Mrs. Wallace.
Mrs. Ralph W. Cutler gave a large tea at her home on Washington Street on Monday afternoon, for her cousin, Miss Ruth Work. Mrs. F. W. Russell and Miss Rhobeeck-Cheyne.

Miss Marion Cheyne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cheyne of South Manchester, and Dr. Rhobeeck, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward M. Rhobeeck of Poughkeepsie, were married at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, by Rev. James G. Neill, rector of St. Mary's Church in South Manchester. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was attended by Miss Elvina Lowden of Springfield, III., daughter of Gov.-Gen. in that of Mr. R. W. Hatfield and Miss O. Lawton of Poughkeepsie. The maid of honor was Miss Anna Robinson, Miss May C. Powell, the Misses Breesy and Miss Lucy Steel, Miss Clara Simpson.

The bride and groom's home was beautifully arranged about the house and with the gas caused the church to be poorly lighted under the galleries. A reception at the house of Mayor Bulkley and Mr. Charles T. Welles.

Miss Bulkley and Mr. Charles T. Welles.

Mrs. William H. Bulkley gave a large coming-out reception for her daughter, Miss Sadie Bulkley, at her home on Washington Street, on Wednesday afternoon, from 4 to 6 o'clock. Mrs. Bulkley wore a beautiful gown of lavender and white, and Miss Bulkley's extremely becoming gown was of white muslin, and she carried a large bouquet of white roses. Miss Bulkley's numerous bouquets nearly filled one corner of the large drawing-room, and made the air sweet with their perfume. The table decorations in the dining-room were in pink, with pink leghorn hats. Those who assisted in receiving were Mrs. Edward S. Van Zile, Mrs. Morgan G. Bulkley, Miss Lucy Brainard, Miss Siding of Orange, N. Y., Miss Laura Lamson, Miss Mary Pierson, Miss Mary Allen, Miss Emily Cheyne, Miss White and Miss Ingram. Among those present were Mrs. William C. Skinner, Mrs. Joshua W. Allen, Mrs. P. H. Ingralls, Mrs. Atwood Collins, Mrs. James E. Cune, Mrs. Dr. Shepherd, Mrs. C. C. Kimball, Miss Cooley, Mrs. G. C. Brown, Mrs. Charles R. Conover, Miss Simson, Mrs. Charles T. Welles, Mrs. George E. Taintor, Mrs. Thomas Van Buren of New York, and Mrs. Charles T. Welles, Mrs. George E. Taintor, Mrs. Thomas Van Buren of New York.

It will take the friends of Eugene F. Pike of Chicago some time to accustom themselves to him as a married man, so dim used have they been to regarding him as the most incorrigible bachelor in town, since Mr. Pike's marriage to Miss Fay Cramer early in May. The announcement of the engagement was one of the most brilliant events seen in the Cream City during the month of June, though it brought grief to the hearts of innumerable fair Chicago maidens that might be pardoned for falling to relish the spectacle of one of the most eligible men in town being offered up by an outsider. Mr. Pike, who is a Yale graduate of '91, is one of the very rich young men of Chicago. He is conspicuous in any sort of gathering by reason of his great height.
Miss Marion Cheney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cheney of Hartford road, South Manchester, and Dr. Edmund Jean Rhodebeck of Flushing, N.Y., will be married on Wednesday afternoon, June 16, at 4:30 at the home of the bride's parents. The ceremony will be followed by a reception. The bride, who made her debut two years ago, was active in the work of the Hartford chapter, American Red Cross.
Betrothed Beneath A Tree Thirty-Five Years Ago.

Lovers' Quarrel Resulted in a Long Entrainment.

Wed at Last to Live Happily Ever Afterwards.

Frederick Perkins, a brother of Attorney went West about two years after his marriage to Mrs. Jane widow of the late Col. Perkins, to visit and was invited in this state. The marriage was registered in connection with the two who are now on the side of the altar society, of which the bride is an active member. Twelve candles stood on a massive oak, which in the rear table of the chancel, and they were last summer, who first Weston. The bride is the eldest daughter of the late colonel Gen. William Francis Bartlett of the 14th Massachusetts regiment, and is possessed of the most prominent of the younger businessmen. The union of these two families consequently awakens an unusual degree of interest, by no means confined to local limits.

The church decorations were done by the altar society, of which the bride is an active member. Twelve candles stood on the rear table within the chancel, and they were last summer, who first Weston. The bride is the eldest daughter of the late colonel Gen. William Francis Bartlett of the 14th Massachusetts regiment, and is possessed of the most prominent of the younger businessmen. The union of these two families consequently awakens an unusual degree of interest, by no means confined to local limits.

The church decorations were done by the altar society, of which the bride is an active member. Twelve candles stood on the rear table within the chancel, and they were last summer, who first Weston. The bride is the eldest daughter of the late colonel Gen. William Francis Bartlett of the 14th Massachusetts regiment, and is possessed of the most prominent of the younger businessmen. The union of these two families consequently awakens an unusual degree of interest, by no means confined to local limits.

The church decorations were done by the altar society, of which the bride is an active member. Twelve candles stood on the rear table within the chancel, and they were last summer, who first Weston. The bride is the eldest daughter of the late colonel Gen. William Francis Bartlett of the 14th Massachusetts regiment, and is possessed of the most prominent of the younger businessmen. The union of these two families consequently awakens an unusual degree of interest, by no means confined to local limits.

The church decorations were done by the altar society, of which the bride is an active member. Twelve candles stood on the rear table within the chancel, and they were last summer, who first Weston. The bride is the eldest daughter of the late colonel Gen. William Francis Bartlett of the 14th Massachusetts regiment, and is possessed of the most prominent of the younger businessmen. The union of these two families consequently awakens an unusual degree of interest, by no means confined to local limits.

The church decorations were done by the altar society, of which the bride is an active member. Twelve candles stood on the rear table within the chancel, and they were last summer, who first Weston. The bride is the eldest daughter of the late colonel Gen. William Francis Bartlett of the 14th Massachusetts regiment, and is possessed of the most prominent of the younger businessmen. The union of these two families consequently awakens an unusual degree of interest, by no means confined to local limits.

The church decorations were done by the altar society, of which the bride is an active member. Twelve candles stood on the rear table within the chancel, and they were last summer, who first Weston. The bride is the eldest daughter of the late colonel Gen. William Francis Bartlett of the 14th Massachusetts regiment, and is possessed of the most prominent of the younger businessmen. The union of these two families consequently awakens an unusual degree of interest, by no means confined to local limits.

The church decorations were done by the altar society, of which the bride is an active member. Twelve candles stood on the rear table within the chancel, and they were last summer, who first Weston. The bride is the eldest daughter of the late colonel Gen. William Francis Bartlett of the 14th Massachusetts regiment, and is possessed of the most prominent of the younger businessmen. The union of these two families consequently awakens an unusual degree of interest, by no means confined to local limits.

The church decorations were done by the altar society, of which the bride is an active member. Twelve candles stood on the rear table within the chancel, and they were last summer, who first Weston. The bride is the eldest daughter of the late colonel Gen. William Francis Bartlett of the 14th Massachusetts regiment, and is possessed of the most prominent of the younger businessmen. The union of these two families consequently awakens an unusual degree of interest, by no means confined to local limits.

The church decorations were done by the altar society, of which the bride is an active member. Twelve candles stood on the rear table within the chancel, and they were last summer, who first Weston. The bride is the eldest daughter of the late colonel Gen. William Francis Bartlett of the 14th Massachusetts regiment, and is possessed of the most prominent of the younger businessmen. The union of these two families consequently awakens an unusual degree of interest, by no means confined to local limits.

The church decorations were done by the altar society, of which the bride is an active member. Twelve candles stood on the rear table within the chancel, and they were last summer, who first Weston. The bride is the eldest daughter of the late colonel Gen. William Francis Bartlett of the 14th Massachusetts regiment, and is possessed of the most prominent of the younger businessmen. The union of these two families consequently awakens an unusual degree of interest, by no means confined to local limits.

The church decorations were done by the altar society, of which the bride is an active member. Twelve candles stood on the rear table within the chancel, and they were last summer, who first Weston. The bride is the eldest daughter of the late colonel Gen. William Francis Bartlett of the 14th Massachusetts regiment, and is possessed of the most prominent of the younger businessmen. The union of these two families consequently awakens an unusual degree of interest, by no means confined to local limits.

The church decorations were done by the altar society, of which the bride is an active member. Twelve candles stood on the rear table within the chancel, and they were last summer, who first Weston. The bride is the eldest daughter of the late colonel Gen. William Francis Bartlett of the 14th Massachusetts regiment, and is possessed of the most prominent of the younger businessmen. The union of these two families consequently awakens an unusual degree of interest, by no means confined to local limits.

The church decorations were done by the altar society, of which the bride is an active member. Twelve candles stood on the rear table within the chancel, and they were last summer, who first Weston. The bride is the eldest daughter of the late colonel Gen. William Francis Bartlett of the 14th Massachusetts regiment, and is possessed of the most prominent of the younger businessmen. The union of these two families consequently awakens an unusual degree of interest, by no means confined to local limits.

The church decorations were done by the altar society, of which the bride is an active member. Twelve candles stood on the rear table within the chancel, and they were last summer, who first Weston. The bride is the eldest daughter of the late colonel Gen. William Francis Bartlett of the 14th Massachusetts regiment, and is possessed of the most prominent of the younger businessmen. The union of these two families consequently awakens an unusual degree of interest, by no means confined to local limits.

The church decorations were done by the altar society, of which the bride is an active member. Twelve candles stood on the rear table within the chancel, and they were last summer, who first Weston. The bride is the eldest daughter of the late colonel Gen. William Francis Bartlett of the 14th Massachusetts regiment, and is possessed of the most prominent of the younger businessmen. The union of these two families consequently awakens an unusual degree of interest, by no means confined to local limits.

The church decorations were done by the altar society, of which the bride is an active member. Twelve candles stood on the rear table within the chancel, and they were last summer, who first Weston. The bride is the eldest daughter of the late colonel Gen. William Francis Bartlett of the 14th Massachusetts regiment, and is possessed of the most prominent of the younger businessmen. The union of these two families consequently awakens an unusual degree of interest, by no means confined to local limits.

The church decorations were done by the altar society, of which the bride is an active member. Twelve candles stood on the rear table within the chancel, and they were last summer, who first Weston. The bride is the eldest daughter of the late colonel Gen. William Francis Bartlett of the 14th Massachusetts regiment, and is possessed of the most prominent of the younger businessmen. The union of these two families consequently awakens an unusual degree of interest, by no means confined to local limits.

The church decorations were done by the altar society, of which the bride is an active member. Twelve candles stood on the rear table within the chancel, and they were last summer, who first Weston. The bride is the eldest daughter of the late colonel Gen. William Francis Bartlett of the 14th Massachusetts regiment, and is possessed of the most prominent of the younger businessmen. The union of these two families consequently awakens an unusual degree of interest, by no means confined to local limits.

The church decorations were done by the altar society, of which the bride is an active member. Twelve candles stood on the rear table within the chancel, and they were last summer, who first Weston. The bride is the eldest daughter of the late colonel Gen. William Francis Bartlett of the 14th Massachusetts regiment, and is possessed of the most prominent of the younger businessmen. The union of these two families consequently awakens an unusual degree of interest, by no means confined to local limits.

The church decorations were done by the altar society, of which the bride is an active member. Twelve candles stood on the rear table within the chancel, and they were last summer, who first Weston. The bride is the eldest daughter of the late colonel Gen. William Francis Bartlett of the 14th Massachusetts regiment, and is possessed of the most prominent of the younger businessmen. The union of these two families consequently awakens an unusual degree of interest, by no means confined to local limits.

The church decorations were done by the altar society, of which the bride is an active member. Twelve candles stood on the rear table within the chancel, and they were last summer, who first Weston. The bride is the eldest daughter of the late colonel Gen. William Francis Bartlett of the 14th Massachusetts regiment, and is possessed of the most prominent of the younger businessmen. The union of these two families consequently awakens an unusual degree of interest, by no means confined to local limits.
Many willing hands and happy hearts assisted in transforming “Walthom,” the home of the bride’s mother, into a bower of fragrance, and the relatives and intimate friends who were asked to the reception following the ceremony, found the cottage on Bartlett avenue beautifully decorated. The parlor and library were trimmed with laurel and smilax in graceful curves, and great clusters of rarer roses were seen on every hand. Mr Mielcz of this city sent a huge basket of choicest buds and blossoms and they were used in arranging the decorations, adding greatly to the coloring of the scene. Mr and Mrs Francis received their friends in the dining-room, a bow-window, which had been banked with gorgeous blooming flowers. As they entered the room the audience burst into an enthusiastic applause. The bridal procession of the bride, Elizabeth Perkins, all of Litchfield, and Miss A. C. McNeill, brother of the groom, was best man.

The bride wore a gown of white antique, a plain skirt cut en train, a long tulle veil pinned with diamond crescent and carried a bunch of violets and sprays of the flower in her hair. Misses Mary and Edith Bartlett wore yellow satin, with organdy over it, and carried bunches of buttercups surrounded with the blossoms in their hair. The maid of honor wore white satin and carried a bunch of hyacinths. The little girls wore lawn dresses, with lace, and carried marguerites. Reaching the chancel steps the bride was met by the groom and his best man, Fred T. Francis, and Dr Newton performed the ceremony, assisted by Rev Mr Lawrence, the Episcopal service with the ring being used. The audience stood during the service and the scene was brilliant and impressive. At the close the organ pealed the glorious Mendelssohn wedding march, and the march down the aisle followed, the bride and groom leading.

After the ceremony the wedding party proceeded to the reception, which was held at “Walthom.” The bridal suite of Mr. and Mrs. McNeill are still in slight mourning for the late secretary, the wedding ceremony was performed in the Congregational Church at midday, the ceremony was performed by Rev Charles Symington, assisted by the bride’s brother, the Rev. George B. Woodruff of Washington, D. C.

A small reception was held after the ceremony at the home of the bride’s father.

At 4 o’clock the bride and groom drove away in a buckboard to East Litchfield, where they boarded the private car of President Harriman of the New York, New Haven & Hartford road, en route to New York, where they are visiting their parents, No. 91 Woodland street. A wedding afternoon, June 12 at 6:30. The newly married couple will reside at No. 48 Willard street, in this city, where they will receive on Wednesday, after June GOODWIN—BROWN—At the residence of the bride's uncle, Charles A. Jewell, on Wednesday, June 13th, by the Rev. Francis Goodwin, nephew of the groom, Charles Whittlesey Brown and the Rev. James Goodwin of Berlin, N. H.

The residence of Col. Charles A. Jewell, 140 Washington street, was the scene of a pretty home wedding this afternoon at 4 o'clock when Rev. James Goodwin, son of Rev. Francis Goodwin, was united in marriage with Miss Frances Whittlesey Brown, eldest daughter of Mrs. Roswell W. Brown of Elm street. The house was beautifully decorated inside. The ceremony was performed under an arch of laurel between the two drawing rooms. At the end of the further room was a large mirror which gave the rooms a larger and more beautiful appearance. Palms were placed in front of the mirror and cut flowers were used to decorate other parts of the rooms.

Promptly at 4 o'clock the orchestra struck up a wedding march and the bridal party entered the main room. Silk ribbons were stretched through the length of the room to keep the guests at sufficient distance to allow the bridal party to pass up the length of the room. First came the ushers, Rev. Frank E. Shipman of Andover, Mass., and dub. A. Robinson of this city, brother of the groom, cousin of the groom and Charles Goodwin, brother of the groom. Following them came the bride, who wore a dress of white silk with lace and insertion, trimmed with pink ribbons and carrying pink roses. They wore no hats. The bridesmaids were Miss Helen Brown, sister of the bride, Miss Elizabeth Davis, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. G. Pierrepont Davis, and Miss Edith Davis, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Pierrepont Davis, and Otto Adolph Schreiber of Hoboken, N. J., were married in Trinity Chapel at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The altar was covered with laurel, the floor with peonies and hydrangeas were placed along the chancel rail and in front of the choir. The wedding procession was led by the ushers, Knight D. Cheney, Jr., of South Manchester, Burton Hallister of Cincinnati, Allan Paddock of St. Louis, E. O. Mason of Denver, William N. Runyon of Plainfield, N. J., Arthur Davis, brother of the bride, Edward A. Mitchell of New Haven, and Louis Schreiber, Jr., brother of the groom. They were followed by the bridesmaids, Miss Esther Stoddard of New Haven, Miss Lucy Taintor and Miss Alice Smith, cousins of the bride, Miss Susan Twidwell, Miss Alice Goodwin, Miss Alice Bennett, all of Hartford, and Miss Schreiber, sister of the groom. The maid of honor was Miss Louise Davis, youngest sister of the bride. The bride entered the church leading on the arm of her father. She wore a dress of white with pink ribbon and with lace. The bridesmaids and maid of honor were adorned in white muslin dresses, trimmed with pale green satin. They wore bead embroidery huss, trimmed with sweet peas.

The party were met at the chancel rail by the groom and his best man, Dr. D. C. Schultze of New York. The Rev. Francis Goodwin and the Rev. E. De F. Miel officiated. A reception followed at the residence of the bride's parents on Woodland street. Mr. Schreiber graduated from Yale in '82. He is associated in business with his father, a wool dealer.

Hartford society will miss Miss Fanny Brown and Miss Davis, who this week entered the estate of matrimony. Both were extremely popular girls and leaders in their sets. Miss Davis's charming home has been the scene of many enjoyable parties, which will be missed now, as giving parties seems to be out of the ordinary course of events. Both of the weddings were at 4 o'clock, which is unusual for Hartford weddings, but it has one advantage in giving everybody plenty of time to get ready. Mr. and Mrs. Schreiber will spend the summer between 'Fairfield and New Haven, and Mr. Schreiber's home at Hoboken, and in the fall they will probably live in New York. The Rev. Francis Goodwin will make their home at Berlin, N. H., a bustling manufacturing town, where Mr. Goodwin is rector of St. Bar- nabas Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Odds Schreiber of New York are receiving congratulations on the birth of a son.
The Pretty Japanese Villa Seen to be Occupied by the Young Couple.

The marriage of Bunkio Matsuki, the native Japanese, who has been educated in this country, to Miss Martha Putnam Meacom of Salem took place last evening at the residence of the bride's mother, 52 Bridge street, Salem. The event was a quiet, unexpected one. The couple, being in the presence of their friends, at the same time their wedding was being celebrated, went unnoticed. The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. B. Willson. The rooms were decorated with flowers and plants, and the altar was given away by the bride's mother, and looked very charming in a dress of Japanese silk. The best man was Lewis Irving Brown, son of A. Swan Brown of New York, and the maid of honor was Miss Ethel Francis Field. After the ceremony the couple left for a short trip, and whether their return will reside in the beautiful Japanese villa which was built by Mr. Matsuki in South Salem.

Mr. Matsuki was born in Japan in 1867, and was educated in the best schools of Japan and China, and through the influence of Prof. E. S. Morse went to Salem, where he and Miss Meacom were graduated in the same class. Later they were both employed in the same store in Salem, and Bunkio soon accepted a position as purchasing agent of Japanese goods, making annual trips to his native land. He is a fluent conversationalist. Miss Meacom comes of a seafaring family, being grandson and great-grandfather having been sea captains.

Another June Wedding Day.

George E. Trask – Ida M. Marsh.

Miss Ida M. Marsh of 349 Hancock street and George E. Trask, bookkeeper for W. H. McKnight, were married at 4 o'clock yesterday in a quiet wedding at the home of the bride, only relatives and immediate friends being invited from out of town and among those present were Rev. Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Young of Fitchburg and Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Marshall of Nashua, N. H. The ceremony was performed by Rev. C. A. Littlefield, formerly pastor of Asbury church, and now at Watertown, the ring being used. Miss Beasis Frothingham was maid of honor, and W. H. Marsh, brother of the bride, best man. The bride was dressed in white gros grain silk with veil and train, the train being carried by her mother, and looked very charming in a dress of white satin dress with a muslin de soir overdress with a semicircle. She wore a veil with orange blossoms and carried bride roses. Miss Maud Merritt, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and wore a gown of white satin with green ribbons, carrying a bouquet of pinks and gardenia ferns. William M. Allen of Fairhaven was best man. The ceremony took place under an arch of ferns, daisies, and roses by the friends of the bride. Mr. and Mrs. Fish will be at home at 30 Morgan street, New Bedford, after September 4.

A SWEET WEDDING ANNIVERSARY.

Mr. and Mrs. Drayton Perkins celebrated their marriage yesterday and a very pleasant wedding at the Long Hill home of the bride, Amanda Osborne, and Chester Osborne. The house at the corner of Main and Gardner streets, in which they still live, was built 49 years ago and was one of the first dwellings placed at the South end. Strangely enough, there has never been a marriage or death in the house. Of three sons, two are living, H. D. and A. C. Perkins, both of this city. The couple have also celebrated very pleasantly their silver and golden weddings.
The nuptials of Miss Fanny P. Fisk and Miss Mary Louise Lyman.

Fisk-Lyman Nuptials at the South Park M. E. Church.

A large number of relatives and friends, that filled the South Park M. E. church, witnessed the marriage of Dr. Louis Henry Fisk and Miss Mary Louise Lyman, daughter of ex-Congressman and Mrs. Dwight E. Lyman, at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. William A. Richard, using the Methodist service with the ring. The best man was Mr. Richard P. Lyman, brother of the bride, and the bridesmaid, Miss Marion Clark, cousin of the groom. The ushers were Dr. Alvin A. Hunt, L. V. Jenkins, Dr. W. E. Darling, F. Dewey Clark and Ray Good- man, Mrs. Harriet Crane-Pitblado officiated at the altar, and played appropriate selections while the guests were arriving.

The bridal procession moved up the south aisle to the strains of Lobenguerra's "Wedding March." First came the ushers, followed by the bridesmaid, and then the bride leaning on the arm of her father. The groom was met at the altar by the groom and his best man. The bride was given away by her father. During the service the organist continued to play in a subdued manner, the sweet notes of the organ being just perceptible. At the conclusion of the ceremony the couple received a multitude of their friends. It was especially fitting that the grandmother of Rev. Dr. Todd, who made the first church famous, should be married in the edifice. Miss Paddock has since her girlhood been recognized as one of Pittsfield's fairest daughters, and to her beauty has been added the charm of character and accomplishment. Mr. Crane is one of the Dalton paper-makers who has made the name of Crane familiar in nearly every household in the country, and both young people are very popular.

The church decorations, which were in charge of Miss Fanny Colt and Florist Hanford, were beautiful, and the arrangement was especially artistic and pleasing. The front of the choir gallery was completely hidden in a mass of palms and ferns, and against this bank of green, diagonally from the right end of the pulpit platform were a series of graceful paeonies, starting with a delicate pink and intensifying in color until at the top, a little to the left of the organ center, there stood a crown of huge blood-red blossoms. On either side were great branches of wild roses, hundreds of buds biding their bit of beauty, and there were few who passed without twining with maidenhair, in which blush roses were intertwined. The front of the polished pulpit was a mass of maidenhair, and a line of bright roses rested just beneath its top.

Although the ceremony was set for 7 o'clock, people began to arrive at the church a few minutes after 6, and when the bridal party entered, the edifice, including the galleries, was completely filled. Members of the Art club adorned the altar in the north aisle, headed by the newly-married couple. The bride wore a gown of salmon pink silk, with tulle over dress and ornamentation of bridal roses, and carried a bridal bouquet of white roses. The bridesmaid carried a bouquet of pink roses.

A largely-attended reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, No. 4 Annawan street, where congratulations were extended to the happy couple. The house was decorated with laurel, roses, pansies and wild flowers. Refreshments were served. The presents, which were numerous and costly, were displayed in a room on the second floor. Among the presents was a handsome chair from the Sunday-school class of the bride.

Dr. and Mrs. Fisk left on a late train for a wedding trip to Springfield and Boston. On their return they will be "at home" at No. 4 Annawan street.

A BRILLIANT HERSHIRE WEDDING.

Frederick Z. Crane and Miss Rose Paddock married in the Old First Church at Pittsfield.

Pittsfield's file of First Congregational church never had within its voting rolls a more brilliant sight than last evening's, when Miss Rose, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Frank K. Paddock, and Frederick Goodrich Crane, were married by Rev. Dr. W. V. W. Davis in the presence of a multitude of their friends. It was especially fitting that the granddaughter of Rev. Dr. Todd, who made the First church famous, should be married in the edifice. Miss Paddock has since her girlhood been recognized as one of Pittsfield's fairest daughters, and to her beauty has been added the charm of character and accomplishment. Mr. Crane is one of the Dalton paper-makers who have made the name of Crane familiar in nearly every household in the country, and both young people are very popular.

The church decorations, which were in charge of Miss Fanny Colt and Florist Hanford, were beautiful, and the arrangement was especially artistic and pleasing. The front of the choir gallery was completely hidden in a mass of palms and ferns, and against this bank of green, diagonally from the right end of the pulpit platform were a series of graceful paeonies, starting with a delicate pink and intensifying in color until at the top, a little to the left of the organ center, there stood a crown of huge blood-red blossoms. On either side were great branches of wild roses, hundreds of buds biding their bit of beauty, and there were few who passed without twining with maidenhair, in which blush roses were intertwined. The front of the polished pulpit was a mass of maidenhair, and a line of bright roses rested just beneath its top.

Although the ceremony was set for 7 o'clock, people began to arrive at the church a few minutes after 6, and when the bridal party entered, the edifice, including the galleries, was completely filled. Members of the Art club adorned the altar in the north aisle, headed by the newly-married couple. The bride wore a gown of white tulle, with flowing point lace on the waist. Her maid of honor, Miss Alice Paddock, sister of the bride, accompanied by the bride. Four other bridesmaids followed, Miss Helen Webb of Hartford, Miss Fanny Crane of Dalton, and Miss Juliana Cutting of Pittsfield and Miss Mary Crane of Dalton. They were met at the pulpit front by the groom and his best man, Julian V. Wright of Chicago.

The bride wore a simple but beautiful gown of white tulle, with flowing veil and point lace on the wrist. Her maid's wore pink organza over pink silk and carried bunches of Catherine Mermot roses. Rev. Dr. Davis read the impressive Episcopal service. The bride was given away by her father. Just after the prayer the choir, standing behind the bank of roses.
The sixth Trinity German given last evening.

Delta St. and Gayety Club Germans—Several Teas This Week—Personals and Notes.

The sixth and last Trinity german was given in Alumni Hall last evening and was led by George W. Ellis with Miss Robinson and J. M. McGann with Miss B. R. Starr. The chaperones were Mrs. P. S. Starr and Mrs. George Ellis. Among those present were F. C. Edger-tom and Miss Bennett, E. W. Robinson and Miss Lylies, DeForest Hicks and Miss Pierson, R. C. Greenley and Miss Bradley, C. J. Davis and Miss Eleanor Johnson, P. B. Morrison and Miss Ray of Brooklyn, John Strawbridge and Miss Madeleine Forrest, G. A. Quick and Miss Forbes, Mr. Pierson and Miss Whit-reidge, W. V. Vibbert and Miss Lam-on, R. F. Welsh and Miss Marie Corwin, E. S. Allen and Miss Corson, R. F. Macaulay and Miss Bulkeley, I. K. Hamilton and Miss Allen, George Wilson and Miss McCook, Mr. M. Crea and Miss McIlvain, C. L. Hall and Miss East of New Haven, W. P. Niles and Miss Sperry, Mr. Langford and Miss Richardson, D. S. Willard and Miss Dakey. A browncoat Mr. Hubbard and Miss Quick, L. V. Lockwood and Miss Burnell, C. C. Barton, Jr., and Miss Russell H. F. Tolson and Miss Knows, and Messers. Dingwall, Coffin, Hamilton and a number of graduates.

The Hartford Post.

Hartford, Monday, June 25, 1894.

Em抵押 Barnard Strong the infant child of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Strong of Hartford, was married last evening at Trinity church by Rev. Herman Lillien thal.

A Home Wedding.

Miss Frances Hall Freeman, daughter of Judge Harrison B. Freeman, and James Archibald Turnbull, Yale '92, son of Thomas C. Turnbull, assistant secretary of the Hartford Fire Insurance Co., were married at the home of her parents on Prospect avenue last evening. The Rev. Dr. Lamson was the officiating clergyman. Rollin T. Salus of 710 Prospect avenue, was best man. The bridesmaids were Misses E. H. May Daisy and Misses Julian. The church was decorated with palms and Easter lilies which formed a border around the chancel. The wedding marches were played by Howard Clapp. The bride's dress consisted of a white satin bodice and overskirt with a underskirt of silver lace worn over silver cloth, also a court train of imported satin embroidered in silver. Over this, she wore a long veil of Duchess lace caught to the hair on either side with orange blossoms. Her slippers were of silver lace. The dress of the maid of honor was of pink taffeta Georgette crapes and cream lace and the bridesmaids were dresses of deep shade of pink with silver cloth and cream lace. Following the ceremony, there was a large reception at the home of the bride's parents, for which 800 invitations were met at the doors.
mission. "Lohengrin," including the "Grand action in the bride's residence, and fifteen musicians from Seidl's Orchestra fur-ished the music. Later there was a drinky supper served by Sherry.

The bride's gown was made by Worth —a heavy white satin, high neck and court train, draped completely with point lace—and she wore diamonds. It is not possible that sweet faced Emma Spencer is well known in this city, where she has many friends. She has been at Wellesley College the past year.

ALBREE—LYON—In this city, June 7, 1894, Chester Bidwell Albree of Alle-gany City, Pa., and Miss Mary Phillips Lyon of Hartford.

PRETTY CHURCH WEDDING.

Miss Mary Lyon Becomes Mrs. Chester H. Albree.

The marriage of Chester Bidwell Albree of Pittsburg, Pa., to Mary Phillips Lyon, daughter of Dr. Irving W. Lyon of this city, was celebrated at the South Church last evening in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends.

The platform was decorated with palms and ferns. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Joseph H. Twiehell, who used the full Episcopal service. John M. Gallup officiated at the organ with Rimmon's Orchestra. The selections played while the guests were assembling were Dudley Buck's "First Sonata," overture from "The Merry

Waves of Windsor" and DuBois's "Can-tiiere Nuptiale." Mr. Gallup played the bridal march from "Lohengrin" as the bride party advanced down the main aisle of the church and Mendelssohn's "Wedding March" as the party reversed. The last selection played was from "Carmen."

The arrangement of the bridal party was pretty and effective. The bridesmaids advanced up the main aisle and met the ushers at the door. Then they made a passageway for the ushers, who marched down the aisle followed by the maid of honor and the bride. The ushers placed the arm of her father. The bridesmaids brought up the rear of the procession.

Miss Hussey of Pittsburg, a sister of the wife of Dr. Thomas Turnbull of Alle-ghany, Pa., formerly of this city, was the maid of honor and the bridesmaids were Miss Annie Bunce, Miss Mary Fenn and Miss Charlotte Huntington of this city, Miss Rogers of Springfield, Miss Constance Felicity Holley Greenewich, a cousin of the bride, and Miss Alice Holdship of Pittsburg, Pa. Frederick Albree of Pittsburg, a brother of the groom, was best man, and the ushers were Irving Phillips Lyon, brother of the bride, Frederick Holdship, Henry McKnight and Curtis G. Hussey of Pittsburg, Edward Holley of Greenwich and John Albree, Jr., of Boston.

The bride was attired in a white moire antique dress trimmed with handsome Duchess and point lace, the LINKE—Born in this city, October 14th, 1864, the above-named, Mr. Charles W. Linke, and on November 20th, 1893, his second wife, Mrs. Minnie Linke, formerly Miss Mary Ellen Steele.

LINKE—STEEL—Wedding.

On Wednesday evening at 6 o'clock occurred one of the prettiest of June home weddings. It was the marriage of Miss Mary Adelia Steele and Mr. William Louis Linke, at the home of the bride's mother, No. 1339 Broad street. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. J. T. Steele, and the niece of Representative William Begg of Thomaston. Linke has been connected for a number of years with the firm of George W. Moore & Co.

The parfors were prettily decorated with laurel, palms, ferns and cut flowers. There were present only the immediate relatives of the young couple, among whom were Miss Addie Jerolman and Mr. Edward Russ of New York, Mr. and Mrs. John Hunter of Thompsonville, Mr. William Begg, Intag of Yale College, and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Linke of New Britain. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Joseph H. Twiehell, pastor of the Asylum Hill Congregational church.

The bride wore a gown of white silk stuff with black hat trimmed with old blue. There were many beautiful presents, including several pieces of furniture, solid silver, cut glass and pictures. Redepoits were served to the guests after the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Linke left on an evening train and will be absent about three weeks on a wedding trip. Upon their return they will live at No. 19 Wethersfield avenue.

The Hartford Times.

Friday, June 29th, 1894.

MRS. COLLINS HONORED.

Her Eightieth Birthday Celebrated—Presented with a Gold Badge.

Mrs. Emily P. Collins was given a reception by the Equal Rights Club and the Woman's Relief Corps of Robert O. Tyler Post in Unity Hall last night. The Relief Corps joined with the club in celebrating Mrs. Collins's eightieth birthday.

Mrs. Collins and Miss Frances Ellen Burr organized the Equal Rights Club of this city in 1885 and for seven years Mrs. Collins was president of the club.

Unity Church parfors were prettily decorated with yellow bunting and a profusion of flowers. After the reception there were literary exercises at which Mrs. J. G. Bacon, the president of the club, presided. After a piano duet by Mrs. Elmer and Miss Tucker, Mrs. Bacon made a few introductory remarks and introduced the Rev. George Taft, pastor of Unity Church, of whom Mrs. Collins is a member. Mr. Waite spoke briefly. Miss Frances Ellen Burr read an interesting paper, giving an account of the work of the Woman's Relief Corps.
MRS. COLLINS.

The civil and social limitations then imposed upon her sex she found irksome. Why should she not be allowed to go to college and pursue some business or profession the same as her brothers could? were questions that received but one answer. It would be improper. "But why improper," she inquired. "Because you are a woman" was not a very satisfactory reply to her. Finding no outlet to her repressed activities, she engaged in teaching and finally accepted the usual career of woman, as wife and mother.

The anti-slavery struggle, in which she deeply sympathized, and the human rights which it excited led her to see that many of the legal disabilities imposed upon women were analogous to those of the slave, and she then determined to devote her energies to the emancipation of her sex, as well as they might be consistent with her family, which she justly considered of the first importance. She wrote a letter of approval and encouragement to Elizabeth Blackwell, then at the medical college at Geneva, she being the first woman to gain admittance as a medical student. This elicited a glowing reply, which was published in the great three-volume "History of Woman Suffrage.

In 1848, immediately after the first woman's rights convention was held at Seneca Falls, N. Y., where the right of suffrage was first claimed for woman, Mrs. Collins gathered a few of the intelligent women in her neighborhood in South Bristol, N. Y., and organized a woman suffrage society, said to have been the first instituted. Later, in the same year, she procured the signatures of sixty prominent men and women to a petition for woman suffrage, and the next winter sent it to her representative at Albany, who presented it to the Assembly, but it seemed to be regarded as a joke by the legislators.

At last the imperious demands of slavery and the South culminated in the firing upon Fort Sumter, secession and the civil war. The North flew to arms. The two sons of Mrs. Collins, Dr. Pelletier, a son by her first husband, and E. Burke Collins, by her second marriage, were among the brave boys who went to the rescue of their country. After the disastrous battle at New Market, Va., in 1864, Mrs. Collins went as a volunteer nurse to Martinsburg, where Dr. Pelletier was then stationed as post surgeon. Here, in hospital tents, she helped nurse the sick and wounded, till General Siegel evacuated Martinsburg on July 4 and retreated to Maryland. The next day Mrs. Collins remained, while frequent skirmishing occurred between detachments of the opposing forces and sometimes cannonading and shelling across the city. There was enough fighting to keep the hospital usually crowded with the disabled. The railroad was cut by the enemy and there were no means of procuring supplies of any kind, and there was much suffering at times for want of the necessities of life. The dead were wrapped in their blankets and carted off like cordwood to the cemetery. On the raids of the enemy to Maryland the hospital was pillaged of everything by the soldiers. The hospital saved from confiscation only by loyal people in the rural country privately sending in supplies, for the inhabitants of the city were also suffering. But at last the battles of Winchester, Fisher's Hill, and finally that of Cedar Creek, effectually cleared the valley of the enemy and opened the lines of travel, and soon after Mrs. C. returned to her home.

At this time her home was in Rochester, N. Y., but in 1869 she, with her family, moved to Louisiana. Here, before the establishment of a public signal service, she reported the weather for the Agricultural Bureau, taking observations three times a day, and reporting to the Smithsonian Institute at Washington. These were the days of the carpet-bag government, which wrought more ruin to the State than the war. The government at last was restored to its native citizens. A new Constitution was to be framed and Mrs. Collins, in conjunction with Miss F. E. Burr, of New Orleans, and Mrs. Saxon of New Orleans, was active in petitioning the convention to frame a Constitution that would allow women the full rights of citizenship. Mrs. Collins also addressed a letter, which was read to the convention by Mrs. Saxon, giving her views of a Constitution that would permit the enactment of all just and necessary laws, and yet prevent the granting of monopolies by the Legislature, which had previously been so disastrous to the prosperity of the State. Referring to the letter, which he published, the editor of a New Orleons paper said: "No man could have written a more statesmanlike paper." That Constitution only made women eligible to all school offices—a slight concession to the petitioners.

Having buried her husband, she returned to the North in 1879, and has since made her home with her son, Dr. Pelletier. True to her especial mission, the rights of women, she has appeared before the committee of each succeeding Legislature in this State to plead for the extension of suffrage to her sex, and written for it in different journals. Early in 1883 she, with Burr, organized the Hartford Equal Rights Club, and for seven years was continued as its president, and then forced her resignation upon the club.

The father of Mrs. Collins was James Parmelee of this State, who served in the war of the Revolution. He belonged in what is now known as the town of Killingworth. Her first husband was Charles Pelletier, of the regular army. The second husband was Sumr Collins of South Bristol, N. Y., a lawyer by profession. Mrs. Collins is deeply interested in the Grand Army and is a member of the Tyler Post Relief Corps in this city. She is a woman of marked personal ability and is one of the foremost woman suffragists in the State.
Mr. T. W. Russell

Mr. Thomas W. Russell was born in Greenfield, Mass., May 22, 1834, and has been a resident of this State not far from forty-five years. Practically his entire business career has been passed in Connecticut. He was a member of the general Assembly from the town of Stonington in 1856. Soon afterwards he removed to this city, and has since resided here.

Prior to 1853 he was engaged in mercantile pursuits. During that year he turned his attention to life insurance and found in that calling the work that has absorbed his thoughts and efforts for forty-two years. In point of years of service he is the senior Connecticut life underwriter in the city. Only one or two men in New England have been longer in the service.

In 1857 he was elected vice-president of the Charter Oak Life of this city and remained with that company until 1861, when he temporarily assumed the duties of actuary of the Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Company. In 1865 he became the secretary of the Connecticut General Life, which was chartered that year by the general assembly. Subsequently he was made president and manager of the company. This capacity he has passed a score of years. The history of the Connecticut General Life is the history of the president. It has been noted for its integrity, fairness in dealing with policyholders, and conservative management.

President Russell has been an active and influential factor in the social and moral life of the community. He was a member of the board of directors of the City Mission Society during a period of thirty years. This position was resigned a few months ago, as he could not longer attend to its duties. For many years he has been an officer and active supporter of the Park Congregational church and is one of its senior deacons. He has represented the Second Ward for three terms in the court of common council, and has been Complimentary Dinner to President Russell by the Connecticut General Life Insurance Company.

An exceedingly pleasant and enjoyable occasion, last evening, was the complimentary dinner given to President Thomas W. Russell by the Connecticut General Life Insurance Company at the Hotel Hartford. Mr. Russell was 70 years old yesterday and the company took advantage of the occasion to show its appreciation of his twenty-nine years of faithful and honorable service to the company in that way. Covers were laid for fifty guests and an excellent dinner was served. The guests were seated at three long tables which were decorated with flowers, potted palms and ferns. A large basket of flowers stood on the table in front of the guest of the evening. Seated at the main table on the right and left of Mr. Russell were Mayor Brainard, the Rev. C. M. Lamson, the Hon. C. J. Cole, the Hon. Franklin Chamberlain, Secretary F. V. Hudson, Dr. M. Storr, vice-president, who acted as toastmaster, Walter H. Tilden of Philadelphia, ex-Mayor John B. Talcott of New Britain and P. H. Woodward. The menu cards, handsome souvenirs of the event, contained a photograph of President Russell. Music was furnished by Beeman & Hatch's Orchestra.

The dinner was ended about 9 o'clock. The first speaker was Dr. M. Storr, who expressed the pleasure with which he welcomed, on behalf of the directors, those present, officers, agents and employees of the company. Dr. Storr said that all present showed by their presence, many from a distance, their regard and esteem for the guest of the evening. Dr. Storr commended Mr. Russell for faithful, conscientious work for the company and for his upright life.

President Russell's health was drank by hearty cheers were given for him.

Mr. Russell was greeted with hearty applause when he rose to respond to the toast of the company—his health. He spoke feelingly of the relations existing between him and his associates in the company. Mr. Russell spoke particularly of the assistance in the management of the company he had received from Dr. Storr, Mayor Brainard and the late Robert E. Day, directors. He commended the agents for the intrepidity, and for the business integrity, and the members of the clerical force for the efficiency of the company. In closing, Mr. Russell gave a brief history of the company.

Mayor Brainard responded to the toast "Hartford—Inspiration." He expressed the pride he felt in the prosperity of the company, which he described as good, strong and solid. In a few pleasant words he took the part he took, by request, in the organization of the company.

Ex-Mayor John B. Talcott of New Britain, a director of the company and a fellow-student with the toastmaster at Yale, spoke briefly of the early history of the company and the fact that the board of directors had four Yale graduates in its membership, which might in part account for the company's success.

P. H. Woodward, a director of the company, spoke to the toast "The Connecticut General—Its Methods and History," referring in the highest terms to Mr. Russell and the company.

Walter H. Tilden of Philadelphia, a former general agent of the company, sketched the history of his personal connection with it.

Robert W. Huntington, jr., actuary of the company, spoke of the feeling of the clerks that they were appreciated by the officers, and their deep regard for the president.

William G. Carroll of Philadelphia spoke of the "National Convention of Life Underwriters."

The Hon. Charles J. Cole, a director in and counsel for the company spoke of the "Legal Aspects of Insurance."

G. H. Smalley of Burlington, Vt., taking as a text "The Ethical and Educational Tendencies of Life Insurance," paid a handsome compliment to Mr. Russell as a kind and helpful friend of the company's agents.

The Rev. Dr. C. M. Lamson said that if he were to start again in life he would give one year to newspaper work, a year to law and another year to life insurance soliciting, so as to be able to know how to "get at men," before studying theology. He highly complimented the agents as disappointing him, for he scarcely expected to see so fine appearing men as life insurance agents.

Secretary F. V. Hudson spoke of "Contracts," J. C. Gorton responded for the clerks, W. M. Woodruff of Cleveland responded to the toast, "The Connecticut General in the West," and Captain T. F. Flanigan, one of the oldest clerks in point of service, gave some reminiscences of the company.

Those present, beside the speakers and those who occupied seats at the head of the table, were: Charles S. Burke, general agent, of Boston; David M. Camp, agent at Newport, Vt.; Myron F. Chase, general agent at Montpelier, Vt.; John C. Dandy, general agent at Ogdensburg, N. Y.; Lyman H. Dunlap, agent at Carthage, N. Y.; Lovell S. Eldridge, general agent at St. Johnsbury, Vt.; Albert C. Hadley, general agent at Malone, N. Y.; George H. Hawley, general agent at Bethel; Fred H. Kelly, agent at Malone, N. Y.; Alfred Lawr, general agent at Brockton, Mass.; S. Smith L'Hommedieu, general agent at South Norwalk; James Darwin Payne, general agent at Utica, N. Y.; Leumel H. Phillips, general agent at Glen Falls, N. Y.; Assistant Secretary Edward E. Peck; James A. Stratton, general agent at Plattsburg, N. Y.; Ezra S. Smith, general agent at Potsdam, N. Y.; Edward H. Vail, agent at Governor, N. Y.; Nathan H. Williams, general agent at Springfield; Loyall A. Wilson, general agent at Syracuse, N. Y., and the following connected with the home office in this city either as agents or clerks: Edwin C. Andrews, Frank F. Bishop, Frederic H. Forbes, Samuel G. Huntington, Henry K. Caskell, Frank C. Gristwood, Alfred N. Potter, Frank J. Parker and Herbert L. Knox.
I. Miss Goddard appeared, formerly of this city, a graduate of Hartford Public High School and of Oberlin College, and of Middlefield, Saturday, to Charles Atwood Kofold of Normal, Ill. Miss Goddard married.

Graduate of Hartford High School, and a Teacher in Hawaii. Carrie Winter, daughter of the Rev. Alpheus Winter, to be married in Middlefield, Saturday, to Charles Atwood Kofold of Normal, Ill. The bride is a graduate of the Hartford Public High School and of Oberlin College, and is well known in this city. For three years she was a teacher in the Sandwich Islands, and during the interest consequent upon the dethronement of Queen Liliuokalani and the establishment of the Dole provisional government wrote several graphic, descriptive letters about the change for "The Courant." The bridegroom, Mr. Kofold, has just completed a course at Harvard College, where he received the degree of Ph. D. and commendation for original work in the department of zoology. In the fall he will begin his work as an instructor in the University of Michigan.

Last Saturday was a gala day for Providence. Goddards reigned supreme and everybody delighted to honor them. The big colonial red brick, white porticoed house of William Goddard presented a very attractive appearance and Brown street, with its Goddard residences on either side, was transformed by decorations into a veritable "straight and narrow way leading unto light," and about two hundred and seventy guests found it. There were many heartburnings, however, among these uninvited ones flocking disconsolately about the campus of Brown university, peering through the spiked iron rails and sniffing delicacies from afar. The three big rooms on the right of the hall were thrown together and formed an immense apartment, which was elaborately decorated with roses and smilax. Here the guests assembled and at exactly half past twelve, to the strains of the Harvard band, the Mr. and Mrs. William Goddard of Providence, R. I. It was said yesterday that a name had not yet been selected.
Peck-Holcomb Wedding.

Mr. William Allen Peck of Springfield and Miss Hattie Ellis Holcomb of this city were married Thursday afternoon at 4:30, at the home of the bride's amit.
Mrs. A. F. Bliss, on Asylum Avenue.
A little cousin, Hillard Bryant, was the bride's attendant, holding her bouquet, and the bridesmaids were Misses Myra and Helen Bliss. The Rev. Joseph H.
Twichell officiated. A number of friends from out of town were present, Mr.
and Mrs. Peck, after their bridal tour, make their home in Chicopee, Mass.

Miss Eleanor Morgan Married.
Miss Eleanor Morgan, sister of Miss
Mauri Morgan, the harpist, who is well known in this city, was married Saturday in New York to Mr. E. S. Neely.
A New York account says:
At noon the front doors of the church were thrown open, and as the organist struck the first chord the notes of the Leningrad wedding march swang by a choir of women voices came in from the vestibule. Then fifty young ladies of
Godfrey-Morgan, who were the ushers;
Eleanor and Miss Maud Keller. Miss sister, the bride's father. The procession filled the entire length of the aisle, and when it reached the church the bridesmaids took the seats of the choir boys at the left. The maid
of honor, Miss Mauri Morgan, and the bridesmaids, Miss Lena Morgan, Miss
Eleanor and Miss Maud Keller, Miss
Catharine Campbell, and Miss Eliza
Keller, followed the choir. A. A. Jeanes,
G. H. Tiche, R. J. Greason, Jr., William
D. N. Perine, Theodore C. Mitchell and
Godfrey Morgan, who were the ushers, came next, and the bride with her brother, George Washburne Morgan, brought up the rear of the long bridal procession. The bride wore a gown of pearl-white satin. The groom was attended by James P. Harper.

Mrs. Elizabeth Jarvis of Amityville,
L. I., celebrated her 100th birthday yesterday, sixty-six of her descendents being present, including eight children and three "great-grandchildren. Until within a few months Mrs. Jarvis kept well informed in current news, both po-tical and general, but now reads little.

Thirty years ago, Thomas Nevins, EN ho
was a flush head to his appearance.
He is a student at Harvard this year. He is a son "Joe has just come in with his Greek lesson for to-morrow, so if I get a little kisses shortly you mustn't mind.
When he finds a difficulty, he consults the oracle, who is no longer so gib in his tongue as that of Dodson, and cannot save his credit by an amphibolous answer the oracle uses that adjective with description of it, so you may not think him quite so shrewdly as he pretends."

Miss Eleanor Morgan, sister of Miss
Mauri Morgan, the harpist, who is well known in this city, was married Saturday in New York to Mr. E. S. Neely.
A New York account says:
At noon the front doors of the church
were thrown open, and as the organist struck the first chord the notes of the Leningrad wedding march swang by a choir of women voices came in from the vestibule. Then fifty young ladies of
Godfrey-Morgan, who were the ushers;
Eleanor and Miss Maud Keller. Miss
sister, the bride's father. The procession filled the entire length of the aisle,
and when it reached the church the
bridesmaids took the seats of the
choir boys at the left. The maid
of honor, Miss Mauri Morgan, and the
bridesmaids, Miss Lena Morgan, Miss
Eleanor and Miss Maud Keller, Miss
Catharine Campbell, and Miss Eliza
Keller, followed the choir. A. A. Jeanes,
G. H. Tiche, R. J. Greason, Jr., William
D. N. Perine, Theodore C. Mitchell and
Godfrey Morgan, who were the ushers,
came next, and the bride with her brother, George Washburne Morgan, brought up the rear of the long bridal procession. The bride wore a gown of pearl-white satin. The groom was attended by James P. Harper.

Mrs. Elizabeth Jarvis of Amityville,
L. I., celebrated her 100th birthday yesterday, sixty-six of her descendents being present, including eight children and three "great-grandchildren. Until within a few months Mrs. Jarvis kept well informed in current news, both po-tical and general, but now reads little.

Thirty years ago, Thomas Nevins, EN ho
was a flush head to his appearance.
He is a student at Harvard this year. He is a son "Joe has just come in with his Greek lesson for to-morrow, so if I get a little kisses shortly you mustn't mind.
When he finds a difficulty, he consults
the oracle, who is no longer so gib in his tongue as that of Dodson, and cannot save his credit by an amphibolous answer
the oracle uses that adjective with description of it, so you may not think him quite so shrewdly as he pretends."

Miss Eleanor Morgan, sister of Miss
Mauri Morgan, the harpist, who is well known in this city, was married Saturday in New York to Mr. E. S. Neely.
A New York account says:
At noon the front doors of the church
were thrown open, and as the organist struck the first chord the notes of the Leningrad wedding march swang by a choir of women voices came in from the vestibule. Then fifty young ladies of
Godfrey-Morgan, who were the ushers;
Eleanor and Miss Maud Keller. Miss
sister, the bride's father. The procession filled the entire length of the aisle,
and when it reached the church the
bridesmaids took the seats of the
choir boys at the left. The maid
of honor, Miss Mauri Morgan, and the
bridesmaids, Miss Lena Morgan, Miss
Eleanor and Miss Maud Keller, Miss
Catharine Campbell, and Miss Eliza
Keller, followed the choir. A. A. Jeanes,
G. H. Tiche, R. J. Greason, Jr., William
D. N. Perine, Theodore C. Mitchell and
Godfrey Morgan, who were the ushers,
came next, and the bride with her brother, George Washburne Morgan, brought up the rear of the long bridal procession. The bride wore a gown of pearl-white satin. The groom was attended by James P. Harper.

Mrs. Elizabeth Jarvis of Amityville,
L. I., celebrated her 100th birthday yesterday, sixty-six of her descendents being present, including eight children and three "great-grandchildren. Until within a few months Mrs. Jarvis kept well informed in current news, both po-tical and general, but now reads little.

Thirty years ago, Thomas Nevins, EN ho
was a flush head to his appearance.
He is a student at Harvard this year. He is a son "Joe has just come in with his Greek lesson for to-morrow, so if I get a little kisses shortly you mustn't mind.
When he finds a difficulty, he consults
the oracle, who is no longer so gib in his tongue as that of Dodson, and cannot save his credit by an amphibolous answer
the oracle uses that adjective with description of it, so you may not think him quite so shrewdly as he pretends."

Miss Eleanor Morgan, sister of Miss
Mauri Morgan, the harpist, who is well known in this city, was married Saturday in New York to Mr. E. S. Neely.
A New York account says:
At noon the front doors of the church
were thrown open, and as the organist struck the first chord the notes of the Leningrad wedding march swang by a choir of women voices came in from the vestibule. Then fifty young ladies of
Godfrey-Morgan, who were the ushers;
Eleanor and Miss Maud Keller. Miss
sister, the bride's father. The procession filled the entire length of the aisle,
and when it reached the church the
bridesmaids took the seats of the
choir boys at the left. The maid
of honor, Miss Mauri Morgan, and the
bridesmaids, Miss Lena Morgan, Miss
Eleanor and Miss Maud Keller, Miss
Catharine Campbell, and Miss Eliza
Keller, followed the choir. A. A. Jeanes,
G. H. Tiche, R. J. Greason, Jr., William
D. N. Perine, Theodore C. Mitchell and
Godfrey Morgan, who were the ushers,
came next, and the bride with her brother, George Washburne Morgan, brought up the rear of the long bridal procession. The bride wore a gown of pearl-white satin. The groom was attended by James P. Harper.
The Republican

IN AND ABOUT SPRINGFIELD.

EXPERIENCES ON WAR SHIPS.

SOME DANGERS AND PLEASURES.

Of Service on Uncle Sam's Gun Boat—Interesting Voyages Made by Lieut C.S. Ripley.

While Springfield has always been interested in the infantry side of warfare, perhaps because of the presence of the national armory, few of her boys have been attracted to follow the branch of the service that is never dull even in time of peace— the United States navy. But the young men who have gone from this inland city to study about fighting ships have met with more than average success. While promotions must follow routine rules, and the brilliant officer often ranks on an equal foot in the army, so far as advancement goes, the opportunities afforded by the revolution of naval warfare have stimulated the Amnapolis graduates so that many have won distinction without firing a gun or launching a Whitehead torpedo at an enemy. Peace does not rob the naval officer of opportunity for adventure. The career of a fleet behind him liesSerea. The old-fashioned warship which plowed through the deep blue sea conquers that of the modern warship, and, as shrewdly as a bewitching in his youth, sweetened by the thought of his friends, and is known not to her husband the following morning. Mrs. Meech Free From Her Husband, the Nominal Defaultant.

The next case was that of Mrs. Hannah Phelps Meech, who is at present a nurse in Dr. Johnson's sanitarium, in this city. Phelps Meech, who is at present a nurse in Norwich. In February, 1885, Meech was sent to State Prison for defaulting in the payment of a note. He was graduated from the Harvard Law School, and will be associated with Mr. J. C. Wash, Horace Cornwall the Bunnell property, No. 10 Wyliys street, a brick house with twenty-four rooms, on lot 63x180 feet, to Mr. Thomas Kennedy and wife. The price paid was $7,000.

Wolcott W. Ellsworth, a son of Dr. Pinkey Ellsworth of this city, will be assistant rector of the Episcopal Church at Greenwich. He was graduated from the Berkeley Divinity School and will be ordained a deacon at the school today.

George E. Burnham, son of the late Colonel George S. Burnham, and a graduate of the Harvard Law School, leaves Hartford, to-morrow, to locate in Boston, and will be associated with Sigourney Butler, a well-known Boston lawyer. His sister will remove next week to Boston and make her home with him.

The Republican
Lieutenant Ripley has found time for some literary work. No little time and effort were expended in securing material for a history of the

The United States naval officer commanded the Connecticut

The historical studies have identified him with the

In this city Lieutenant Ripley

In the year 1887, when his

At the Clarendon Hotel, in New York

Thursday afternoon, Miss Agnes I. Macy, daughter of the late C. H. Macy of New York, was married to Judge G. W. Wheel-

The ceremony took place in a banquet hall in the

The reception rooms and dining rooms were filled with palms and flowers. After the ceremony a

In 1885 new duties came to Lieutenant Ripley, for he was made executive officer of the

But still enjoys "Lion Round with the Boys."

Norwich, July 6.—Mrs. Zippah Botham of Montville celebrated the 100th an-

She is a Centenarian.

She is a Centenarian.

She is a Centenarian.

She is a Centenarian.

She is a Centenarian.

She is a Centenarian.

She is a Centenarian.

She is a Centenarian.

She is a Centenarian.

She is a Centenarian.

She is a Centenarian.

She is a Centenarian.

She is a Centenarian.

She is a Centenarian.

She is a Centenarian.

She is a Centenarian.

She is a Centenarian.

She is a Centenarian.

She is a Centenarian.

She is a Centenarian.

She is a Centenarian.

She is a Centenarian.

She is a Centenarian.

She is a Centenarian.
Julius Hayes's Ninetieth Birthday—A Remarkable Party.

"Uncle" Julius Hayes yesterday celebrated his ninetieth birthday and about 125 of his relatives gathered to assist. He had been arranged in the family Hall, which he owns on the occasion. The meal was served with remarkable care, and all the guests had to do was to enjoy the repast.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elihu Olmsted and is a well-known young lady in East Hartford. Mr. Whitney is a rising young lawyer and has practiced some time in the Phoenix Building in Hartford. He was born in Buffalo, N. Y., educated in New York, and has always been a business man.

The wedding of Miss Jennie Adelia Olmsted and Mr. Emory Cummings Whitney took place in the Phoenix Building in Hartford, Wednesday evening, before Judge Albert C. Bill, adjutant of the Governor's Executive. The engagement is announced of Mr. and Mrs. Jeptha R. Dibble, of South Norwalk, with whom the couple will reside.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. George A. Bowman and was a very quiet and simple affair. Only the immediate relatives of the two young people were present. Mr. and Mrs. Whitney left on an early evening for their wedding journey, which included the present Attorney General, the Hon. John P. Stockton, who was in attendance.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elihu Olmsted and is a well-known young lady in East Hartford. Mr. Whitney is a rising young lawyer and has practiced some time in the Phoenix Building in Hartford. He was born in Buffalo, N. Y., educated in New York, and has always been a business man.

The wedding of Miss Jennie Adelia Olmsted and Mr. Emory Cummings Whitney took place in the Phoenix Building in Hartford, Wednesday evening, before Judge Albert C. Bill, adjutant of the Governor's Executive. The engagement is announced of Mr. and Mrs. Jeptha R. Dibble, of South Norwalk, with whom the couple will reside.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. George A. Bowman and was a very quiet and simple affair. Only the immediate relatives of the two young people were present. Mr. and Mrs. Whitney left on an early evening for their wedding journey, which included the present Attorney General, the Hon. John P. Stockton, who was in attendance.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elihu Olmsted and is a well-known young lady in East Hartford. Mr. Whitney is a rising young lawyer and has practiced some time in the Phoenix Building in Hartford. He was born in Buffalo, N. Y., educated in New York, and has always been a business man.

The wedding of Miss Jennie Adelia Olmsted and Mr. Emory Cummings Whitney took place in the Phoenix Building in Hartford, Wednesday evening, before Judge Albert C. Bill, adjutant of the Governor's Executive. The engagement is announced of Mr. and Mrs. Jeptha R. Dibble, of South Norwalk, with whom the couple will reside.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. George A. Bowman and was a very quiet and simple affair. Only the immediate relatives of the two young people were present. Mr. and Mrs. Whitney left on an early evening for their wedding journey, which included the present Attorney General, the Hon. John P. Stockton, who was in attendance.
The marriage of Lieutenant-Colonel Lucien F. Burpee and Mrs. Driggs was perfectly legal, for the marriage was from the Congregational, Episcopal, and Baptist denominations, to have one of them perform the ceremony, but they were all out of town on their vacations.

"Did Colonel Burpee look for a clergyman?" asked the reporter. Judge Bill replied that Colonel Burpee called at the houses of nine or ten clergymen belonging to the Congregational, Episcopal, and Baptist denominations, to have one of them perform the ceremony, but they were all out of town on their vacations.

"You're acquainted with Colonel Burpee, judge?"

"Oh, yes! I have known him for three or four years. The result of the divorce trial completely exceeded him."

"Do you care to say who witnessed the ceremony?"

"No. I'll prefer not. You see I have given my word to Colonel and Mrs. Burpee that I would not divulge certain matters and I do not like to break my word," was Judge Bill's reply.

The reporter appreciated Judge Bill's position and did not tempt him further to violate his word. Judge Bill very kindly gave the reporter all the information it was in his power to give. The license for the marriage was granted to Colonel Burpee and Mrs. Driggs, the divorced wife of George A. Driggs, who was in his power to give. The license was given my word to Colonel and Mrs. Burpee that I would not divulge certain matters and I do not like to break my word."

The Stoic referee found in his report that the charge against Lieutenant-Colonel Burpee and Mrs. Driggs was not sustained, but Judge Bill politely declined to state where he tied the nuptial knot that made Colonel Burpee and Mrs. Driggs "one of one flesh." All that the judge cared to say was that the marriage was perfectly legal.

"Whether the talk of resignation will continue in the divorce proceedings was received with much favor in Waterbury. One of Mr. Burpee's closest friends, in speaking of his marriage this morning, said that it was received with joy on the part of the colonel. Mrs. Driggs, he said, is entirely without a home and dependent upon the kindness of his bride. His late husband and her mother will provide for her in no way. Colonel Burpee from the first has befriended her (for which he now receives letters from all sides), and now that he and she have been proven innocent of the charges made, and she is

MRS. DRIGGS MAKES A RAID.

Scurvy Goods at the House of Her Former Husband.

We learn from the Waterbury Republican that Mrs. Lucien F. Burpee, accompanied by Constable O'Brien, went to the residence of her former husband, George A. Driggs, Monday morning, and removed a quantity of articles which she claimed as her property. Mr. Driggs and Mrs. Driggs's mother, were out of town at the time. Last night Mr. Driggs sent for a Republican reporter and asked to have the following statement published:

"All through this affair I have refused to make any statements to the newspapers. It was agreed by both sides that such a course should be followed, and I and my attorneys have kept our word. But I think it is about time I said something. Mrs. Morton, my two boys and myself have been at Watch Hill for two weeks, and I have arrived home to-night and found the house stripped of a large number of articles. Among these were wedding presents, furniture, bric-a-brac, cut glass, pictures and china ware. There was hardly enough china left to furnish our supper table. Many of these articles were the personal property of Mrs. Morton, and Mrs. Burpee had not the slightest claim on them. Even my cigar ash trays were taken. Some of the articles taken were removed since Mrs. Burpee left the house. Before Mr. Terry left for the Adirondacks and in the final settlement, it was agreed that a list of everything Mrs. Burpee claimed as hers should be prepared and given to me. I was then to send her what I thought rightfully belonged to her, and the ownership of any articles which might be in dispute was to be settled by Attorneys Terry and O'Neill. There is an agreement now in Mr. Terry's office, signed by Mr. and Mrs. Burpee, that the settlement of this matter should await Mr. Terry's return from his vacation. No list has ever been presented to me. Whatever Mrs. Burpee has asked for since September 26 last has been immediately sent to her. She runs here, I am told, several times last week and tried to get the keys of the house from my coachman's wife, but the woman would not give them to her. She came here to-night, with Constable O'Brien to protect her person, rang the bell, and when the servant girl (who had returned yesterday) opened the door and pushed past her, and entered the house. She was

Mrs. Driggs has given New Haven society something to talk about of late. In the announcement of his marriage last evening Miss Annie Morten, his fiancée, was presented as Miss Annie Morten, and Mrs. Burpee claimed as hers whatever that be, which I do not want them to have.

Mrs. Burpee claims that the articles taken were her property and that she

MARCH 16, 1900.

C.O. 100. 1899.
Mr and Mrs Forbes of This City Entertain Friends and Neighbors.

The 75th anniversary of the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. A. Forbes of Byfield, Mass., was observed by a group of neighbors who gathered together to celebrate the occasion. The house was filled with flowers and the front porch was decorated with Chinese lanterns. The weather was fair and the air was filled with the sound of music as the guests arrived.

Mrs. Forbes, who was born in Pennsylvania, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Forbes of Byfield. She is the mother of two sons and one daughter. Mr. Forbes is a retired wholesale hardware merchant. The couple have been married 75 years and have lived in the same house for all that time.

The wedding was held in 1844, and the couple has been together ever since. They have seen many changes in their lifetime, including the Civil War, the Great Depression, and World War II. They are still active in the community and are respected by all who know them.

The couple has been a fixture in the community for many years and has been involved in many charitable organizations. They are both active members of the local church and have been involved in the community's activities for many years.

Mr. Forbes is a retired wholesale hardware merchant and has been a successful businessman throughout his life. He is a respected member of the community and has been a leader in many local organizations.

Mrs. Forbes is a homemaker and has been a devoted wife and mother. She is a kind and caring person who has always been there for her family and friends.

The couple continues to live a happy life and enjoys spending time with their family and friends. They are a true examples of a long and happy marriage and have set a standard for all couples to strive for.
Mr. Bugbee in Tolland. He was born August 12, 1815, and who was a schoolmate of many nephews and nieces. Among the 21 Talcott street, who is in her 90th year, there are nine grandchildren, several of them married to men of meritorious character. There are a few who are well known as business men and traders known to the people of Tolland county. amongst all the company with reminiscences of his early life and of his many experiences in a business career in Tolland county, where he has lived the greater part of the time since he was 6 years of age. He retains his faculties to a surprising degree and is fond of nothing so much as a chat about old times.

Mr. Bugbee has five children living, Mrs. Harriet Peabody and Mrs. E. S. Moody of Mansfield, Apollos S. Bugbee of Saybrook, Arthur T. Bugbee of Meriden and Walter T. Bugbee of Springfield. These were all present yesterday with the exception of Apollos, who was unable to come. There are nine grandchildren, several of whom were present, and there were many nephews and nieces. Among the company was Mrs. Mary C. Barbour of 3 Talcott street, who is in her 9th year, and who was a schoolmate of Mr. Bugbee in Tolland.

Woodland Street to Have Another Handsome New Residence.

I. B. Davis bought yesterday of Rodney Dennis the fine building lot on the west side of Woodland street south of and adjoining the property of Charles E. Perkins. It has a front of 150 feet and is 1,500 feet deep, running back to the river. Mr. Davis will erect on the lot a handsome residence for himself. The proposed building will be one of the pleasantest in this vicinity.

Mrs. Robert H. Douthwaite will leave Hartford about September 1 and locate in Baltimore. She was married to the late Mr. Douthwaite, and will reside at No. 219 Main street and locate in Baltimore.

A. HOLLEY RUDD, 1888.

Newington.

Joseph W. Camp and Miss Mary Frances Married.

The marriage of Joseph Walter Camp and Miss Mary Adelaide Frances occurred at the Congregational Church last evening at 5 o'clock. The bride was attired in a traveling dress of steel blue with hat and gloves of the same color. Ors Stoddard and Miss Johnson, two little cousins of the bride, were the maids of honor. Mr. Haynes of Chicago, a cousin of the bridegroom, Harry A. Beadle, Alfred B. Fish and T. W. Ross were the ushers. The reception, which followed at the home of the bride, was a very quiet one. The next family relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Mary Camp, were the only ones present. The bride has been the principal of the Rockwell School in New Britain for the past five years. Mr. and Mrs. Camp will reside in Newington.
friends here and had visited here in A Was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock. attended. It is II Besides her parents she ... and Mrs. Lewis D. Parker, an aunt, and sister velars in MIca for the funeral. I press the sincere refl....,

.....

V6

....

But the way that the girls have arranged their

....

And I can't keep a cane

......

And even my trousers, my joy and pride,

......

I'd only be hooted—and quite right, too!

......

With my studs and buttons, my sisters wear;

......

And even my trousers, my joy and pride,

......

What is a little more than a day.

......

Allah, less than odd.

......

Is a little more than odd.

......

We don't want her togs—and there it ends!

......

They take our shirts in a shameful way,

......

And I can't keep a cane

......

And even my trousers, my joy and pride,

......

I'd only be hooted—and quite right, too!

......

With my studs and buttons, my sisters wear;

......

And even my trousers, my joy and pride,

......

What is a little more than a day.

......

Is a little more than odd.

......

We don't want her togs—and there it ends!

......

They take our shirts in a shameful way,

......

And I can't keep a cane

......

And even my trousers, my joy and pride,

......

I'd only be hooted—and quite right, too!

......

With my studs and buttons, my sisters wear;

......

And even my trousers, my joy and pride,

......

What is a little more than a day.

......

Is a little more than odd.

......

We don't want her togs—and there it ends!

......

They take our shirts in a shameful way,

......

And I can't keep a cane

......

And even my trousers, my joy and pride,

......

I'd only be hooted—and quite right, too!

......

With my studs and buttons, my sisters wear;

......

And even my trousers, my joy and pride,

......

What is a little more than a day.

......

Is a little more than odd.

......

We don't want her togs—and there it ends!

......

They take our shirts in a shameful way,

......

And I can't keep a cane

......

And even my trousers, my joy and pride,

......

I'd only be hooted—and quite right, too!

......

With my studs and buttons, my sisters wear;

......

And even my trousers, my joy and pride,

......

What is a little more than a day.

......

Is a little more than odd.

......

We don't want her togs—and there it ends!

......

They take our shirts in a shameful way,

......

And I can't keep a cane

......

And even my trousers, my joy and pride,

......

I'd only be hooted—and quite right, too!

......

With my studs and buttons, my sisters wear;

......

And even my trousers, my joy and pride,

......

What is a little more than a day.

......

Is a little more than odd.

......

We don't want her togs—and there it ends!

......

They take our shirts in a shameful way,
A COUNTRY WEDDING.

A HARTFORD GIRL MARRIED AT GUILFORD.

Miss Louise Knous Weds Beecher M. Crouse of Utica—Many Hartford People Present—The Wedding Festivities.

(Special to The Courant)

Guilford, Sept. 5.

This old town was the scene of a very pretty country wedding today, the occasion being the marriage of Beecher Maynard Crouse of Utica, N. Y., and Louise Shults Knous, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Knous of Hartford. Guests have been arriving in town for the last few days and there have been numerous festivities. There was a dance at the Guilford Point House Monday evening, and the groom gave a dinner to his best man and the ushers last night at the same place. Most of the visitors have been Hartford people, but many Utica people have also been here. A party of Utica people drove here on a coach from Pittsfield, Mass.

The wedding ceremony took place at 4:30 this afternoon in Christ Church, which faces the old green and was decorated under the supervision of J. Woodhull Adams, the artist, of Newark, N. J. The side walls of the church were decorated with golden rods, laurel and Indian maize, and hydrangeas were banded on each side of the chancel. A large bunch of marigolds covered the front of the reading desk. The prevailing color of the flowers was yellow, which harmonized with the color of the dresses worn by the bridal party and the flowers they carried.

During the ceremony the organist, Henry E. Fowler, played softly the music from the garden scene in "Faust." The wedding march in the chancel was introduced by the organist and the guests followed the religious ceremony, at Elincroft, the summer home of the family. This was attended by the intimate friends of both families. About 150 persons sat down to the supper.

The rambling old house was made into a temporary reception room, and new floors were laid over the old ones. Large baskets of flowers were placed on each side of the chancel. A large bunch of marigolds, were the flowers.

The ushers, who preceded the bridal party, were Charles Jones of Cincinnati, I. R. Laton of Pittsburg and Lawrence J. Woodhull of New York City. The best man was Samuel R. Maynard of Utica. Two little girls, the Misses Molly and Margaret Crouse of Utica, dressed in white and yellow, carried a bouquet of marigolds, were the bridesmaids and preceded Miss Helen T. Webb of Hartford, who was the maid of honor, and followed by the bride, who leaned on the arm of her father. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. James W. Bradin of Hartford, assisted by the Rev. Dr. W. G. Andrews of Guilford. The bride, who is a very beautiful young woman, was dressed in a gown of white satin, trimmed with point lace. She wore a diamond sunburst, the gift of the groom, and carried an ivory bound prayer book. The maid of honor wore a dress of white muslin over yellow satin. She wore a Leghorn hat with yellow ostrich tips and carried yellow flowers.

A reception at the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Knous followed the ceremony in the church and was handsomely decorated.
SPRINGFIELD, THURSDAY, SEPT. 6.

OFFICiating at Marriages—Mr Kemeter Weds Miss Copeland.

The marriage of Miss Mary Copeland and John Capen Kemeter, last evening, was undoubtedly one of the prettiest weddings ever seen in Springfield, and it took place at the home of the bride, 227 Pine street, and the ceremony was performed by Rev. Bradley Gilman, pastor of the church of the Unity, of which Miss Copeland has long been a prominent member.

The bride is the only daughter of Judge Alfred M. Copeland, one of our best-known citizens. Miss Copeland was a pupil at the Misses Howard's school, afterward studying for a year in the academic department of Smith college and for two or three years in the art school of the college, paying especial attention to water-color, in which she does charming work.

Mr. Kemeter has been on a year and a half telling the story of Japan and land where he has been employed for the past 11 years, and both he and Miss Copeland have been members of the society. The wedding was attended by a large circle of friends of the couple in Springfield and by several out-of-town guests.

At 7 o'clock Rev. Mr. Gilman, robed, entered the parlor and then, while the Springfield mandolin and guitar club played the Mendelssohn wedding march, there entered from one door the groom and his best man, his brother Charles W. Kemeter. Through another door came the two ushers, Alfred P. Warrick and William E. Gilbert, followed by the maid of honor, Miss Libby of Wiltsch, and after her the bride and the son of her father. The King's Chapel service was used and the bridal party stood within rails of evergreen and fern, along the top of which were placed sprays of white asters both inside and outside the rails. Hydrangeas were also grouped in the parlor, where the ceremony took place. The canopy over the heads of the bridal party was of hemlock and laurel with a chauvet of the so-called Easter lily in the center of the front. The corner of the room back of them was lined from floor to ceiling with laurel, and there were a number of pictures at the side just outside the rails. Hydrangeas were also used with laurel over one doorway, while the exquisite festivity of flowers was most effective. A little brother of the groom carried the ring. The ushers were Messrs. Chester W. Tennant, Edward A. Moyer, Albert R. MToggle and Harry E. Parkhurst. The bride was a gown of cream-colored silk and carried a bouquet of flowers in which was the ring. The ushers were Messrs. Chester W. Tennant, Edward A. Moyer, Albert R. MToggle and Harry E. Parkhurst. The bride was a gown of cream-colored silk and carried a bouquet of flowers in which was the ring. The ushers were Messrs. Chester W. Tennant, Edward A. Moyer, Albert R. MToggle and Harry E. Parkhurst.

After the ceremony a reception was held at which refreshments were served, and Mr and Mrs Kemeter left for a two-weeks' stay in the hills in the west of the state, after which they will return to their home at work Mondays after November 1 at 30 Berkeley street. Judge and Mrs Copeland received, addressed by Mr and Miss Kemeter, the father and sister of the bride. The guests from out of town were: Mr and Mrs A. H. Stocker, Mr. E. P. Copeland, Mr. L. B. Williams, and Mrs. Wm. C. Cope, of Chambersburg. Miss Elsie Stocker, Miss Elsie Stocker, and Miss Winnie Stocker, of Petersburg, Va. Miss Grace Plimpton of the town.

A Nine-ounce Baby.

New Orleans, September 8.—George Frou, an employee of the Crescent City Railroad Company, is the happy father of perhaps the smallest living baby in the world. The child is a male, perfect in form, and regular in shape and weight, is about nine ounces. From the crown of its tiny head to the soles of its feet is about ten inches. It is 15 years old, weighing 175 pounds, and hale and hearty. The mother is 44 and weighs 125 pounds. They have had 17 children, two of whom, besides the baby, are ill.

Of the 16 years of age, weigh 40 pounds, and is with the Harris circus. The others are a younger of 12, who is with his parents. He weighs a little over 15 pounds.

A Cow Gives Birth to Triplets.

A cow belonging to Benjamin A. Hills of East Hampton on Tuesday gave birth to triplets. Of the calves are males and one female. All three are doing well. It is a singular sight, and the oldest farmers say that it is a case without a parallel, so far as they ever heard.

Sage-Kavanagh Wedding.

The South Park M. E. church was completely filled at 7 o'clock Wednesday evening, the occasion being the wedding of the Rev. William A. Sage, pastor of the Parkville M. E. church, and Miss Margaret Ellen Kavanagh, daughter of Mrs. Jane Kavanagh of Denver, Colo. Rev. William A. Richardson, pastor of the church, was the officiating clergyman, using the beautiful service of the best church with the ring. Mr. Chester W. Tennant officiated as best man, and Miss Eva Sage and Miss Lucy Sage, sisters of the groom, were bridesmaids. A little brother of the groom carried a basket of flowers in which was the ring. The ushers were Messrs. Chester W. Tennant, Edward A. Moyer, Albert R. MToggle and Harry E. Parkhurst. The bride was a gown of cream-colored silk and carried a bouquet of flowers in which was the ring. The ushers were Messrs. Chester W. Tennant, Edward A. Moyer, Albert R. MToggle and Harry E. Parkhurst. The bride was a gown of cream-colored silk and carried a bouquet of flowers in which was the ring. The ushers were Messrs. Chester W. Tennant, Edward A. Moyer, Albert R. MToggle and Harry E. Parkhurst. The bride was a gown of cream-colored silk and carried a bouquet of flowers in which was the ring. The ushers were Messrs. Chester W. Tennant, Edward A. Moyer, Albert R. MToggle and Harry E. Parkhurst. The bride was a gown of cream-colored silk and carried a bouquet of flowers in which was the ring. The ushers were Messrs. Chester W. Tennant, Edward A. Moyer, Albert R. MToggle and Harry E. Parkhurst. The bride was a gown of cream-colored silk and carried a bouquet of flowers in which was the ring. The ushers were Messrs. Chester W. Tennant, Edward A. Moyer, Albert R. MToggle and Harry E. Parkhurst. The bride was a gown of cream-colored silk and carried a bouquet of flowers in which was the ring. The ushers were Messrs. Chester W. Tennant, Edward A. Moyer, Albert R. MToggle and Harry E. Parkhurst. The bride was a gown of cream-colored silk and carried a bouquet of flowers in which was the ring.
Miss Ursula Raymond Ely and Nathan Hunt Hall were married at the residence of the bride's mother, Mrs. J. Griffin Ely, Thursday. The parlors and staircase were decorated with flowers and trailing vines. A floral arch spanned a corner of the room and the pillars were decorated with vines surmounted by an arch of clematis. At 2 o'clock, to the strains of the wedding march from Lohengrin, the bridal couple entered, preceded by the bridesmaid, Miss Edna C. Ely, a sister of the bride, and Edwin J. Hall of Syracuse, N. Y., as best man. The bridal party stood beneath the arch of flowers, where the ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. E. F. Burr, pastor of the First Congregational Church. A reception followed, lasting nearly two hours, after which Mr. and Mrs. Hall left on the 5:20 train for a short trip. Seventy-five guests were present, including friends from Savannah, Ga., New York, Brooklyn, Providence, R. I., and Hartford.

The bride is the daughter of the late J. Griffin Ely, M. D., and granddaughter of Captain James Mather Chadwick. The groom is a graduate of Williams College and, during the past three years, has taught in institutes in Brooklyn, N. Y., and New Jersey.

HUTCHINSON—SUMNER—In Bolton, Sept. 11, by the Rev. Henry C. Robinson, Mr. Clair S. Hutchinson of Hartford and Miss Mary G. Sumner of Bolton.

Clair S. Hutchinson, bookkeeper for Smith, Northam & Co., and Miss May G. Sumner, of Bolton, were married yesterday afternoon at the bride's home, the Rev. Mr. Robinson of the Bolton Center Church officiating. The wedding was a quiet one, owing to recent family bereavement, and only a few near friends were present. Among the beautiful wedding gifts were fine pieces from Mr. Hutchinson's business associates and a check from the firm. Mr. and Mrs. Hutchinson will be absent two weeks on their wedding trip and on their return will begin housekeeping at No. 205 Main street.

SEPTEMBER 14, 1894.

A. A. Stagg, the famous Yale athlete, and once instructor at the Young Men's Christian association training school in this city, was married at Albion, N. Y., yesterday Tuesday to Miss Estelle Robertson. Mr. Stagg is connected with Prof. Harper's ready-made university at Chicago.

To be a great grandfather is a distinction. But to have a grandson who is himself a grandfather is almost unheard of. Mr. Joseph L. Partridge, who was principal of Leicester Academy about sixty years ago and who now lives in Brooklyn, N. Y., is the present great-grandfather. His great-grandson's child is not very old, but he will be long before long able to understand the actions of his great-great-grandfather. Mr. Partridge, who is pretty well, thanks. You know he is almost 100 years old.—(Worcester Gazette.)
There is little to be said of politics. Judge Lawrence was unanimously nominated by the republicans for senator, as everybody knew he would be, and the democrats are searching the back yard for a worm with which to catch so good a candidate. The republican county convention comes next Wednesday and the only contest seems to be over the commission. One or two would-be's have stretched their necks, notably Mr. Spaulding and Mr. and Mrs. Timmerman left on a wedding trip, and will return about October 15, after which time they will be "at home" to their friends.

Miss Knox is a native of Westfield, Mass. Her father died about ten years ago. He was employed at Pratt & Cadby's. Since her father's death Miss Knox has lived part of the time with her uncle, Mr. Robinson, on Grand street, Mr. and Mrs. Timmerman left on a wedding trip, and will return about October 15, after which time they will be "at home" to their friends.

Miss Knox is a native of Westfield, Mass. Her father died about ten years ago. He was employed at Pratt & Cadby's. Since her father's death Miss Knox has lived part of the time with her uncle, Mr. Robinson, on Grand street, Mr. and Mrs. Timmerman left on a wedding trip, and will return about October 15, after which time they will be "at home" to their friends.

There is little to be said of politics. Judge Lawrence was unanimously nominated by the republicans for senator, as everybody knew he would be, and the democrats are searching the back yard for a worm with which to catch so good a candidate. The republican county convention comes next Wednesday and the only contest seems to be over the commission. One or two would-be's have stretched their necks, notably Mr. Spaulding and Mr. and Mrs. Timmerman left on a wedding trip, and will return about October 15, after which time they will be "at home" to their friends.

Miss Knox is a native of Westfield, Mass. Her father died about ten years ago. He was employed at Pratt & Cadby's. Since her father's death Miss Knox has lived part of the time with her uncle, Mr. Robinson, on Grand street, Mr. and Mrs. Timmerman left on a wedding trip, and will return about October 15, after which time they will be "at home" to their friends.
The movement to preserve the old mansion of Gen Rufus Putnam in the Worcesters county town of Rutland ought to be pushed to success. This old colonial building may well be kept in the hands of the state trustees by public reservations as "a memorial of Rufus Putnam and the farmers who went out with him to found Ohio, a monument to New England influence and effort in the opening and building of the great West." There was a notable gathering in Rutland Saturday of men who are interested in this project, and approving words were spoken by Edward Everett Hale, Gen Francis A. Walker, Mr Mead of the New England magazine, Rev Calvin Stedman and Rev Dr Daniel Merriman. An organization was formed on the spot. The houses and buildings and 150 acres of land can be bought for $4000.

The committee appointed to raise funds for buying the old Gen Rufus Putnam house at Rutland—B. W. Potter of Worcester, Archibald M. Howe of Cambridge and Edwin D. Mead of Boston—have already secured $2000 or half the amount required. They have taken the property, 150 acres and the colonial mansion, and, given a mortgage for the rest—and now will welcome further contributions. Senator Hoar calls this Putnam house "the cradle of Ohio," and some Connecticut folks contend that in so doing he rob the Nauyog state of glory which is her due. But in any event the preservation of so fine a place is desirable, and here is a chance for the Buckeye state people to honor one of the spots of their beginnings.

The guests for the Cumnock-Cutting wedding Saturday evening arriving. Many will be accommodated at the Maplewood, where 50 rooms have been engaged, and others will be entertained in private families. Several dinner parties and receptions are being planned and the week will be lively socially. Among yesterday's arrivals were Mr and Mrs Cumnock of Chicago, Miss Pomeroy, Miss Dwight and Miss Sedgwick of Stockbridge and John Innes of Colorado Springs. They are quartered at the Maplewood and drove to Williamstown yesterday for an outing.

CUTTING-CUMNOCK WEDDING.

The most notable society wedding in recent years will be celebrated this evening at St Stephen's church at 8 o'clock, in the marriage of Miss Mary Pomeroy, second daughter of Col and Mrs Walter Cutting, and Arthur James Cumnock of Lowell and New York. The church will be elaborately decorated with flowers and palms and the ceremony will be performed by Rev Leonard K. Storrs of Brooklyn, a former rector of St Stephen's, assisted by Rev W. W. Newell of Stockbridge and Rev. E. Cutting. The bride's father, Samuel D. Parker of Boston, assisted at the altar. The bride is the daughter of Mr and Mrs John Harrison, and the best man is S. H. Havens of this city and J. H. Kincaid of Clarksburg, West Virginia.

The house was beautifully decorated with cut flowers, palms and ferns and one room was given up entirely to the display of the enormous wedding gifts. A largely attended reception was held immediately after the marriage and continued until about 9 o'clock, at which time Mr. and Mrs. Cutting started on a trip to Baltimore, Washington and other points.

The wedding was performed at 3 o'clock at No. 6 Ward street Wednesday, November 21.

BERRY—A daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Fred D. Berry, November 23.

BERRY—In this city, March 18, a son to Fred D. and Ella M. Berry.

LENFLEET—In this city, Friday, November 24, of a short illness, Mrs. Geo. Lenfleet, aged 47 years.

COTTING-CUMNOCK WEDDING.

The most notable society wedding in recent years will be celebrated this evening at St Stephen's church at 8 o'clock, in the marriage of Miss Mary Pomeroy, second daughter of Col and Mrs Walter Cutting, and Arthur James Cumnock of Lowell and New York. The church will be elaborately decorated with flowers and palms and the ceremony will be performed by Rev. Leonard K. Storrs of Brooklyn, a former rector of St Stephen's, assisted by Rev. W. W. Newell of Stockbridge and Rev. E. Cutting. The bride's father, Samuel D. Parker of Boston, assisted at the altar. The bride is the daughter of Mr and Mrs John Harrison, and the best man is S. H. Havens of this city and J. H. Kincaid of Clarksburg, West Virginia.

The house was beautifully decorated with cut flowers, palms and ferns and one room was given up entirely to the display of the enormous wedding gifts. A largely attended reception was held immediately after the marriage and continued until about 9 o'clock, at which time Mr. and Mrs. Cutting started on a trip to Baltimore, Washington and other points.

The wedding was performed at 3 o'clock at No. 6 Ward street Wednesday, November 21.

BERRY—A daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Fred D. Berry, November 23.

BERRY—In this city, March 18, a son to Fred D. and Ella M. Berry.

LENFLEET—In this city, Friday, November 24, of a short illness, Mrs. Geo. Lenfleet, aged 47 years.

COTTING-CUMNOCK WEDDING.

The most notable society wedding in recent years will be celebrated this evening at St Stephen's church at 8 o'clock, in the marriage of Miss Mary Pomeroy, second daughter of Col and Mrs Walter Cutting, and Arthur James Cumnock of Lowell and New York. The church will be elaborately decorated with flowers and palms and the ceremony will be performed by Rev. Leonard K. Storrs of Brooklyn, a former rector of St Stephen's, assisted by Rev. W. W. Newell of Stockbridge and Rev. E. Cutting. The bride's father, Samuel D. Parker of Boston, assisted at the altar. The bride is the daughter of Mr and Mrs John Harrison, and the best man is S. H. Havens of this city and J. H. Kincaid of Clarksburg, West Virginia.

The house was beautifully decorated with cut flowers, palms and ferns and one room was given up entirely to the display of the enormous wedding gifts. A largely attended reception was held immediately after the marriage and continued until about 9 o'clock, at which time Mr. and Mrs. Cutting started on a trip to Baltimore, Washington and other points.

The wedding was performed at 3 o'clock at No. 6 Ward street Wednesday, November 21.

BERRY—A daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Fred D. Berry, November 23.

BERRY—In this city, March 18, a son to Fred D. and Ella M. Berry.

LENFLEET—In this city, Friday, November 24, of a short illness, Mrs. Geo. Lenfleet, aged 47 years.

COTTING-CUMNOCK WEDDING.

The most notable society wedding in recent years will be celebrated this evening at St Stephen's church at 8 o'clock, in the marriage of Miss Mary Pomeroy, second daughter of Col and Mrs Walter Cutting, and Arthur James Cumnock of Lowell and New York. The church will be elaborately decorated with flowers and palms and the ceremony will be performed by Rev. Leonard K. Storrs of Brooklyn, a former rector of St Stephen's, assisted by Rev. W. W. Newell of Stockbridge and Rev. E. Cutting. The bride's father, Samuel D. Parker of Boston, assisted at the altar. The bride is the daughter of Mr and Mrs John Harrison, and the best man is S. H. Havens of this city and J. H. Kincaid of Clarksburg, West Virginia.

The house was beautifully decorated with cut flowers, palms and ferns and one room was given up entirely to the display of the enormous wedding gifts. A largely attended reception was held immediately after the marriage and continued until about 9 o'clock, at which time Mr. and Mrs. Cutting started on a trip to Baltimore, Washington and other points.

The wedding was performed at 3 o'clock at No. 6 Ward street Wednesday, November 21.

BERRY—A daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Fred D. Berry, November 23.

BERRY—In this city, March 18, a son to Fred D. and Ella M. Berry.

LENFLEET—In this city, Friday, November 24, of a short illness, Mrs. Geo. Lenfleet, aged 47 years.

COTTING-CUMNOCK WEDDING.

The most notable society wedding in recent years will be celebrated this evening at St Stephen's church at 8 o'clock, in the marriage of Miss Mary Pomeroy, second daughter of Col and Mrs Walter Cutting, and Arthur James Cumnock of Lowell and New York. The church will be elaborately decorated with flowers and palms and the ceremony will be performed by Rev. Leonard K. Storrs of Brooklyn, a former rector of St Stephen's, assisted by Rev. W. W. Newell of Stockbridge and Rev. E. Cutting. The bride's father, Samuel D. Parker of Boston, assisted at the altar. The bride is the daughter of Mr and Mrs John Harrison, and the best man is S. H. Havens of this city and J. H. Kincaid of Clarksburg, West Virginia.

The house was beautifully decorated with cut flowers, palms and ferns and one room was given up entirely to the display of the enormous wedding gifts. A largely attended reception was held immediately after the marriage and continued until about 9 o'clock, at which time Mr. and Mrs. Cutting started on a trip to Baltimore, Washington and other points.

The wedding was performed at 3 o'clock at No. 6 Ward street Wednesday, November 21.

BERRY—A daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Fred D. Berry, November 23.

BERRY—In this city, March 18, a son to Fred D. and Ella M. Berry.
The wedding of Mr. Cumnock and Miss Cutting was a grand event attended by many friends of the couple. The ceremony took place at St. Stephen's Church in Pittsfield on a summer evening.

The procession of the bride, Miss Minnie A. Cumnock and Miss Grace E. Cummock of Lowell, entered the church with orange blossoms and bouquets of white roses. The aisle was lined with white roses, and the church was decorated with arrangements of electric bulbs.

The organist played a number of effective songs while the guests were seated. The ceremony was followed by a reception dance and a wedding trip to New York.

The wedding was a joyous occasion for the couple and their families, and it was enjoyed by all who attended.
The wedding of Miss Charlotte Morton to Giles Taintor, superintendent of the western division of the New England telegraph and telephone company, was a large social event in Springfield.

The ceremony took place at the home of the bride on Mulberry street, at 2:30 o'clock, and was performed by Rev. John Cotton Brooks, rector of Christ church. Charles Taintor, brother of the groom, was best man, but there was no other attendant. The bride was attired in white satin with white tulle veil. W. H. Morton and George D. Pratt of this city, Wallace Mason of Milton and Robert Pomeroy were ushers. The bride was given away by her brother, George A. Morton of New Haven.

The house, which was all thrown open, was decorated with autumn leaves, the bannisters to the stairs, the hall, and the key window in the front parlor, where the ceremony took place, being most elaborately trimmed. After the wedding there was a reception to the Taintor family at which there were about 100 guests present. Among those present from out of town were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pisk of Milton, Miss Daves of Sharon, Miss Hope of New Haven, Miss Thayer and Miss Haywood of Boston, Mrs. John Sherwood and Samuel Sherwood of New York, Mr. and Mrs. George Ashman with Misses Ashley, Mrs. and Miss Taintor of Boston, mother and sister of the groom, Dr. and Mrs. Draper of Boston, and George Morton of New Haven. Mr. and Mrs. Taintor left on a wedding tour in the afternoon and will be gone two weeks. On their return they will live in a new home and will give "at homes" December 7 and 14.

George K. Marvin—Lilly M. Stevens.

Mrs. Lilly Dalton Stevens of this city and George K. Marvin, with Case, Lockwood & Brainard of Hartford, were married at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the home of the bride’s mother, Mrs. Charles Dalton on Pendleton avenue, Rev. R. H. Parsons officiating. The ceremony took place under Miss Dalton’s large windows in the parlor and the ring was used. The bride was clad in pearl gray handsomely trimmed with white silk, and carried a "shower" bouquet. Raildon, a gay, eight-year-old boy, was dressed as a page. C. F. Dalton, Chester W. Tenant of Hartford, Miss Elora A. Thayer of the groom, North Lymne, Ct., and Miss Kitty Dalton, sister of the bride, were ushers. There were about 30 guests, mostly from Northampton and Hartford. These were received previous to the wedding by Mr. and Mrs. Dalton and Miss Dalton. The newly-wedded pair left on the 4:20 o'clock train, but the wedding tour, their carriage not escaping the customary old shoes and rice. Their home will be made at 7 Clinton street, Hartford, and they will be at home after October 20.

Charles E. Gilbert—Miss Dewey.

There was a large attendance of interested people at the wedding of Miss Jessie Morgan Dewey, daughter of Mrs. Anna S. Dewey, to William E. Gilbert, of Wethersfield, last Saturday afternoon.

The house, which was all thrown open, was decorated with autumn leaves, the bannisters to the stairs, the hall, and the key window in the front parlor, where the ceremony took place, being most elaborately trimmed. After the wedding there was a reception to the Taintor family at which there were about 100 guests present. Among those present from out of town were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pisk of Milton, Miss Daves of Sharon, Miss Hope of New Haven, Miss Thayer and Miss Haywood of Boston, Mrs. John Sherwood and Samuel Sherwood of New York, Mr. and Mrs. George Ashman with Misses Ashley, Mrs. and Miss Taintor of Boston, mother and sister of the groom, Dr. and Mrs. Draper of Boston, and George Morton of New Haven. Mr. and Mrs. Taintor left on a wedding tour in the afternoon and will be gone two weeks. On their return they will live in a new home and will give "at homes" December 7 and 14.
teller of the City national bank of this city, which took place at the residence of Leslie A. Belding, president of the common council on Graves avenue, Northampton, yesterday afternoon. Mr Belding is uncle of the bride, who formerly lived in this city. Charles Gilbert, brother of the groom, was best man, and Miss Katherine Warren of this city was bridesmaid. The nuptials took place in the parlors, which were handsomely decorated for the occasion, and Rev Charles Conklin of this city officiated. The ushers were George D. Weston, Charles W. Kemater and James P. Clark of this city. The bride was handsomely attired in a gown of white satin with train and she carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley, while the bridesmaid wore a silk dress trimmed with blue satin. The presents were rich and costly, and included a pendant of diamonds and pearls from the groom. A reception followed, which was attended by many people from this city. After a bridal trip, the couple will make their home at 6 Buckingham street in this city.
MR. GRACE WANTS DIVORCE.

Action Brought Charging Mrs. Ruana E. Pomroy Grace with Desertion.

James J. Grace of the Grace Jewelry Company of this city has brought a suit in the Supreme Court of the State of New York for a divorce from Mrs. Ruana E. Pomroy Grace, who lives at No. 45 Washington street. This is the second divorce suit brought by Mr. Grace in which they have been engaged. Dr. Charles S. Grace has his wife with having defied him. Mr. Grace himself testified that Mrs. Grace was not married to any further suit.

During the renditi, W. Pomroy and on October 17, 1894, she was married to Mr. Grace, who was a widower. The couple took an extended trip, visiting their relatives, and returned to their new home in October, 1894, in the presence of many beautiful and useful presents. After the wedding supper-Mr. and Mrs. Grace remained at the Hotel. The bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Woods, were present. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. B. Thayer, this afternoon, at their new home in the Retreat for Women. This is the second divorce of the Travelers Insurance Company.

The uncontested divorce against James J. Grace, dismissing the application of Mrs. Grace. The cause for which she applied was breach of contract.

Judge John Thayer in the superior court yesterday afternoon handed in his decision in the uncontested divorce suit of Ruana E. Grace against James J. Grace. Across the city, the couple took their departure. "Petition denied. Thayer, J." He is said not to have been satisfied that an actual fraudulent contract of marriage now exists, owing to the couple's previous marriage.

In the cities of Hartford, Albany, and other points: Mr. and Mrs. Grace were attended by the Rev. J. B. Thayer. This noon, the couple took the papers and reserved their decision.

The testimony of the two physicians and the statement of Mrs. Grace were of such a character that Thayer was convinced of Mr. Grace's case.

Mr. and Mrs. Grace have been attending an extensive trip, visiting their relatives in Pennsylvania, Connecticut, and Maine. Mrs. Grace was formerly a resident of Hartford. She is a sister of Mrs. Seth Belden and Mrs. Seth Belden. Since her marriage she has lived at Calais, Maine. Mr. William Woods has been a successful dry goods merchant in that city for fifty-one years.
Bridal Chorus Notes

In Many a Church and Home—The Alden-Biswell Nuptials in This City.

Wednesdays in October seem to be favorite dates for weddings, judging by the record this month. Each middle day of the week this month has been well filled with ceremonies so far, and the outlook is good for another busy day for ministers and ushers in the next few weeks. There were many nuptials in this city yesterday, but the church ceremony where interest centered was the marriage of Ralph P. Alden, cashier of the Springfield national bank, to Miss Maude Louise Biswell, daughter of James F. Biswell, at North church last evening. The church was very prettily decorated with palms and ferns heavily banked about the pulpit. The entrances to the pews throughout the center aisle were draped with lengths of laurel leaves tied with bows of white satin ribbon.

The wedding party arrived at the church soon after 7.30 o'clock and the wedding procession was quickly formed. The six ushers, Samuel Warriner, Roger Morgan, Harry H. Bosworth, Herbert Gago, Raymond A. Biddle, and the groom, Edward A. Carter, led the bridal party, and were followed by the bridal party, Miss Bertha D. Upham of Quincy, Ill., cousin of the bride, and two of her attendants in a dress of pale green satin. The bridesmaids, who were dressed in white satin, were Miss Louise Morris of Monson, cousin of the bride, Miss Helen Alden, sister of the groom, Miss Elizabeth Taylor and Miss Anne Glover. The bridal chorus from "Lohengrin" was played as the party came forward. The bride was prettily attired in white satin, trimmed with duchess lace, had her veil fastened by a spray of lilies of the valley and a diamond pendant, the gift of the groom. She was met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Joseph J. Tillinghast of Boston. Rev. F. B. Makepeace performed the ceremony, the bride being given away by her father. The Episcopal service was used, the organ playing "O, promise me," from "Robin Hood.

After the wedding at the church a large reception was given at the home of the bride, 148 Main street. The house was decorated with maidenhair ferns and cut flowers, and Mr. and Mrs. Alden received the congratulations of their friends under a very pretty bow of statice and roses. A large tent had been erected outside the dining-room as a supper-room, Barr doing the catering. The gifts were numerous and very pretty, consisting of a large amount of silver and cut glass, and included a chest of silver from the directors of the Springfield bank, a large etching from the Trump club and a solid silver axe service. The newly-married couple left for an extended tour during the evening, the bride being presented with a valuable bible and the groom with a guilloette, the gift of the bride. The bridal party returned about 10 o'clock and the wedding presents were displayed. Mr. and Mrs. Alden will reside at 43 School street, and were liberally showered with rice, Mr. and Mrs. Alden were followed by the bridal party, Miss Elizabeth Taylor and Miss Anne Glover. The bridal chorus from "Lohengrin" was played as the party entered the church and Menorship of the bride, assisted by the Rev. Dr. James, the pastor of the church. The best man was John Sloane, Jr., brother of the bride. The bridesmaids were Miss Florence Fisher of Hartford and Miss Kate Hutchinson of Essex, a sister of the groom. Miss Julia Hutchinson, a younger sister of the groom, was the maid of honor. The ushers were A. H. Crosby, William Porter of Farmington, J. E. Morgan of Essex and John Sloane, Jr. The bride wore a handsome dress of white brocade satin trimmed with Brussels lace. She wore a veil and orange blossoms and carried white roses. The bridesmaids wore white silk trimmed with green chiffon and carried maidenhair ferns. The maid of honor dressed in a dress of pale green satin. The bride's dress was of white silk trimmed with Brussels lace. She wore a veil and orange blossoms and carried maidenhair ferns. The maid of honor dressed in a dress of pale green satin. The bride's dress was of white silk trimmed with Brussels lace. She wore a veil and orange blossoms and carried maidenhair ferns. The maid of honor dressed in a dress of pale green satin. The bride's dress was of white silk trimmed with Brussels lace. She wore a veil and orange blossoms and carried maidenhair ferns. The maid of honor dressed in a dress of pale green satin.

YESTERDAY'S WEDDINGS.

Lohengrin—Stowe.

Edward G. Hutchinson, son of ex-collector John I. Hutchinson, and Miss Susan M. Sloane, daughter of John Sloane of No. 22 Williams street, were married at the First Baptist Church at 6 o'clock last evening by the Rev. J. S. James, pastor of the church. The best man was John Sloane, Jr., brother of the bride. The bridesmaids were Miss Florence Fisher of Hartford and Miss Kate Hutchinson of Essex, a sister of the groom. Miss Julia Hutchinson, a younger sister of the groom, was the maid of honor. The ushers were A. H. Crosby, William Porter of Farmington, J. E. Morgan of Essex and John Sloane, Jr. The bride wore a handsome dress of white brocade satin trimmed with Brussels lace. She wore a veil and orange blossoms and carried white roses. The bridesmaids wore white silk trimmed with green chiffon and carried maidenhair ferns. The maid of honor dressed in a dress of pale green satin. The bride's dress was of white silk trimmed with Brussels lace. She wore a veil and orange blossoms and carried maidenhair ferns. The maid of honor dressed in a dress of pale green satin. The bride's dress was of white silk trimmed with Brussels lace. She wore a veil and orange blossoms and carried maidenhair ferns. The maid of honor dressed in a dress of pale green satin. The bride's dress was of white silk trimmed with Brussels lace. She wore a veil and orange blossoms and carried maidenhair ferns. The maid of honor dressed in a dress of pale green satin.

Umbersed-Bowers.

Burton L. Umbserfield, Jr., and Miss Adelaide M. Bowers, daughter of the late George Bowers, were married at the residence of the groom's father, No. 52 Seymour street, at 5:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The Rev. John T. Huntington, rector of St. James's Church, officiated. The room in which the ceremony was performed was prettily decorated with white and green, and white chrysanths. The house was filled with friends of the couple. From 6:30 to 9 o'clock there was a reception at the residence of the bride's parents, No. 51 Seymour street, where Mr. and Mrs. Hutchinson left last night for a wedding trip of ten days and upon their return will live in Farmington, where Mr. Hutchinson is bookkeeper in the bank.

Wiley—Howard—in this city, Oct. 2, at the residence of the bride's parents, No. 51 Collins street, by the Rev. Frederick Stanley Root, assisted by the Rev. Dr. George M. Stowe, Clarence H. Wildey and Eliza Cutter Howard, both of this city.
Mr. Wiley and Miss Howard Married at the Bride's Home.

Clarence H. Wiley, of the firm of William H. Wiley & Son, and Miss Julia C. Howard, daughter of Frank L. Howard, were married at the residence of the bride's parents, No. 150 Collins street, at 7:30 o'clock last night. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Frederick Stanley Root, assisted by the Rev. Dr. George M. Stone. The best man was Arthur Miller of Meriden and the bridesmaids were Miss Mary A. Holbrook, Miss Edith M. Howard, Miss Florence Richardson, Miss Edith Very, Miss Ada Woodford, all of this city, and Miss Alice Thrall of Detroit. The maid of honor was Mrs. Helen E. Howard, a sister of the bride. The ushers were Frank E. Howard, James L. Howard, jr., William Post, George M. Lander, jr., New Britain, George Hurlburt and Allan Bills. The rooms were decorated with white chrysanthemums, palms and green plants. A reception followed the ceremony, lasting from 8 to 10 o'clock. Emmonse's Orchestra furnished the music and Habenstein catered. The veranda was enclosed with canvas, and decorated in such a manner as to make a pleasant promenade. Mr. and Mrs. Wiley will live at No. 122 Collins street upon their return from their wedding trip.

Nason—Spencer

At the South Congregational Church last evening, Charles R. Nason, son of A. F. Nason, superintendent of agents of the Aetna Life Insurance Company, and Fannie Esther Spencer, daughter of Mrs. Frances E. Spencer, were married, the Rev. Dr. E. P. Parker officiating. The wedding procession entered the side aisle of the "Lohengrin" sound mixed from the organ, the groom, sister of the bride, Miss Grace A. Nason, sister of the groom, gown in taffeta silk, carrying a bouquet of white chrysanthemums. The bride, on the arm of the groom, wore a gown of ivory white silk trimmed with Duchess lace and carried a bouquet of white roses. Gurnham B. Humphrey of Wolfsboro, N. H., a cousin of the groom, was best man, and the ushers were Archie H. Looms and Walter S. Brown, cousins of the bride, Hubert S. Tracy, Edwin K. Barrows and Buffum Noyes, all of this city. The bridesmaids wore handsome-sword scarlet pins, the gift of the groom.

After the wedding there was a reception for intimate friends and relatives only, at the residence of the bride's mother, No. 7 Buckingham street. Mr. and Mrs. Nason will make a brief wedding journey and on their return will reside at No. 20 Madison street. They will be at home November 22 and 27.

Fresenius-Conrad Nuptials at Fourth Church. — Reception at Germantia Hall.

The Fourth church was completely filled at 6 o'clock Wednesday evening, the occasion being the marriage of Mr. Henry Fresenius of New Haven and Miss Bertha E. A. Conrad, daughter of Mr. Philip Conrad. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. H. H. Keelson, pastor of the church. Mr. Charles B. Hall of New Haven was best man, and the ushers were Dr. Henry F. Klenke, Messrs. John J. Steinman, John J. Dillon, John H. Wooden, and Frederick Lough of New Haven. C. D. Hermann, W. D. Hermann, Henry Schmelz, Eidel Bubser and Joseph Hamner of this city were attendants. The maid of honor was Miss Gretchen Fresenius, sister of the groom. The bridesmaids were Miss Gertrude Schulte, Miss Louise Kassenbrock and Miss Marie More of Hartford; Miss Annie Stahl of New Haven, Miss Ada Wolff and Miss Lizzie Farmer of Brooklyn, N. Y., Miss Mamie Schwanger of New London, Miss Lena Noble of Philadelphia and Miss Mamie Scherer of New York.

The ten bridesmaids, followed by the maid of honor, entered the church from the chapel and slowly marched down the center aisle to the doors. Here the bridal procession was formed. The ushers were in the lead, followed by the maid of honor, then the bride on the arm of her father, and the bridesmaids. The party was met at the altar by the groom, accompanied by the best man, and the officiating clergyman. The bride was given away by her father. The ceremony was with the ring.

After the ceremony the procession was reformed, the newly-married couple taking the lead and the bridesmaids each on the arm of an usher.

The bride wore a lovely gown of white Bengaline silk, with a crown of orange blossoms upon her head. She carried a bunch of white chrysanthemums. The bridesmaids wore white trimmed muslin gowns, trimmed with colored ribbons, and also carried chrysanthemums.

The altar was prettily decorated with palms and potted plants. Professor Gebhardt officiated at the altar and played the "Lohengrin" bridal march, "Toccata," a fugue by Bach, and a march of his own composition.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at Germania Hall, which was largely attended. The hall was elaborately decorated. The orchestra stage was almost hidden with white lace curtains relieved by a background of pink and green. A sumptuous banquet was partaken of by the bridal party and the bride and groom received the congratulations of their friends to a late hour, when dancing was in order.

Mr. and Mrs. Fresenius left on a late train for the wedding trip. On their return they will reside in New Haven. The city is a well-known brewer of that city and Yale man of the class of '83. The presents were displayed at the home of the bride's parents on Park street, their value being estimated at $6,000.

October 25, 1894. —

A Brilliant Society Wedding.

The Leedes-Morgan Nuptials.

A Marriage of Much Interest Celebrated in the East by Mr. Morgan by a Large Reception at His House.

The most brilliant ceremony which has been witnessed in the First church for many a day was the marriage of Louise, daughter of ex-Councilor and Mrs. Elisha Morgan, to Alfred Leeds of Stamford, Ct., which took place last evening. The building was crowded with friends of the bride and groom, and the beauty of the spectacle was enhanced by the contrast which the illumined and decorated interior presented to the rain-storm outside. It was undoubtedly the society event of the season and the gathering was made up of well-known people of this city and other places. The reception which followed at Mr. Morgan's hospitable home on State street was one of the largest and most elaborate ever held in this city, and the mansion was filled till a late hour with many guests who extended to the newly-married couple their heartiest congratulations.

The decorations at the church, though confined entirely to ferns and palms banked in front of and upon the platform, were decidedly artistic in their general appearance, contrasting well with the dresses of the wedding party. Over 100 invitations...
The wedding was an elaborate one and attracted the symbol of the society men. While the initials of the bride and groom are upon the other. On the lower portion were the names of all the society men in the groom's class, '87. Another very handsome piece was a solid silver fruit dish of unique design. The gift of the governor's council of 1893. Mr Morgan's gift to his daughter was a necklace of diamonds and rubies, composed of some C. P. flowers. Mrs Morgan gave a large Persian rug and an old-fashioned dressing case. Mr and Mrs Leeds gave a handsome dresser of tea and coffee set and Roger Morgan a chest of linen. The groom's present to the bride was a handsomely penned of pearls and diamonds. One of the many surprises of the wedding day was the presentation to the bride by Dr. J. S. Hallowell, of a spray of lovely apple-blossoms, which was picked in Feeding Hills out of season, a cheerful reminder of spring days in this time of falling leaves.

Among the Springfield people present at the reception were Mr. and Mrs James T. Abbe, Dr. and Mrs Chester Calcote, Mr. and Mrs W. F. Adams, Mr. and Mrs George B. Holbrook, Mr. and Mrs R. E. Hawkins, Mr. and Mrs J. W. Kirkham, Mrs H. S. Ward, ex-Mayor E. S. Bradford and Mrs W. H. Haile, Mr. and Mrs Henry K. Baker, Mr. and Mrs George Barton, Mrs Henry Alexander, and Miss Alexander. Charles Chester Billings, Mr. and Mrs Emory Meeks, Mr. and Mrs C. A. Nichols, Mrs A. H. Overman, Mr. and Mrs Homer Morriam, Mr. and Mrs L. S. Brewer, Mr. and Mrs C. L. Chapin, Mr. and Mrs Ralph P. Allen, Miss Alden, Mr. and Mrs F. A. Bill, Miss Annie Marble, Mr. and Mrs J. C. Blee, Mr. and Mrs N. D. Bill, Mr. and Mrs Frank R. Young, Miss Young, Miss William Burie, Miss Bernie, Mr. and Mrs Chester W. Bliss, ex-Mayor E. S. Bradford, and Mrs Theodore F. Brock, Miss Breck, Mr. and Mrs Louis C. Hyde, Miss Hyde, Charles C. Goodhue, Miss Goodhue, Mr. and Mrs Homer G. Gilmore, Mr. and Mrs Robert W. Day, Dr. and Mrs Luke Corcoran, Mr. and Mrs D. P. Crocker, Miss Goodhue, Mr. and Mr.

Charles M. Starkweather and Miss Lucy Williston Married at Northampton.

(Special to The Courant.)

Miss Lucy Williston, daughter of A. Lyman Williston, president of the First National Bank of Northampton, and Charles M. Starkweather, formerly of Northampton, but now with the Pope Manufacturing Company, were married this evening at the home of the bride's parents in this city. Miss Bessie Williston, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and the bridesmaids were Miss Florence Maynard, Miss Smith of Springfield, Miss Catherine Turner of Northampton and Miss Emily Starkweather, sister of the groom. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Lyman Abbott, acted as best man and the ushers were Robert S. Williston, brother of the bride, Dr. R. H. Stedman of Springfield, Mr. Williston of Boston and F. M. Starkweather, brother of the groom. The wedding was an elaborate one and a reception followed the ceremony, at which a large company of distinguished guests were present, among them the families of Amherst, Smith and Mr. Holyoke colleges.

Mr. Starkweather was graduated at Amherst in the class of 88 and Miss Williston was a student at Smith College art department. Many college friends attended the wedding. After a brief residence in New York and Mr. Starkweather will reside in Hartford.
Notable Gathering at the Starkweather-Williston Wedding Reception

Chrysanthemums and bright autumn leaves abounded at the Round Hill mansion of A. Lyman Williston at Northampton last evening, and the reception that followed the marriage of his daughter, Miss Lucy Williston, to Charles M. Starkweather of Boston, attracted a notable company of people. A student at the art college, and her companion young people in town, were a graduate and his college friend Mr. Williston’s prominent educational institution presence at the reception were Smith college, and students. Among Principal Gallagher and Mrs. 3 Mount Holyoke co cable was also a relative and intimates of the ceremony performed by the Rose of the First Church. The contracting pair, of the library, and a young people, who had the ceremony Mrs. Emilly Williston, this city, Miss, Emily A. Lyman Williston. The usher were Robert L. Williston, brother of the bride, Dr. Ralph H. Seelye of this city, Frederick M. Starkweather and Oliver B. Merrill of Boston, Prof. A. M. Fletcher of Smith college played the wedding march as the procession entered the library.

The spacious house was well filled at the reception from 6 to 8 o’clock, a throng constantly arriving and going. The remains had been enclosed and trimmed with evergreens and hundreds of fragrant flowers, which illuminated by electric lamps, made a pretty bower. Ferns and other choice flowers were along the mantel within. Barr served a choice luncheon and after the formal reception the young people remained to admire the presents and enjoy a little reception of their own, at which music was provided. Among the out-of-town guests were G. Henry Whitcomb of Worcester and M. F. Dickinson, Jr., of Boston, Rev. J. W. Dickerman and Mrs. Dickerman of Chicago, Frank G. Wilk and Mrs. Wild of New York city, Frank D. Whitcomb, Mr. and Mrs. Bond of this city. So the oldest person present was James Greenwood of Norwich, Ct., 93, a grand-uncle of the bride. The presence of the imposing assembly, including silverware, cut glass, books and pictures, Mr. and Mrs. Starkweather will for the present reside in Boston, where Mr. Starkweather is employed in the office of the Pope manufacturing company. When the offices are finally transferred to Hartford, it is expected they will reside there. Mr. Starkweather, who is the son of Charles G. Starkweather, once resided in this city, and sang in the church of the Church of the Round Hill manors.

MARRIAGE OF S. S. Hothkoss, son of ex-Labor Commissioner, and M. Hothkoss, was married Wednesday to Miss Anna Allensone. Now 22 East One Hundred and Twentieth street, New York. The ceremony took place in the First Congregational Reformed Dutch Church, New York. Mr. Hothkoss was graduated from the Yale Law School in 1891.

ALBERT B. PRESTON.

Twenty-Five Years as Night Watchman

Sketch of a Man Whose Business It Is to See That the Property of Others is Kept Safe.

How few people can say that they have served at the same pursuit in the same place for a quarter of a century! And yet that is what Mr. Albert B. Preston, the well-known bank watchman, has done, and he is not an old man, either.

Twenty-five years of sleepless nights—think of it! But Mr. Preston gets along very well, for all that, for he sleeps part of every day and that puts him in such good condition that he can keep both eyes open at night, and long practice has brought his visual organs to such perfection that it is generally reported about City Hall Square that he can see better in the dusk than in the daylight.

If any of the readers of the Times should chance to be up in the small hours of the night, and passing along Main street, he would be very apt to encounter Mr. Preston. Don’t be at all alarmed if you see him insert a key in the door of the Times office, and enter. He is the regularly appointed night editor of the paper, and has full charge of the business offices and editorial rooms from the time they are locked up in the evening until daylight. In the same way he has charge of the property of various insurance companies, banks, trust companies and stores. All night long he makes his rounds, visiting, over and over again, every place under his care.

Today Mr. Preston completes his twenty-fifth year of service as a trusted night watchman on this round of duty.

Albert B. Preston was born in Westford, in the township of Middlesex, Windham county, in 1842. His father, Josiah Preston, was the owner of a tannery. A few years after his birth to William Preston, brother of the late Alber Preston, where young Preston passed his early boyhood. When he was about 16, he went to Brooklyn, this State, and worked for William F. Williams. In the meantime, his father had moved to Hartford and began to work for E. Jewett & Sons. Albert came to Hartford in 1860, and at first was employed by Gorden Robbins to take charge of his place on Prospect Hill. Then he entered the employ of Smith, Blodget & Co., truckmen, where he remained for two years. He was then successively employed at Day & Co., where he remained for two years. When he was about 16, he went to Brooklyn, this State, and worked for William F. Williams. In the meantime, his father had moved to Hartford and began to work for E. Jewett & Sons. Albert came to Hartford in 1860, and at first was employed by Gorden Robbins to take charge of his place on Prospect Hill. Then he entered the employ of Smith, Blodget & Co., truckmen, where he remained for two years. He was then successively employed at Day & Co., where he remained for two years. When he was about 16, he went to Brooklyn, this State, and worked for William F. Williams. In the meantime, his father had moved to Hartford and began to work for E. Jewett & Sons. Albert came to Hartford in 1860, and at first was employed by Gorden Robbins to take charge of his place on Prospect Hill. Then he entered the employ of Smith, Blodget & Co., truckmen, where he remained for two years. He was then successively employed at Day & Co., where he remained for two years. When he was about 16, he went to Brooklyn, this State, and worked for William F. Williams. In the meantime, his father had moved to Hartford and began to work for E. Jewett & Sons. Albert came to Hartford in 1860, and at first was employed by Gorden Robbins to take charge of his place on Prospect Hill. Then he entered the employ of Smith, Blodget & Co., truckmen, where he remained for two years. He was then successively employed at Day & Co., where he remained for two years. When he was about 16, he went to Brooklyn, this State, and worked for William F. Williams. In the meantime, his father had moved to Hartford and began to work for E. Jewett & Sons. Albert came to Hartford in 1860, and at first was employed by Gorden Robbins to take charge of his place on Prospect Hill. Then he entered the employ of Smith, Blodget & Co., truckmen, where he remained for two years. He was then successively employed at Day & Co., where he remained for two years. When he was about 16, he went to Brooklyn, this State, and worked for William F. Williams. In the meantime, his father had moved to Hartford and began to work for E. Jewett & Sons.
CHRYSTANHEMUM WEDDING.

Delight Knox and Julia Frances Gates Married Last Evening.

A quiet home wedding took place at the home of Julia H. Gates, No. 19 Canton street, yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock, when her daughter, Julia Frances, was married to Dwight Woolard Knox, son of Frank J. Knox. The house was handsomely decorated with pointed plants and chrysanthemums. None but relatives and intimate friends were present. The officiating clergyman was the Rev. Joseph H. Twichell, also officiated at the marriage of the bride's parents. The maid of honor was Miss Georgia Lee Gates, twin sister of the bride. The groom's gift to the bride was a sunburst brooch of diamonds. Other gifts were an onyx clock from the City Guard, a Princess lamp from the Nutmeg Club, a substitute for wax candles. Mr. Knox is a member. There was also a large number of other presents. Mr. and Mrs. Knox left on an evening train south for a bridal trip, and after their return will reside at No. 28 Marshall street. They will be at home after December 31.

George Law married, ten days ago? Don't know who he is? Think a bit; or, I will tell you. He is a multi-millionaire, he is president and principal owner of the Eighth Street Car Company. He is of one of the oldest families; he is a fine-looking six-footer, with iron-gray hair. He is a sport, he is erratic, eccentric. He might have gone into the best society in the metropolis, some other choice name, or next to none at all. He could be the most elegant of gentlemen, or the biggest rowdy. All the girls of his day tried to marry him, and the daughters of those same women have been trying to do the same thing. Rich, handsome, of position, why did he not keep his position—why, why? The "whys" remained unanswered. Here is the answer. Lena Smith, a beauty, a sculptress, a writer, a girl of unusual accomplishments, met him twenty-five years ago. She was very young, 16, and greatly admired. George Law became her acceptor. The marriage was talked of as a great event to culminate. Then flashed upon society Albert Parat, a fascinating young Frenchman. He was a wonder, had more schemes than Elson himself, could capital in everything he attempted; he became the rage. He it was that invented "paraffine," a substitute for wax candles, and named the substance for himself. He played, sang, charmed women as he did men. He wanted to marry Lena Smith, but she was in the engagement with George Law and married Albert Paree; then soon the end came. Paree's supposed heart-broken away—his erratic methods turned the tide against him—in a word, he was "found out." He went away, died in a few years, and the pretty young wife and her daughter, one of the greatest beauties of the day, was seventeen not long ago, and George Law married her. Losing the mother, he waited all these years for the daughter.

Arthur W. Hassett, telegraph operator at the Western Union office, and Miss Sarah A. Gathers were married at St. Peter's Church yesterday morning by the Rev. Thomas W. Bowerick. The bride was in a pretty costume of old blues and carried a prayer-book. Mr. and Mrs. Hassett left on the noon train for a brief wedding trip to New York.

The Hartford Times.

Wednesday, October 31, 1894.

HURLBURT GOLDEN WEDDING.

Four Generations Assembled in Doing Honor to the Occasion.

The golden wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ulmsted Hurlburt of Wethersfield, which was celebrated on Tuesday afternoon from 4 till 6 o'clock and in the evening from 7 till 9, was a notable event. The Hurlburt residence was thronged with guests all the afternoon and evening until it seemed as though everyone in Wethersfield and a large number from Hartford had paid their respects to the happy couple. Mr. and Mrs. Hurlburt received their friends in the north parlor, which was beautifully decorated with flowers. They seemed to have dealt gently with the couple who have traveled together for a full half century of married life. The room was a perfect bower of flowers, tastefully arranged by Miss Edith Kilbourn and Miss Helen Lemann. On one of the walls was displayed the figures of Mr. and Mrs. Hurlburt in their wedding dress in yellow chrysanthemums. The other rooms and also the table in the dining room was beautifully decorated with the golden chrysanthemums. In the south parlor, where a cheerful open fire was crackling in the old-fashioned fireplace, the many beautiful gifts brought by the guests were displayed. One of the gifts was a saucer full of gold coins—$50 in gold—with a note of affectionate congratulations from Mr. Hurlburt's former pupils in Wethersfield.

The dining-room was one of the most attractive places in the house. It was beautifully set. A big silver coffee urn was at one end and a similar urn for chocolate at the other. Mrs. Ellen Carter of East Hartford and Mrs. Sophia Hubbard presided at the table and served the guests. Miss Edith Harrington presided at the piano, afternoon and evening. In a small room adjoining a huge punch-bowl, filled with excellent lemons, was provided for the thirsty.

Fifty years ago, Joseph Ulmsted Hurlburt, then a young school-master in East Hartford, and Miss Amelia Hills were married. Two years ago Professor Hurlburt completed his fiftieth year of service as a teacher, having been for nineteen years the principal of the Wethersfield Academy. For the past nineteen years the couple have lived in Wethersfield. They have been blessed with five children, four of whom are still living, and were present at the wedding yesterday. The daughters are Mrs. Nellie Roberts, widow of G. W. Roberts, of Middletown; Mrs. Mary L. Gould of Wethersfield, and Miss Katherine Mr. Hurlburt. There were two sons, Mr. E. E. Hurlburt of Hartford, and Henry W. Hurlburt, who died about ten years ago. His two daughters, Annie and Nellie, were present. In fact, all of the children were present. The total included eight grandchildren and one great grandchild.

The fourth generation was represented by little Miss Marian Ackley, 5 months old, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. K. A. Ackley of East Hartford, who is the daughter of Mrs. G. W. Roberts, who is the daughter of Mr. Joseph Ulmsted Hurlburt.

One of the honored guests of the evening was Mr. B. J. Hurlburt of Winsted, who was a schoolmate of Mr. Hurlburt. The guests included all the in-laws, and also close friends, all of whom Mr. Hurlburt had worked with during his long career.
Societ Wedding at Willimantown.

The event of the season in northern Berkshire society circles was the marriage of Miss Ethel Stoddard of New York and William Stearns of this city and Mr. William Burnham North of New Haven and Hartford, and Annie Louise Stevens of Hartford.

The wedding of Miss Annie Louise Stevens of this city and Mr. William Burnham North, the head of the O. B. North Manufacturing Company of New Haven, was solemnized this morning at 10:30 by the Rev. Mr. Saltounstall, William Burnham North of New Haven, and Annie Louise Stevens of Hartford.

The bridal procession, to the strains of the Lohengrin march and entered the church. The bride received of old lace worn 60 years before by her dad and both carried flowers. The one was of white hyacinths. Messrs. Wolcott, Howe, Johnson and Arthur S. Johnson of Boston, and after the ceremony an excellent orchestra furnished music and an elaborate breakfast was served.

Mr. and Mrs. North left Hartford on the 12:05 train for Boston, and will visit Halifax from which point they will start on a driving trip through Nova Scotia. On their return they will reside in New Haven.

Mr. and Mrs. North were the recipients of many handsome presents, and among these there was a good deal of solid silver.

The wedding march, played by R. O. Phelps, at the Hartford Trust Company, has been well known in society circles and is very popular. Mr. Parsons was graduated from Williams in '81. He was a member of the Kappa Alpha fraternity. He has spent most of the time since his graduation in Europe and is now the Belgian superintendent of the Union electrical company. Mr. and Mrs. North left Hartford on the 12:05 train for Boston, and after the ceremony a large number of relatives and friends were present. The bridal party passed through the strains of the Lohengrin wedding march, played by R. O. Phelps, and were met at the altar by the Rev. C. H. Smith, pastor of the church, who performed the ceremony using a selected ritual. The couple were married beneath a "true lover's knot" of white crepe, and the bride's gown was of pure white silk with chignon and pearl trimming, and she carried a bouquet of white roses. As the bridal procession passed out of the church by the south aisle children in the gallery threw roses and chrysanthemums in the path of the bride and groom.

The bride and groom were well known in society circles and in church work at the New York and Brussels, and are very popular. Mr. Parsons was graduated from Williams in '81. He was a member of the Kappa Alpha fraternity. He has spent most of the time since his graduation in Europe and is now the Belgian superintendent of the Union electrical company. Mr. and Mrs. North left Hartford on the 12:05 train for Boston, and after the ceremony a large number of relatives and friends were present. The bridal party passed through the strains of the Lohengrin wedding march, played by R. O. Phelps, and were met at the altar by the Rev. C. H. Smith, pastor of the church, who performed the ceremony using a selected ritual. The couple were married beneath a "true lover's knot" of white crepe, and the bride's gown was of pure white silk with chignon and pearl trimming, and she carried a bouquet of white roses. As the bridal procession passed out of the church by the south aisle children in the gallery threw roses and chrysanthemums in the path of the bride and groom.

The bride and groom were well known in society circles and in church work at the New York and Brussels, and are very popular. Mr. Parsons was graduated from Williams in '81. He was a member of the Kappa Alpha fraternity. He has spent most of the time since his graduation in Europe and is now the Belgian superintendent of the Union electrical company. Mr. and Mrs. North left Hartford on the 12:05 train for Boston, and after the ceremony a large number of relatives and friends were present. The bridal party passed through the strains of the Lohengrin wedding march, played by R. O. Phelps, and were met at the altar by the Rev. C. H. Smith, pastor of the church, who performed the ceremony using a selected ritual. The couple were married beneath a "true lover's knot" of white crepe, and the bride's gown was of pure white silk with chignon and pearl trimming, and she carried a bouquet of white roses. As the bridal procession passed out of the church by the south aisle children in the gallery threw roses and chrysanthemums in the path of the bride and groom.

The bride and groom were well known in society circles and in church work at the New York and Brussels, and are very popular. Mr. Parsons was graduated from Williams in '81. He was a member of the Kappa Alpha fraternity. He has spent most of the time since his graduation in Europe and is now the Belgian superintendent of the Union electrical company. Mr. and Mrs. North left Hartford on the 12:05 train for Boston, and after the ceremony a large number of relatives and friends were present. The bridal party passed through the strains of the Lohengrin wedding march, played by R. O. Phelps, and were met at the altar by the Rev. C. H. Smith, pastor of the church, who performed the ceremony using a selected ritual. The couple were married beneath a "true lover's knot" of white crepe, and the bride's gown was of pure white silk with chignon and pearl trimming, and she carried a bouquet of white roses. As the bridal procession passed out of the church by the south aisle children in the gallery threw roses and chrysanthemums in the path of the bride and groom.

The bride and groom were well known in society circles and in church work at the New York and Brussels, and are very popular. Mr. Parsons was graduated from Williams in '81. He was a member of the Kappa Alpha fraternity. He has spent most of the time since his graduation in Europe and is now the Belgian superintendent of the Union electrical company. Mr. and Mrs. North left Hartford on the 12:05 train for Boston, and after the ceremony a large number of relatives and friends were present. The bridal party passed through the strains of the Lohengrin wedding march, played by R. O. Phelps, and were met at the altar by the Rev. C. H. Smith, pastor of the church, who performed the ceremony using a selected ritual. The couple were married beneath a "true lover's knot" of white crepe, and the bride's gown was of pure white silk with chignon and pearl trimming, and she carried a bouquet of white roses. As the bridal procession passed out of the church by the south aisle children in the gallery threw roses and chrysanthemums in the path of the bride and groom.

The bride and groom were well known in society circles and in church work at the New York and Brussels, and are very popular. Mr. Parsons was graduated from Williams in '81. He was a member of the Kappa Alpha fraternity. He has spent most of the time since his graduation in Europe and is now the Belgian superintendent of the Union electrical company. Mr. and Mrs. North left Hartford on the 12:05 train for Boston, and after the ceremony a large number of relatives and friends were present. The bridal party passed through the strains of the Lohengrin wedding march, played by R. O. Phelps, and were met at the altar by the Rev. C. H. Smith, pastor of the church, who performed the ceremony using a selected ritual. The couple were married beneath a "true lover's knot" of white crepe, and the bride's gown was of pure white silk with chignon and pearl trimming, and she carried a bouquet of white roses. As the bridal procession passed out of the church by the south aisle children in the gallery threw roses and chrysanthemums in the path of the bride and groom.
WASHINGTON, November 5.-The President today appointed Frederick Fitzgerald of Connecticut to be Consul of the United States at Cognac, France.

Frederick Fitzgerald is a well-known young man of Hartford. He is a nephew of Mrs. Colt, a graduate of the Hartford High School, class of 1883, and a student of Trinity College. He entered West Point Military Academy in the class of 1882, but remained only one year, being forced to leave on account of sickness. He was commissioned as a second lieutenant in Company K, First Regiment, C. N. G., and was promoted to adjutant on Major Hickey's staff. He is a veteran of Company K. The salary of the consulship is $1,500.

The engagement is announced of Alan S. Rogers of Philadelphia, formerly of this city, to Miss Margaret McReynolds of the Insurance commissioners' office, and the contralto of the South Church Quartet. Mr. Rogers is now marine reporter on the "Philadelphia Inquirer."

WRIGHT—RICHARDSON.—In Brooklyn, N. Y., November 31, at 48 Cumberland street, by the Rev. A. C. Dixon, Robert Wright of Hartford to Miss Margaret McReynolds of Philadelphia, assisted by Mrs. W. L. Crashing of Dobbs Ferry, N. Y., daughter of C. C. Strong, city treasurer, will, with her children, spend Thanksgiving at her father's.

On Monday evening occurred the Taylor reception, between the hours of 8 and 10 o'clock. Mr. Taylor, Miss Taylor, and the debutante, Miss Mary Curtin Taylor, assisted by Mrs. Samuel Curtis of Philadelphia, received the guests. Miss Taylor wore an effective gown of rich red and yellow chiffon, and carried yellow roses, and Miss Mary Taylor wore white satin and chiffon, and carried a huge bouquet of roses, one of the many received in honor of her "coming out."
GEORGE CLAY—Finally Married.

A 15-Year-Old Bride.—His Family Very Indignant.

Louisville, November 14.—In spite of the pleadings of his children and reminiscences of his friends, General Cassius Marcellus Clay has married again. He succeeded in finding a justice of the peace yesterday morning to wed him to his 15-year-old domestic. At 10 o'clock he and his bride left the city for Shiloh, where he is in business.

MISS DORA RICHARDSON, aged 15, the Bride.

Mrs. Clay's family is in a state of excitement, the children being alarmed and afraid that their father may kidnap the youthful bride. It is reported that his youngest child, Lonnie, is the son of a Russian mistress, and seems to have the love and respect of his eccentric father. After remaining with his family until late in the afternoon, Lonnie rode across to Winchester and took the train for Shiloh, where he is in business.

The marriage took place at 10 o'clock yesterday morning, in the presence of a justice of the peace, and was witnessed by a few neighbors. The ceremony was performed in a simple and solemn manner, and the couple left the town immediately for their new home. The children of General Clay have been busy trying to prevent the marriage, but nothing more could be done. The neighborhood has been in a state of excitement, and all the children are in a state of alarm.

Notes on the Greene-Buck Wedding.

Bachelor Club Smoker—Canoe Club Supper Party at the Elm Tree Inn—Coming Gayety Club German.

"Pendennis" has taken a deeper interest than usual in the society event of the week—the marriage of Miss Florence Buck and Mr. J. Humphrey Greene. Aside from the feeling that would naturally center around the young couple, "Pen's" association with them has been particularly close and interesting, and his best wishes for their future are extended with a hearty good will.

Hartford is beginning to have a reputation for beautiful weddings, and on this occasion all the details were tasteful and harmonious. The march of a youthful wedding procession down a long aisle is something all the world ponders to see, and before the hour appointed the seats in the Asylum Hill Church were filled with guests. The altar, with its green and white plants and flowers, the bride in her soft lace dress, the bridesmaids in their tulle gowns relieved by a touch of color, the large company assembled, made a brilliant scene in the church. The reception hours were from 7:30 until 10 o'clock, and, although fewer invitations had been issued to it than to the ceremony, a large number of friends were presented to the bridal party, which included the bride and groom, Mr. and Mrs. John R. Buck, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob L. Greene, Mr. John H. Buck, Miss Helen L. Webb, Miss Sara M. Goodwin, Miss Mary B. Buck, Miss Bessie Burnell, Miss Elizabeth Day and Miss Clara P. Cone. The ushers were Messrs. E. Kent Hubbard, Lewis S. Welch, E. B. Finch, Russell T. Jones, Robert H. Schutz, Arthur Perkins and R. W. Huntington. Among the guests were Senator Platt, ex-Governor and Mrs. P. C. Lounsbury, Mrs. Elizabeth Custer, Colonel and Mrs. James Goodwin, the Rev. and Mrs. Francis Goodwin, Dr. and Mrs. G. Pierpont Davis, Colonel and Mrs. William C. Skinner, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Welch, Mr. and Mrs. Louis R. Cheney, Mr. and Mrs. John M. Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Robinson, and Judge and Mrs. W. T. Elmer of Middle- town, Mr. and Mrs. James B. Cone, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Sanborn, General and Mrs. Hawley, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dudley Warner, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bradley, Mrs. Otto Schreiber, the Misses Cheney, Burnell, Shipman, Robinson, Taintor, Hutchins, Russell, Allen, Lockwood, Goodwin, Bennett, Taft, Fenn, Phinney, Twichel, Jones, McCook, Starr, and Messrs. Robinson, Post, Fenn, Cheney, Cooley, Conklin, Wiltmore, St. John and Talcott.

GEN. CLAY FINALLY MARRIED.

15-Year-Old Bride.—His Family Very Indignant.

Louisville, November 14.—In spite of the pleadings of his children and reminiscences of his friends, General Cassius Marcellus Clay has married again. He succeeded in finding a justice of the peace yesterday morning to wed him to his 15-year-old domestic. At 10 o'clock he and

GENERAL CLAY, AGED 84.

Dora Richardson were married by Esquire R. M. Douglass. None of his children or neighbors was present. Two farm hands witnessed the ceremony. The children of General Clay have been busy trying to prevent the marriage. They sent friends to see him, but nothing more could be done. The neighborhood has been in a state of excitement, and all the children are in a state of alarm.

"Pendennis" has taken a deeper interest than usual in the society event of the week—the marriage of Miss Florence Buck and Mr. J. Humphrey Greene. Aside from the feeling that would naturally center around the young couple, "Pen's" association with them has been particularly close and interesting, and his best wishes for their future are extended with a hearty good will.

Hartford is beginning to have a reputation for beautiful weddings, and on this occasion all the details were tasteful and harmonious. The march of a youthful wedding procession down a long aisle is something all the world ponders to see, and before the hour appointed the seats in the Asylum Hill Church were filled with guests. The altar, with its green and white plants and flowers, the bride in her soft lace dress, the bridesmaids in their tulle gowns relieved by a touch of color, the large company assembled, made a brilliant scene in the church. The reception hours were from 7:30 until 10 o'clock, and, although fewer invitations had been issued to it than to the ceremony, a large number of friends were presented to the bridal party, which included the bride and groom, Mr. and Mrs. John R. Buck, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob L. Greene, Mr. John H. Buck, Miss Helen L. Webb, Miss Sara M. Goodwin, Miss Mary B. Buck, Miss Bessie Burnell, Miss Elizabeth Day and Miss Clara P. Cone. The ushers were Messrs. E. Kent Hubbard, Lewis S. Welch, E. B. Finch, Russell T. Jones, Robert H. Schutz, Arthur Perkins and R. W. Huntington. Among the guests were Senator Platt, ex-Governor and Mrs. P. C. Lounsbury, Mrs. Elizabeth Custer, Colonel and Mrs. James Goodwin, the Rev. and Mrs. Francis Goodwin, Dr. and Mrs. G. Pierpont Davis, Colonel and Mrs. William C. Skinner, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Welch, Mr. and Mrs. Louis R. Cheney, Mr. and Mrs. John M. Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Robinson, and Judge and Mrs. W. T. Elmer of Middle- town, Mr. and Mrs. James B. Cone, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Sanborn, General and Mrs. Hawley, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dudley Warner, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bradley, Mrs. Otto Schreiber, the Misses Cheney, Burnell, Shipman, Robinson, Taintor, Hutchins, Russell, Allen, Lockwood, Goodwin, Bennett, Taft, Fenn, Phinney, Twichel, Jones, McCook, Starr, and Messrs. Robinson, Post, Fenn, Cheney, Cooley, Conklin, Wiltmore, St. John and Talcott.

GENERAL CLAY'S HOUSE GUARDED.

Pews That His Children May Kidnap the Youthful Bride.

Lexington, Ky., November 10.—General Cassius M. Clay is keeping his place under armed guard for fear his children will steal his young bride away. He has instructed the guard not to allow any one to approach his house. Only one of his children came to see him on his wedding day, and that was his youngest child, Lonnie, who is reported to be the son of a Russian mistress, and seems to have the love and respect of his eccentric father. After remaining with his father until late in the afternoon, Lonnie rode across to Winchester and took the train for Shiloh, where he is in business.
The wedding of Dora Richardson, divorced wife of General Cassius M. Clay, did not come off yesterday, as was reported in an announcement yesterday morning in the Louisville Evening White Post from Richmond, Ky., that the marriage was to be celebrated this morning in St. Petersburg, Russia, at the residence of General C. H. Prentice, where the bride has made her home since her father's death. Haben-stein catered and Emmons's orchestra followed at the reception. The Rev. Frederick Stanley Root performed the ceremony, which was witnessed by the members of the two families. A reception followed. Mr. and Mrs. Richardson left in the afternoon for Boston on their wedding trip. Upon their return they will reside at No. 55 Trumbull street.

APRIL 20, 1894—
NEW ROYAL BONDS.

The betrothal of the Grand Duke Nicholas, Czarowitz, of Russia to the Princess Alix of Hesse, youngest sister of Grand Duke Ernest Louis of Hesse, is announced this morning in a dispatch from Coburg.

This royal engagement was evidently arranged long before the ducal wedding on Thursday, and the family gathering of the royalties of Germany, England, and Russia was on purpose not only to celebrate this wedding, but to help this new engagement with becoming ceremony.

The grandmother of the Czarowitz was

THE NEXT ROYAL WEDDING.

Political Significance of the Czarowitz.

Berlin, April 23.—It is reported that the betrothal of the Czarowitz and Princess Alix originated in a secret understanding which Emperor William and the Czarowitz arrived at during the latter's last visit in Berlin. The Emperor's eagerness to conclude the Russo-German commercial treaty was due largely to the prospect of the marriage. He knew that the failure of the treaty would mean the failure of the match and that his intentions would insinuate not only the marriage but also an exceptionally satisfactory entente with Russia.

Queen Victoria's presence in Coburg is regarded as completing the reunion of Russia's, Germany's and England's reigning families. It has been announced that the Duke of Saxo-Coburg-Gotha has arranged for the presence of Emperor William and several other German princes.

The intimate friends of the Coburg and Hessian houses have agreed that the Czarowitz wedding will be the belle of Queen Victoria's grandchildren. The Princess Alix, however, is worthy of much higher praise than this, for she will shine as a beautiful and fascinating woman in any society. The wedding, which is to take place on May 26, will probably be met with a more favorable reception than that of Emperor William and several other German princes.
PREPARING FOR THE FESTIVITIES.

CZAR MARRIED.

Crowning of the Czar and Princess Alix.—Three Times They Walked Around the Dais, Followed by the Bridal Party.

St. Petersburg, November 26.—The day broke cloudy and cheerless. Troops, headed by bands of music, were on the march from all directions at a very early hour and occupied all the avenues of access to the Winter Palace, massed in strong force in the Alexander Platz and on the palace quay in front of the Winter Palace, where the marriage of the Czar Nicholas II. and Princess Alix of Hesse-Darmstadt was to take place.

A salute of twenty-one guns from the fort across the river Neva announced that the bridal room had started from the Anichkov Palace, and soon a dozen closed carriages whirled swiftly along the route, a mile and a half in length, from the Anichkov Palace to the Winter Palace, amid the incessant cheers of the populace.

The Czar and his attendants arrived at the palace at 10 o'clock. All who had been invited to witness the marriage ceremony had been directed to assemble in the rooms to which they were respectively assigned by 11:30. At the very latest. In the George's Hall were assembled the council of the empire, the foreign ambassadors and the imperial Ministers and their wives. In the Concert Hall were the grand mistresses of the court, the ladies of honor, the Czarina's maid of honor, the ladies of the suites of the grand duchesses, the ladies of the suites of the foreign princesses, the senators, secretaries and other state dignitaries. The gentlemen of the court were all in gala uniform and the ladies were dressed in court costume of strawberry color, trimmed with velvet of a similar shade, with long trains and wearing long, white veils. The ladies of honor assisted Princess Alix in completing her toilet before finally assembling in the concert hall.

In Nicholas and Avant halls were assembled the military household of the Czar, the suites of foreign sovereigns and princes and grand dukes, generals and others of the guard. In the Armorial Hall were present the wives of the dignitaries of the first class, the nobles and the chief civil employees of the government. In the Field Marshal's Hall were the mayors of St. Petersburg and other cities, the leading bankers, merchants and others.

The Holy Synod and the clergy had assembled at the cathedral. The Czarina's ladies of honor left the palace, where they had assembled, and proceeded to the apartments of Princess Alix, where they assisted in completing her toilet in the presence of the Czar, the Princess of Wales and the grand duchesses.

The bride, with the Czarina, had driven during the morning without ceremony from the palace of Grand Duke Sergei, where the Czarina has been staying since the funeral of her husband. The formality of making the bride's toilet being over, the ladies of honor returned to the concert hall.

SCENE AT THE CATHEDRAL.

Ceremony Lasted Nearly Two Hours.

The St. Petersburg correspondent of the London Daily News says, in a dispatch concerning the details of the wedding of Princess Alix and Czar Nicholas, which is to take place Monday next: The bride will be dressed in the Grand Duke Sergei's palace in the historic national costume, and a small diamond crown. The procession will go to the winter palace, led by the emperor's Cossack guard. Behind the military will come the members of the imperial household, all in gilt carriages, surrounded by mounted officials, butlers and Lackeys in gorgeous uniforms. The cazar will ride in a splendid modern chariot drawn by eight white horses, with trappings of scarlet and gold. The cazar-carriage and the bride will ride in a carved, gilt carriage presented to the empress of Russia in 1740 by Frederick the Great.

Six carriages, each drawn by eight horses, will convey the grand duchesses and princesses. The carriages belonged to the Empress Catherine, and are costly works of art, painted by Watteau, Soanche and Gravatero. After them will come a brilliant cavalcade of foreign princes, generals and court ladies, followed by the empress's own carriages in white and silver uniforms. The procession will be closed by more Cossack guards. It will stop at the Kazan cathedral. The bride will walk alone at the head of the family to the platform, where the metropolitan and clerics will be present. The image of the Holy Virgin is a granddaught-
At 11:30, Prince Dolgorouki, grand master of ceremonies, and Count Vorontzov-Dashkoff, minister of the imperial court, announced to Emperor Nicholas that all was ready; and Princess Alix, her train borne by four court dignitaries, two on each side, and the extremity of the garment held by the grand chamberlain, entered the hall. She wore a jeweled crown and a robe of white brocaded silk, with a mantle of strawberry-colored velvet trimmed with gold and a double row of ermine. As the procession to the cathedral was being formed, fifty-one guns were fired from the fortress.

The order of the procession to the cathedral was as follows: The servants of the court, the servants of the chamber, the masters of ceremonies with their insignia of office, the grand master of ceremonies, Prince Dolgorouki with his insignia of office, the Czar's gentlemen of the chamber and the dignitaries of the court of the second class, the imperial marshal with his insignia of office, the dignitaries of the court of the first class, the grand minister with his insignia of office, the Czarina and her father, the King of Denmark, Emperor Nicholas and Princess Alix, the minister of the imperial household, the general of the suite and the Czar's aide-de-camp, the King and Queen of Greece, the Grand Duke of Coburg, the Prince and Princess of Wales, the Grand Duke Michael Alexandrovitch, the Grand Duke Constantine, the Grand Duchess Vera, widow of the Duke of Leuchtenberg, the Grand Duke Dmitri Constantinovitch, Nicholas Nikolaevitch, Michael Nikolaevitch, Nicholas Michaelievitch, and George Michaelievitch, the Grand Duchess Xenia, the Grand Duke Sergius Michaelievitch, Olga Alexandrovna, the Grand Duke of Leuchtenberg, Prince and Princess George Alexander, Princess of Baden, Prince William of Baden, the Princess of Oldenburg, the grand master of the court, the councilors, the chamberlains, the cabinet ministers, the members of the house of deputies, the cabinet under secretaries, the cabinet secretaries, and the general of the guard.

The procession divided on each side, and the extremity of the court, announced to Emperor Nicholas that all was ready; and Princess Alix, her father, the King of Denmark, Emperor Nicholas, and Princess Alix entered the ball. She wore a jeweled crown and a robe of strawberry-colored velvet trimmed with gold and a double row of ermine. As the procession to the cathedral was being formed, fifty-one guns were fired from the fortress.

The order of the procession to the cathedral was as follows: The servants of the court, the servants of the chamber, the masters of ceremonies with their insignia of office, the grand master of ceremonies, Prince Dolgorouki with his insignia of office, the Czar's gentlemen of the chamber and the dignitaries of the court of the second class, the imperial marshal with his insignia of office, the dignitaries of the court of the first class, the grand minister with his insignia of office, the Czarina and her father, the King of Denmark, Emperor Nicholas and Princess Alix, the minister of the imperial household, the general of the suite and the Czar's aide-de-camp, the King and Queen of Greece, the Grand Duke of Coburg, the Prince and Princess of Wales, the Grand Duke Michael Alexandrovitch, the Grand Duke Constantine, the Grand Duchess Vera, widow of the Duke of Leuchtenberg, the Grand Duke Dmitri Constantinovitch, Nicholas Nikolaevitch, Michael Nikolaevitch, Nicholas Michaelievitch, and George Michaelievitch, the Grand Duchess Xenia, the Grand Duke Sergius Michaelievitch, Olga Alexandrovna, the Grand Duke of Leuchtenberg, Prince and Princess George Alexander, Princess of Baden, Prince William of Baden, the Princess of Oldenburg, the grand master of the court, the councilors, the chamberlains, the cabinet ministers, the members of the house of deputies, the cabinet under secretaries, the cabinet secretaries, and the general of the guard.

The metropolitan conducted the Czar to a position upon a dais which had been placed in the center of the chancel behind the rail. As the Emperor took his place at the right of the dais, the Czarina led Princess Alix to him and placed her at his left hand. The Czarina then took her place in the chancel at the right of the dais. The crosses, holy water and sacred books were then placed before the Gate of Ikonostas and the marriage service in use in the orthodox church was begun by the singing of Psalm 127.

The ceremony was of the most impressive character and lasted nearly two hours. After the psalms the metropolitan added a few words of instruction to the couple, telling them what is the mystery of marriage and how in marriage the couple became one flesh, and of the union of soul and body in the holy bond of marriage.

The same questions were asked of Princess Alix with similar answers. After prayer, the metropolitan took two crowns, placing the first upon the head of the Czar, saying: "The servant of God, Nicholas, is crowned for the handmaid of God, Alix, in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost." Then placing the other crown upon the head of the bride, he said: "The handmaid of God, Alix, is crowned for the servant of God, Nicholas, in the name of the Father and of the Holy Ghost." Then the prelate blessed the couple three times, three savvayes with the Czar and with the bride, crowned them with glory and honor.

After anthems and prayers, the "common cup" was brought and blessed. The cup was filled and handed to the Czar and then to the Czarina, each taking a sip of the wine. The metropolitan then took the couple by the hands, the groomman and bridesman was pronounced behind and holding the crowns over their heads, and led them three times around the dais, the Czar and the Czarina, the procession being conducted by the Czarina's aides-de-camp. The rings were then exchanged for the last time, they having been exchanged twice before.

The prelate then took the crown from the Czar, saying: "Be thou magnified, oh bridegroom, as Abraham, and blessed as Isaac, and increased as Jacob, walking in peace and performing in righteousness the commandments of God." Then the metropolitan blessed the couple three times, thrice saying: "0 Lord, our God, crown them with glory and honor."

Taking the crown from Princess Alix, he said: "And thou, oh bride, be thou magnified as Sara, and rejoiced as Rachel, being glad in thy husband and keeping the paths of the law, for God is well pleased." The priest then offered up a prayer. After an anthem the priest pronounced the blessing.

The Czar then kissed the bride and the guests came forward to congratulate the couple. At the conclusion of the congratulations the procession dispersed, and the bride and bridesman and the wedding guests returned to the Winter Palace. As the bridal couple left the cathedral the sun shone for the first time during the day. The canons of the fortress fired a salute of 301 guns as the ceremony was concluded. The procession then reformed and returned to the Winter Palace in the order in which it had left. The Czar and his bride have now accepted God and have been consecrated by the orthodox church for the purpose of being united in the holy bond of marriage.

At the conclusion of this the prelate turned to the Czar, and said: "Hast thou, Nicholas, a good and unconstrained will and a firm determination to take unto thyself this woman, Alix, whom thou seest before thee?"

To this the Czar answered: "I have, reverend father."

The metropolitan then asked: "Thou hast not vowed thyself to another bride?"

The Czar answered: "I have not vowed myself, reverend father."

The same questions were asked of Princess Alix with similar answers.

After prayer, the metropolitan took two crowns, placing the first one upon the head of the Czar, saying: "The servant of God, Nicholas, is crowned for the handmaid of God, Alix, in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost."

The same questions were asked of Princess Alix with similar answers.

After prayer, the metropolitan took two crowns, placing the first one upon the head of the Czar, saying: "The servant of God, Nicholas, is crowned for the handmaid of God, Alix, in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost."

The metropolitan then asked: "Thou hast not vowed thyself to another bride?"

The Czar answered: "I have not vowed myself, reverend father."

The same questions were asked of Princess Alix with similar answers.
London, Nov. 15.—A dispatch to the "Central News" from Vienna says: "A telegram received here from St. Petersburg announces that the Czarina safely accouche d of a daughter at 10 o'clock this evening."

RUSSIA'S BABY PRINCESS.

St. Petersburg, November 16.—The Czar and Czarina are greatly disappointed at the fact that their second child is also a daughter. The Czar and Czarina are two "daughters" have extremely remote chances of succession to the throne.

ANOTHER DAUGHTER.

St. Petersburg, June 18.—The Czarina to-day gave birth to a daughter. The child will be named Anastasia.

The other children of the Czar and Czarina are: Olga, born November 15, 1895 (new style); Tatiana, born June 10, 1897; Maria, born June 26, 1899.
The Czar's body-guard, consisting of fifteen Cossacks, was posted for their keenness and courtly manner. They accompanied the ceremony as private gentlemen on occasion of the opening of the Imperial Council. The white feather that is generally placed on the top of the kitchen, and on occasion of the opening of the Imperial Council, keeps a special watch on the Emperor when he is engaged in conversation. On the day of his birthday, the Czar is brought into the Imperial Council dressed in a green, silver, and white robe, and surrounded by a body-guard of Cossacks, with his personal retinue of officers, and his private gentlemen, who attend him in his absence. The body-guard is composed of men who have served the Czar in battle, and who are known for their bravery and devotion to duty.

In the Northampton home of Mr. and Mrs. Cable, the well-known authors of "Tarry-a-while" in London, the marriage took place at New York last evening of a brilliant and brilliant wedding. The Czar, the son of Mrs. J. W. Cable, was married to Mrs. Anna Cable, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cable, in the Northampton home of Mr. and Mrs. Cable. The wedding took place at New York last evening of a brilliant and brilliant wedding. The Czar, the son of Mrs. J. W. Cable, was married to Mrs. Anna Cable, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cable, in the Northampton home of Mr. and Mrs. Cable.

The wedding was performed at 6 o'clock by the Rev. Paul Van Houten, D.D., a prominent member of the Alpha Delta Phi fraternity. The ceremony was witnessed by the Czar's intimate friends, and the bridal chorus from Lohengrin was preceded by Miss Dorothea W. Cable, and the carried long streamers of green ribbon to define the ceremony. The ceremony was also performed at New York last evening of a brilliant and brilliant wedding. The Czar, the son of Mrs. J. W. Cable, was married to Mrs. Anna Cable, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cable, in the Northampton home of Mr. and Mrs. Cable.

The wedding was performed at 6 o'clock by the Rev. Paul Van Houten, D.D., a prominent member of the Alpha Delta Phi fraternity. The ceremony was witnessed by the Czar's intimate friends, and the bridal chorus from Lohengrin was preceded by Miss Dorothea W. Cable, and the carried long streamers of green ribbon to define the ceremony. The ceremony was also performed at New York last evening of a brilliant and brilliant wedding. The Czar, the son of Mrs. J. W. Cable, was married to Mrs. Anna Cable, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cable, in the Northampton home of Mr. and Mrs. Cable.

The wedding was performed at 6 o'clock by the Rev. Paul Van Houten, D.D., a prominent member of the Alpha Delta Phi fraternity. The ceremony was witnessed by the Czar's intimate friends, and the bridal chorus from Lohengrin was preceded by Miss Dorothea W. Cable, and the carried long streamers of green ribbon to define the ceremony. The ceremony was also performed at New York last evening of a brilliant and brilliant wedding. The Czar, the son of Mrs. J. W. Cable, was married to Mrs. Anna Cable, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cable, in the Northampton home of Mr. and Mrs. Cable.

The wedding was performed at 6 o'clock by the Rev. Paul Van Houten, D.D., a prominent member of the Alpha Delta Phi fraternity. The ceremony was witnessed by the Czar's intimate friends, and the bridal chorus from Lohengrin was preceded by Miss Dorothea W. Cable, and the carried long streamers of green ribbon to define the ceremony. The ceremony was also performed at New York last evening of a brilliant and brilliant wedding. The Czar, the son of Mrs. J. W. Cable, was married to Mrs. Anna Cable, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cable, in the Northampton home of Mr. and Mrs. Cable.

The wedding was performed at 6 o'clock by the Rev. Paul Van Houten, D.D., a prominent member of the Alpha Delta Phi fraternity. The ceremony was witnessed by the Czar's intimate friends, and the bridal chorus from Lohengrin was preceded by Miss Dorothea W. Cable, and the carried long streamers of green ribbon to define the ceremony. The ceremony was also performed at New York last evening of a brilliant and brilliant wedding. The Czar, the son of Mrs. J. W. Cable, was married to Mrs. Anna Cable, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cable, in the Northampton home of Mr. and Mrs. Cable.
A large cottage had been engaged by Mr. Cable opposite his house, and the usher and intimate friends were entertained there. The numerous wedding gifts were very handsome, and consisted of a large amount of silver plate, linens, cut glass, rugs, pictures and some very handsome pieces of Bohemian glass. Mr. and Mrs. Cable were also remembered with many handsome presents on the occasion of their anniversary. Mr. and Mrs. Chard left on their wedding tour late in the evening, and will live at the home of Mr. Chard in Brookline.

Among those present at the marriage were Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Chard, the groom's parents, George Henry Clemens, the New York artist, and W. H. McAndrews of New York. R. H. Enseng, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph R. Enseng and I. B. McLean of Simsbury, Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Allen, Miss Eleanor Allen and Miss Fannie Rowe of East Windsor, Miss Mary Bucket of Hartford, Miss Love of Boston, Miss Row of New Vernon. President Gates of Amherst College, President Sedgley of Smith College, many members of the faculty of Amherst and Smith colleges, Mrs. Hitchcock, Mr. Hitchcock and Dr. and Mrs. Perry of Amherst.

TRACY—NEVERS—in this city, December 12, by Dr. Charles W. Lamson, Robert D. Tracy and Miss Jessie L., daughter of George Nevers, both of this city.

A charming little wedding took place last evening at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Nevers, 8 Buckingham street. The principals in this interesting affair were Miss Jessie Tone, daughter of George Nevers, secretary of the board of street commissioners, and Hubert Dudley Tracy of the Aetna Life Insurance Company. The house was most elaborately decorated with palms and potted plants, giving the spacious rooms a delightfully tropical effect. Soon after 6 o'clock the orchestra, playing Lohengrin's wedding march, announced the approach of the wedding procession to the near relatives and a few invited friends. The bride was unusually gowned in white corded silk with pearl and duchess lace trimmings and carried a bunch of white roses. The maids of honor, a cousin of the bride, was Miss Helen C. Whittlesey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Whittlesey, who wore pink silk, and the bridesmaids were Miss Ada Tracy and Miss Genevieve Tracy, sisters of the groom, who were gowned in white silk trimmed with pink. Edward P. Hickmott acted as best man and Henry T. Holt, Edwin K. Barry and Archie H. Loomis served as ushers.

The Rev. Dr. Lamson, pastor of the Center church, officiated at the ceremony. He included in the service the repeating of the Lord's prayer, in which all present joined. The bride was given away by her father. After an hour was spent in social intercourse, congratulating the groom and well wishing the bride. The general reception was from 7:30 and a very large number attended. The gifts were very choice and the large number indicated that the couple, who were about starting a new life, had a large circle of friends. The bride is a valuable and much beloved teacher in the Warburton Mission Sunday School and her class were present at the ceremony.

After a short bridal tour the newly wedded couple will reside with the bride's parents and will hold receptions on Wednesdays, January 2 and 9.

Senator Sherman's Daughter Married.

Washington, Dec. 12.—Miss Mary Sherman, daughter of Senator John Sherman, was married at her father's residence here to-day to James Liver McCullum, who is connected with the clerk's office of the United States supreme court. The ceremony was performed according to the usual fashion in the presence of a large number of distinguished people, including Secretaries Gresham and Carlisle, Senators Morrill, Hoar, and Higgins, Minister Yang Yu, the Chinese plenipotentiary and his wife, and Solicitor General Maxwell.

Miss Anderson Has Been Very Ill.

Mrs. Mary Anderson-Navarro, the well-known American actress, gave birth to a son last Friday at her residence in Litchfield gardens, London. The child died yesterday morning. Mrs. Navarro has been very ill since she was confined and many friends have been invited for her funeral service after her sudden death.

New Haven, December 17.—A wedding which caused no end of comment in this city took place Saturday afternoon, in Branford. The contracting parties were J. Parker Trowbridge, a son of Henry Trowbridge of this city, and Miss Kittie Shields, a daughter of Constable David Shields, also of this city.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr. A. W. Brown of Christ Episcopal church, Dick Granfield, the driver of the hack in which the couple secretly left city, acting as groomsman, and Mrs. Brown, wife of the rector, as bridesmaid. The marriage has occasioned more than usual comment on account of the social prominence of the family of the groom, in the college and wealthy set of the city. Mr. Trowbridge was graduated from Yale with the class of 1882 and for a time was connected with the firm of H. Trowbridge Sons in New York and this city. He was a prominent club man about town, and considered wealthy with prospects of more wealth in the near future.

The bride is a daughter of Constable David Shields and she became about two years ago because of disagreements with her step-mother. About that time Mr. Trowbridge became acquainted with her. She is an attractive girl, a blonde, of medium height and build.

The affair was supposed to be kept a profound secret. Mr. Trowbridge's intimate friends of the club had not heard of it, and Constable Shields was also ignorant of the fact that his daughter had married in the wealthy Trowbridge family. In marrying a girl regarded as below his station, Parker Trowbridge has followed in the footsteps of his father. About two years ago, when the old gentleman took his housekeeper for his wife, his two sons, Parker and Tomony, were greatly angered, and threatened that they would leave their father. They left his house and have never lived with him since.

The marriage of Attorney Louis E. Jacobs and Miss Mary Rawlings of Han- den was announced Saturday evening, and was the outcome of an elopement last October. Mr. Jacobs is a Hebrew, and his bride a Protestant. The marriage of both of the young people opposed the match, and were in ignorance of their marriage until a letter written by Jacobs to his father was discovered. In the letter he promised to adopt the Jewish faith.

The father of Mr. Jacobs is a rabbi, and when he heard of his son's alliance became very angry and stated that he would never again appear in public. Mr. Jacobs promised to leave his father and said that he has endeavored to persuade her to adopt the Jewish faith.
The present war crisis in the East has awakened an interest in the private affairs of the plucky little island empire which promises to be extended, not only to its present activities, but indefinitely as to time and space, to the personal character and philosophy of Japan. Japan's characteristics and Japan's business affairs are discussed and commented upon and stories told, until Japan seems no longer the faraway nation that she is, but only a sister country "over the way." Women who heretofore scarcely ever gave a thought whether Japan was civilized or uncivilized, beyond the pleasure found in her works of art, are discussing Uncle Sam's generous policy displayed in that treaty some time in '59. With that, about which Japan's first step toward intercourse with western nations. It must always take something like this struggle, and the final coup d'etat, with the fall of Port Arthur, to rouse feminine inquiry and curiosity. Japan must have broad shoulders henceforth to bear the fire and means upon China. American women, even, may claim sisterhood with the plucky little island empire which awakened an interest in the private affairs of such a representative of their sex and education. Stematz Yamakana Oyama is a fit and able representative of American women, and trained by one of America's noblest men. Stematz Yamakana, the wife of Oyama, Japan's War Minister, now in the gold setting as marshal to a division of her forces, was educated at America's first college, and graduated from Vassar College in 1882. Her brilliant career as a student, her fondness for American customs, and her devotion to her country, should make it not surprising that she should desire to be with such of her beliefs as would work for the betterment of her country. That she had considerable influence at home is unquestioned by those favored ones admitted into her confidence.

In 1871 the Japanese government decided to give ten years of American education to some of her girls. Stematz was one of the number. She visited a brother when the summons came, and, without being allowed to see her mother for a farewell, she was packed off with the rest. They came by California, Stematz entering the family of the Rev. Dr. Leonard Bacon of New Haven. She was but fourteen years old, and received her spiritual education from the noble divine and his charming family, while working diligently over her books. In 1881 she returned, and in 1883 she entered Vassar College, and required one more year to complete her course, she was permitted to remain, while all the others were required to return.

She was doubly favored because her brother, who became the head of the family upon the death of his father, united the interest of the successful party. His father having been opposed to the present dynasty, his change gave the family the name. The Yamakanas belong to the military class, which accounts for the keen interest in war affairs which Mrs. Oyama displays. Upon her return from her delinquencies in correspondence with her demands at Vassar, she sent her most beautiful finger ting to the native joyousness. "Always ready for a frolic," the girls at Vassar said. Extroverted, but full of fun, and yet reserved. She was quick to appreciate any "bun mot," and a bright student, she was not an unusually deep one.

She spoke with almost no accent, except a little lisp when pronouncing the "v." With her at Vassar for three years was Singhi Nyo, but they rarely ever spoke Japanese together, declaring it was too much trouble. When they were first introduced at Vassar in regard to joining a Bible class, Stematz was overheard to say, 'They must think we heathen Chinese to ask us such questions.'

Her tendencies and opinions were all for America. At the commencement at which she took her diploma, she read a remarkable paper, entitled, "British Policy Toward Japan." It was commented upon by the press at the time as showing remarkable prophetic intelligence. She thoroughly understood England's conservatism, and paid a beautiful tribute to America's liberty and friendship.

It seems likely that her prophecy respecting Japan's ability to force all the nations of the world to acknowledge her supremacy in not only the arts and skilled labor, but in domestic and political government, is being fast fulfilled. Through Japan, China must soon give way to civilization, and when she does who can say that Uncle Sam has not materially aided in the result? As one of his disciples, prominent in his principles, and devoted to his methods and policies, Madame Oyama has exercised a wide influence, and undoubtedly helped on the advance of the human race. Her marriage was arranged by her brother when she was in America, and, according to Japanese customs, she saw her husband but a few times before the nuptial ceremony, and then in the presence of both families. Her intercourse with her fiancée at these interviews was brief, and someone has declared she never spoke a word to him until after the marriage was consummated. The announcement of her marriage among her friends in this country, was printed in French on a very large piece of paper. Miss Oyama has three children, and while she is much the granddame in the military circle to which she belongs, she is devoted to her family and the true Japanese wife and mother. She possesses that charm which Sir Edwin Arnold loves to describe in his notes about Japanese women, innocence and simplicity. To unite with this a womanly dignity, sustained by a thorough education, makes the wife of Japan's War Minister a positive power.

Her husband's career has been interesting and broadening to him. When she was at Vassar he was attached to the Japanese Legation at Paris, and his prominence at the present time proves his ability no less than his courage. He is an intellectual man also, and one readily believes his wife must be a fitting companion to him. Belonging to a family who were educated in Europe, and coming in contact with men of note and education, Stematz Yamakana Oyama is a fit representative of American education, and all American women may be proud of such a representative of themselves and.
Dr. Oyama, Wife of Japan's War Minister and Marshal, sent here when young. Noted Vassar graduate. Years she was a member of Dr.
The Result of His Injuries at Spottsylvania.

Major Charles H. Owen of Stratford, a well known figure in Hartford social and business circles, has been seen on the streets but seldom lately and it may be well filled before he is again. He is laid up at his home as a result of the injuries that he received in the battle of Spottsylvania. While carrying his gun he was attacked by rebel sharpshooters and his horse was shot under him and fell on him. Major Owen's left leg received a terrible wound and he had to have his boot for two weeks he could not remove his boot. His health has not improved and his leg has begun to reveal signs of Spottsylvania aches and pains reappearing. He is confined to the home on the opposite Ridgefield Woman is Awarded $100

Mrs. Talcott, whose memory is wonderful, going back to the early days of her birth and her early life in Wethersfield, her marriage to Ansel Talcott, and over the years that have brought her to her present age of 107, Mrs. Talcott feels well, has her hearing and her intellectual powers are two estates in Ridgefield and enjoys the company of her friends and relatives dropping in to keep the Hartford home.

Mrs. Talcott lives on the corner of Park avenue, New York, and is a consistent member of the First Church, as the natural answer was all she needed for her cere.

Testimonial to Miss Harris.

Twenty-five Years a Teacher in the South School.

With the term at the South School which closed today, Miss Mary M. Harris completed twenty-five years of active service in that school. She has been one of the most successful and popular teachers in the institution.

Hast Lived 104 years.

On yesterday Mrs. Emily Talcott still retains her sub Good Health. Mrs. Talcott is undoubtedly the oldest person in this part of the country, has the main facts of her long life, and the opinions of her husband. We have her birthday, and the peaceful rounding out of her days in this place, are getting to be as well known to the public.

By 1894. at the home of the bride's parents, Flushing, L. I., by the Rev. H. D. Walker, Elizabeth Haggerty, daughter of Robert H. Sperry, has been engaged in sundry commercial enterprises, and where he made the acquaintance of Miss Sperry, now Princess Poniatowski. There is another Princess Poniatowski, who lives in England. She is the sister of the groom, and her Christian name is Catherine; but this lady was not present at the wedding ceremony.

Miss Bertha Sperry of Stockton, Cal., was recently married at Paris to Prince Andre Poniatowski. Miss Sperry is a relative of Mrs. Sperry of this city and the Hon. N. D. Sperry of New Haven, and a sister of Mrs. W. H. Crocker of San Francisco. Prince Andre went out to California some years ago, where he has been engaged in sundry commercial enterprises, and where he made the acquaintance of Miss Sperry, now Princess Poniatowski. There is another Princess Poniatowski, who lives in England. She is the sister of the groom, and her Christian name is Catherine; but this lady was not present at the wedding ceremony.

The District Attorney of New York. Air...
Mrs. Talcott the Oldest Resident in the State.

She Will Celebrate Her One Hundred and Fifth Birthday on Christmas Day at Her Home in West Hartford.

Mrs. Emily Robbins Talcott of West Hartford, who will attain her 105th birthday, Christmas Day, 1894, is the oldest resident in this State. One hundred and four years since her advent will be completed during the day to-morrow, almost an unprecedented period of life in this commonwealth. She was 21 years of age when President Washington died and remembers the draping of the Wolcott Hill Congregational church in mourning on account of that event. She has lived under the administration of every President of the United States, having been born during Washington's first term.

The birthplace of Mrs. Talcott was in the neighborhood of Wolcott Hill in the town of Wethersfield, and the days of her girlhood were spent in that community. Her maiden name was Emily Robbins. When she was 21 years of age, Christmas Day, 1810, she was married to Ansel Talcott, of Mr. Barnard and Mr. Talcott who died here a few years ago at an advanced old age. During the last years of the venerable couple's residence in this city, they occupied one of the houses on South Main Street just below the Hon. Henry Barnard's, and the families of Mr. Barnard and Mr. Talcott became intimate. Mr. Barnard, who is one of the oldest men in the city, has been accustomed to call on his old neighbor and friend at her home in West Hartford during the last few years. She remembers him well, and has had the pleasantest of visits with him.

Since Mrs. Talcott passed the centennial mark in 1890 she has enjoyed a carriage drive to Wethersfield, visiting the places and localities that were so intimately identified with her youth and young womanhood. It is hardly possible to realize that a woman is still living in this community, the day of whose wedding antedated the war of 1812 by two years. The visit of Lafayette occurred when Mrs. Talcott had been married going on a score of years, and had a family about her. She was 53 years old when the Constitution of Connecticut was adopted, and has known personally or by reputation every Governor of the State since 1800. The old Hartford Bank was not organized at the time of her birth, and for a quarter of a century or more after her girlhood had been passed the residents of the west side of the city were compelled to use the river in the most primitive of ways. Artificial light in the Center Church in this city was not used until four years after her advent.

Every modern invention, the great industrial and moral progress of the age, the building of steamboats, railroads, telegraphs, the discovery of anaesthetic, surgical and dental developments, and in the realms of theology, the abolition of doctrine repugnant to the hearts and sympathies of men, have taken place during her memory. The world was full of people when she was born, and the only men who accepted the theological doctrine of infant damnation. She has seen and been a part of the century's progress.

Mrs. Talcott has been an unusually intelligent woman through life. While her hearing and eyesight are impaired, depriving her of many of the enjoyments of life, she is still in the possession of her mental faculties, sixty years ago. Thanksgiving day, she met with a serious accident, resulting in the fracture of one of her hips. From that date till now she has been a cripple, but patient and sweet and brave all along.

She has four children still living, and grand and great-grand-children in different parts of the country. The children are Mrs. Julia Strong, wife of City Treasurer C. C. Strong, Mrs. E. H. Penn, who owns the old Chester homestead in Wethersfield adjoined the Webb residence, where George Washington made his headquarters when in that revolutionary War, Bartholomew of A. Talcott of West Hartford is spending the holiday Mrs. W. L. Cushing, and will not be able E. Hart Penn, the eldest. The children of Mrs. Talcott are an unusually intelligent woman.

She is enjoying a carriage drive to Wethersfield, visiting the places and localities that were so intimately identified with her youth and young womanhood. It is hardly possible to realize that a woman is still living in this community, the day of whose wedding antedated the war of 1812 by two years. The visit of Lafayette occurred when Mrs. Talcott had been married going on a score of years, and had a family about her. She was 53 years old when the Constitution of Connecticut was adopted, and has known personally or by reputation every Governor of the State since 1800. The old Hartford Bank was not organized at the time of her birth, and for a quarter of a century or more after her girlhood had been passed the residents of the west side of the city were compelled to use the river in the most primitive of ways. Artificial light in the Center Church in this city was not used until four years after her advent.

Every modern invention, the great industrial and moral progress of the age, the building of steamboats, railroads, telegraphs, the discovery of anaesthetic, surgical and dental developments, and in the realms of theology, the abolition of doctrine repugnant to the hearts and sympathies of men, have taken place during her memory. The world was full of people when she was born, and the only men who accepted the theological doctrine of infant damnation. She has seen and been a part of the century's progress.

Mrs. Talcott has been an unusually intelligent woman through life. While her hearing and eyesight are impaired, depriving her of many of the enjoyments of life, she is still in the possession of her mental faculties, sixty years ago. Thanksgiving day, she met with a serious accident, resulting in the fracture of one of her hips. From that date till now she has been a cripple, but patient and sweet and brave all along.

She has four children still living, and grand and great-grand-children in different parts of the country. The children are Mrs. Julia Strong, wife of City Treasurer C. C. Strong, Mrs. E. H. Penn, who owns the old Chester homestead in Wethersfield adjoined the Webb residence, where George Washington made his headquarters when in that revolutionary War, Bartholomew of A. Talcott of West Hartford is spending the holiday Mrs. W. L. Cushing, and will not be able E. Hart Penn, the eldest. The children of Mrs. Talcott are an unusually intelligent woman.
Representative George T. Johnson of Norfolk, and Mrs. Johnson, attended the silver wedding of Lieutenant Henry E. Rhoades of the United States navy, and Mrs. Rhoades, which was celebrated at Mount Vernon, N. Y., Friday evening. The reception-hall and parlors were decorated with rare tropical plants, and the guests took interest in inspecting the relics and curios collected by the lieutenant in the Arctic, among the Inca ruins in Peru, in other parts of South America, and in Arabia, Madagascar, India, China and Japan, among the latter being a kimono, or robe, and two swords given to him by the Tycoon, when he was dethroned, in 1858. Miss Jeannette Townsend of Middlebury, this State, who was maid of honor at the wedding twenty-five years ago, stood beside the couple Friday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Johnson assisted in receiving the guests.

JANUARY 1, 1895.

GOLDEN WEDDING.

A Reception in Honor of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Cowles of Farmington.

Through the courtesy of Miss Sarah Porter of Farmington about 150 friends of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Cowles of that place gathered at Miss Porter's home yesterday to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Cowles's marriage. A reception was held from 3 to 5 o'clock. It was the second golden wedding which has taken place in the old house, the other being that of Dr. and Mrs. Noah Porter, parents of the late ex-President Noah Porter of Yale, Dr. Porter having been a pastor in Farmington for sixty years. The occasion yesterday was intended for a general village gathering, but many were also present from surrounding towns to express their good wishes for the aged people, who had rounded the half-century point of their married life.

John S. Cowles, who was 75 years old last month, was the son of Martin Cowles, a leading merchant of Farmington in the early part of the century, when the town was a noted trading center and did fairly to outstrip Hartford in prosperity. The Cowleses were an old family of traders, but by the time John S. was married the business of the town had died away. His wife, who was 74 last month, was Miss Margaret Stanley of New Britain, daughter of Jesse Stanley, who likewise belonged to an old family of great business enterprises. She was born in the old Stanley Quarter of New Britain, long before that place assumed its later character of a thriving industrial town. There Mr. and Mrs. Cowles were married by the Rev. Chester S. Lyman, later a professor of astronomy, in the Sheffield Scientific School, and the real instrument in founding that institution, backed by Mr. Sheffield's capital.

At yesterday's gathering besides those present from Farmington, there were many from Hartford, New Britain, New Haven and Bristol.

---

CLERK HUBBARD TO GO.

After serving nearly eighteen years in the comptroller's office.

Louis B. Hubbard, assistant clerk in the comptroller's office at the Capitol, yesterday received notification from Comptroller-elect Benjamin P. Mead, that another would fill his place with the incoming of the new administration. The letter from Mr. Mead, which was dated December 8, after paying a compliment to Mr. Hubbard's ability, efficiency, and long service, said that it was with the deepest regret that the writer informed him that his services would not be needed after the expiration of his present term of service.

Mr. Hubbard has the position of assistant clerk under Chief Clerk Elmer W. Moore nearly eighteen years. He was first appointed by his father, the Hon. Charles C. Hubbard, when he became comptroller in January, 1877. He has always been considered a reliable, efficient clerk, well-informed in all matters pertaining to the comptroller's office, and has been retained by each successive comptroller.

Chief Clerk Moore has been notified by Mr. Mead that he may retain his position.

Engagement of Miss Foote.

(Special to The Courant.)

Washington, Dec. 18.

The engagement is announced of Miss Kate Foote to Judge A. J. Coe of Meriden. Miss Foote has a multitude of friends in Connecticut and came from Guilford. She was a sister of Senator Hawley's first wife. Miss Foote has been for some years the Washington correspondent of the "New York Independent." The wedding is to take place in January. Judge Coe is a well-known Meriden man, a gentleman of culture, a lawyer by profession, but retired from active practice.

Special to The Hartford Times.

New Haven, January 8.

Miss Kate Foote, of this city; and Judge Andrew J. Coe of Meriden were quietly married at the residence of the bride's sister, Mrs. Edward H. Jenkins, on Prospect street, here, at 11 o'clock, this morning. The Rev. Dr. Andrews, of Guilford, officiated. Owing to a serious illness in the family, the brilliant wedding which was anticipated was passed by only a few near friends of the bride and groom were present. Mr. and Mrs. Coe left this afternoon for an extended wedding trip, and on their return will take up their residence in Meriden. Both of the contracting parties are known to everybody throughout the State. Mrs. Coe, as Kate Foote, is well known in literary circles as the authoress of "The Red Horse Claim," and other stories.

The Wallack-Mitchell Wedding.

Washington, Jan. 8.—Miss Mary Alexander Wallack, second daughter of Mrs. Richard Wallack of this city, was married to-day to Edward Anthony Mitchell, son of the late Representative Charles L. Mitchell of New Haven, Conn. Only the immediate relatives of the families were present at the ceremony.

CLIFFORD.—In this city, January 8, a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Clifford, weight 85 ounces.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Clifford of No. 18 Dean street are the parents of a healthy and perfectlyformed baby girl weighing only 28 ounces. It was born a week ago to-day, and is improving every hour. Many people call at the home to see the midget.
Lucius Hendee married.

Son of a former Hartford man.
The "New Haven Leader" of Thursday says:

Lucius Hendee, son of Abner Hendee, and Miss Lizzie Reilly, daughter of Detective Sergeant Philip Reilly of the police department, were married at St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church this afternoon at 3 o'clock. The wedding was a very quiet affair, no one but the most intimate friends of the bride and groom being present. The best man was J. W. Danforth of Hartford and the bridesmaid was Miss Reilly's sister. After the ceremony the couple proceeded to the bride's home, where a short informal reception was tendered to a few friends, and the couple left at 4 o'clock on a wedding tour. They will be absent several weeks, after which the couple will reside in this city. Miss Reilly is a member of the choir at St. John's Church and Mr. Hendee is a popular young man who has scores of friends.

The Hartford Times.

Saturday, January 12, 1895.

MOLLY EDWARDS.

Embroidery and Needlework Executed in 1742.

The Connecticut Historical Society in this city possesses many interesting and delightful evidences that the art of embroidery and painting was cultivated as a charming pastime by the ladies of the Connecticut colony. Specimens of exquisite needlework can be found in the rooms of the society, if one has the patience to look for them in the mass of historic relics in the place. The lovely handicraft appears for the most part in scarfs, aprons and slippers, which were worn by the young women of the colony from a century and a half to two centuries ago. There is an apron of marvelous beauty that was embroidered by Mary Hooker, the granddaughter of Thomas Hooker, the founder of the colony. This lady was the granddaughter of the Rev. Samuel Hooker, first pastor of the church in Farmington. She became the wife of the Rev. James Pierrepont of the New Haven colony and the great-grandmother of Jonathan Edwards.

The taste for art which she displayed was inherited by Jonathan Edwards, son of Richard Edwards, who came to this country from England in the year 1664, and died in 1745. An exquisitely embroidered scarf which she made also in 1742. The YY, which was married at St. John's Church by the Rev. Charles Chauncey, the second president of Harvard College.

Ancestry of Jonathan Edwards.

Attention has been called to the mistake by Mr. J. G. Woodward of this city and by a descendant of the Whittlesey family now residing at Bar Harbor, Me.

Sarah Pierrepont was not the mother of Jonathan Edwards. The Rev. Timothy Edwards, son of Richard Edwards, married Esther, the daughter of the Rev. Solomon Stoddard, who was for a long time a minister at Northampton, Mass. He was born in Boston in 1643, and died at Northampton, February 11, 1729. Timothy was married four times, and consequently Esther was the mother of the "sixty feet of daughters" of Jonathan. It was from her mother, Esther Stoddard, that the Edwards children inherited their sentimental qualities.

Lucy Winthrop, a sister of Governor Winthrop, was grandmother of Solomon Stoddard, and his wife was Esther Matthew Warner, daughter of the Rev. John Warham, the West of England clergyman who preached to the Puritans at the time of the Winthrop settlement. He settled in Dorchester, Mass., and afterwards moved to Windsor, this State. The mother of Abigail Burr was a daughter of Jonathan Edwards. The wife of Jonathan Edwards was Sarah Pierrepont of New Haven, Hannah Whittemore, from whom, the artist, Molly Edwards, were received, died about 1855. Her mother was the only child of Hannah Edwards Wadsworth, a sister of Molly Jonathan Edwards. Her father was an officer of the distinguished Rev. Charles Chauncey, who came down through a line of worthy men from the Rev. Charles Chauncey, the second president of Harvard College.

To your crookedness? He told her that there were scores of letters, documents and papers. The whole story is told on her tomb stone, which still stands in the old East Windsor Cemetery. But this silence on her part is characteristic of the family. When Lucy Edwards, one of the four eldest of the sisters, died, August 21, 1750, at the age of 21, there was not a letter or paper saved that can give any account of her beauty and brilliancy. Jerusha Edwards died December 22, 1758. There are some interesting letters extant concerning her. She was a woman of wit and fascination. But her wit, says the biographer of Jonathan Edwards, was delicate and kind and was used merely for recreation. Molly Edwards was past 40 years of age, when she began the charming embroidery and painting that are preserved in the Connecticut Historical Society. The treasures in the society's possession include a pair of slippers worked by Molly Edwards in 1746, when she was 45 years of age. There is a beautiful bit of painting which she completed in 1742, but the loveliest proof of her art is a scarf which she made also in 1742. The wood was spun and dyed by her. The dyes were made from native plants, and the artistic tasks were performed while she gave attention to the usual day's work at the spinning-wheel. The scarf is one of exceptional beauty and must be prized for its loveliness by the most gifted woman in the land at the present time.

The collection of art work in the society already includes that.

The Times contained an article, a few days ago, describing some exquisite needlework in the Connecticut historical rooms. An error was made in the article concerning the ancestry of Jonathan Edwards.

Attention has been called to the Iowa State University of Agriculture and the fact that three of the sisters, Abigail, Jerusha and Lucy have left the city, and recovered. Jerusha, he adds, is almost well. Five years prior to this letter of Jonathan Edwards, he refers to her playfulness as an account of a religious awakening in East Windsor.
Mr. Gail Borden Munsill of this city and Miss Ruth Clark Holmes, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Holmes of West Winsted, were united in marriage at high noon today, at the home of the bride’s parents on High street, West Winsted. Owing to the death of Mr. Munsill’s brother, Mr. Marcus Munsill, last summer, the wedding was a quiet one only the families of the contracting parties and close friends being present.

Otherwise there would have been a church wedding, as the bride’s family is among the leading ones in Winsted, and many friends of Mr. Munsill would have attended from this city. Mr. Holmes, father of the bride, is cashier of the Hurribut National Bank, West Winsted.

The home of Mr. Holmes was elaborately decorated with flowers and plants, and Beeman & Hatch’s Orchestra of Hartford discoursed a stirring ceremony was performed by the Rev. W. W. Everts of Haverhill, Mass., formerly pastor of the South Baptist church in this city, an intimate friend of the groom’s family, assisted by the Rev. J. S. Voorhees of the First Congregational church, West Winsted.

The beautiful Episcopal ceremony with ring was used.

Dr. Edward Goodenough of Waterbury, a life-long friend of the groom, officiated as best man, and Miss Leila Holmes, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid. The bride wore a gown of white satin, made plain, and carried a bouquet of white roses. She wore no ornaments, on account of the family of the groom being in mourning. The bridesmaid’s gown was of green silk and chiffon.

A reception followed the ceremony. The happy couple were the recipients of many beautiful presents. The presents of Mrs. Munsill, mother of the groom, to the bride were a jeweled watch and a diamond lace pin. Mr. Munsill’s gift to his bride was a diamond and pearl scarf pin, and to the bridesmaid a diamond pin.

Mr. and Mrs. Munsill left during the afternoon for a wedding tour. They will reside in this city at No. 25 Wethersfield Avenue, and will be “at home” after June 1.

The Hartford relatives and friends who attended the wedding will return home this evening.

The Republican

MR. GATLING AND MISS WATERS.

Their Elopement and Marriage in New York City.

[New York World, to-day.] Winifred Waters, daughter of John R. Waters, president of the Insurance Lloyds, at No. 54 Franklin street, who has a fine house at No. 144 West Seventy-sixth street, eloped on January 10, with Richard Henry Gatling, a son of Dr. Gatling, the inventor of the Gatling gun.

He is a brother-in-law of Hugh O. Pentecost, as well as his law partner, at No. 237 Broadway. His older sister, Ida Gatling, married Pentecost when he was pastor of the fashionable South Baptist church, Hartford.

The Pentecosts live at No. 305 West Eighty-second street. Young Gatling lived there with them. He is a handsome young man, and popular in the social circle in which Winifred Waters moved. Mr. and Mrs. Waters knew young Gatling was going to marry her daughter. When the young people became engaged about four months ago, it was with the knowledge and approval of both families.

The Lexow investigation brought trouble to the young people, as it did to many others. Gatling's name figured in the testimony in a way his prospective father-in-law did not like. It was in the testimony given by Hugh O. Pentecost, too. Testifying concerning the system of bribery that prevailed among prison keepers, he said that young Gatling, his partner, as an attorney, had himself experienced in prison keeper's bribery. He questioned Gatling. Gatling defended himself, but Mr. Waters was far from satisfied.

Comptroller Fitch is one of Mr. Waters's friends. He spoke to him about the matter. Comptroller Fitch got from Recorder Godfrey a statement of an abstract of the testimony. This was sent to Mr. Waters. Then there was a row.

When Mr. Gatling called to see Miss Winifred one evening, he saw Papa Waters instead, who told him to get out of the house and never show his face there again. He said they would never be married, and that the whole matter must end just where it was. Mr. Gatling returned to the home of the Pentecosts. He wrote to Miss Winifred. He received from her certain presents which he had made. His cup was filled when the engagement ring was returned.

On or about January 15 Winifred went to her father and told him she could not believe anything against Richard Henry. She wanted proof. She asked her father to write out an abstract of the testimony giving before the Lexow committee. She said if she had such evidence it would aid her in resisting the temptation to see Gatling. Waters wrote out the abstract and gave it to her.

On Saturday afternoon, January 19, Winifred's mother and sisters were going to the opera with friends. Winifred was to go with them. It was about to start, she pleaded that she was not feeling well. She said she wished to rest, but that before she did so she should take the rings that had been sent congratulating her on her engagement to Richard Henry Gatling, and burn them. So she sat down and wrote a letter to her papa, mamma and sisters. She told them she did not believe Richard Henry the Celebration of a Golden Wedding Anniversary.

BRISTOL

Fifty years ago yesterday Julius R. Mitchell and Drusilla Welch were married by the Rev. Edward Savage, at that time pastor of the Baptist church. Mr. Mitchell has lately built a commodious and pleasant home on Prospect street, and it was here that from 3 to 6 p.m., yesterday, his relatives and old-time friends gathered to congratulate him, and to leave substantial tokens of their appreciation. The original certificate of the marriage was forwarded by the now unknown person to Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell. Among the old-time friends present were Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Pierce, Mr. E. N. Pierce and daughter, Henry A. Seymour and daughter, A. L. Atwood, George H. Grant and wife, Julius Pierce and wife, S. C. Spring and wife, Julius Pierce and wife and others. There were no formal ceremonies but a pleasant social time was enjoyed by all. The presents were many and elegant. Miss Julia, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell, was dressed in her mother's wedding gown of half a century ago. Mr. Mitchell is 74 years of age, and has been all his life in business in Bristol, where he is to-day at the head of the firm of Mitchell & Son, packing clothings. Mrs. Mitchell was the sister of E. N. Welch, president of the E. N. Welch Manufacturing Company; H. M. Welch, president of the Bank in New Haven, and H. L. Welch, of Waterbury, president of the Welch Hosiery Company, all of whom are dead.

The engagement is announced of Mr. Richard Henry Gatling and Miss Winifred Waters, both of New York City. Mr. Gatling is the eldest son of Dr. R. J. Gatling and a member of the firm of Pentecost & Gatling. Miss Waters is the eldest daughter of John R. Waters of New York City, and is acknowledged to be a charming young lady of fashion. It is rumored that the engagement will not be a long one.
Gatling had ever done anything in his life to make him unworthy of her, and that very afternoon, while they were listening to the grand opera, she would be getting married to him.

Then she went around to West End Avenue and was there joined by young Gatling and Hugh O. Pentecost. Mr. Pentecost had consented to aid the young people. The wedding had been arranged for. The ceremony was to be performed by the Rev. Isaac M. Haldeman at his home, No. 289 West End Avenue, which was but a few doors away.

The Rev. Haldeman was at home. With Mr. Pentecost as witness, he soon had united Miss Winifred to Richard Henry Gatling, and the happy pair went to the Pentecost home with no cloud upon the horizon save Pope Water's wrath. Even that was not ominous enough to prevent them from enjoying a dainty wedding dinner to which a few very intimate friends were invited.

When Mrs. Waters and her daughters got home from the opera they got the note telling them of Winifred's flight. Mrs. Waters started out to find her daughter, but did not succeed. Next morning she read the marriage notice in the newspapers, and then she went around and told the Rev. Haldeman what a wicked man he was for marrying her daughter to young Gatling. Mr. Haldeman protested that he had done wrong and that he did not know the young people were eloping, that they were of proper age, and that he had done perfectly right in uniting them.

A few days later Mrs. Gatling, who was still with her husband at the Pentecost home, sent word to her mother how sorry and yet how happy she was, expressing the hope that they would forgive her, and asking that her trunks be packed and sent to her. Mrs. Waters sent the trunks. Mr. Waters sent a note in which he said he would never receive his daughter at his home, but that if she wished to see him she could call at her office. She has not called there yet, and those who know her say she is not likely to do so.

Barrows-Star.
Miss Katie Elizabeth Starr of Branch Dale, Pa., and Frederick A. Barrows of Reading, Pa., were married by the Rev. Mr. Bamsman at Reading Pa., on January 12. The marriage was private, only a few friends being present. Mr. and Mrs. Barrows came to their friends at 539 Court street, Reading, where they are housekeeping. Mr. Barrows was formerly a resident of Hartford and is now in charge of the architectural department of L. H. Foeth, architect and builder of Reading.

BURT-FRANCIS—In Elmwood, West Hartford, on February 26, by the Rev. T. M. Hodgdon, assisted by the Rev. S. B. Foore, Luther W. Burt and Mary R. Francis.

Burt-Francis.
The marriage of ex-City Surveyor Luther W. Burt of this city and Miss Mary Rose Francis, daughter of Mr. Samuel H. Francis of West Hartford, occurred Wednesday afternoon, the ceremony being performed by the Rev. T. M. Hodgdon of the West Hartford Congregational church. Guests were present from Hartford, East Hartford, South Windsor and Springfield.

The bride is a graduate of the New Britain Normal School and has been the successful principal of the Wethersfield Avenue school for over three years. Mr. Burt is a graduate of Sheffield Scientific school and has practiced his profession in New York and other States.

After the reception Mr. and Mrs. Burt started for Washington. The wedding journey will include several southern states, but Mr. and Mrs. Burt will be at their friends at the Linden, March 1.

Smith-Lane Marriage at Meriden Last Evening.

One of the proudest weddings of the season in Meriden was that last evening of Miss Bertha Grace Lane of Meriden, formerly of this city, to William Roe Smith of that city, at the bride's home on Washington Heights. The bride is the eldest daughter of Lieutenant John S. Lane and Mrs. Lane, who until recently lived on Sigourney street in this city. Lieutenant Lane is a prominent contractor in Meriden and was formerly an officer of the Eighth Regiment, Connecticut Volunteers. The groom is a son of J. Boardman Smith of New Haven and is in business at Meriden.

The officiating clergyman was the Rev. J. H. Twichell of this city, assisted by the Rev. Asher Anderson of Meriden. The bride was gownned in white satin with Duchess lace yoke and bertha. She also wore a pearl necklace and a veil fastened with pearl pins, had orange blossoms in her hair and carried a bouquet of lilacs of the valley and bridal roses. The maid of honor was Miss Edna Lane, a sister of the bride, who wore a white silk gown covered with white chiffon and carried a bouquet of white violets. Two twin pieces of the bride, Gertrude and Grace Lane, acted as flower girls. They wore pink silk gown covered with pink chiffon and carried bouquets of Roman hyacinths. The ushers were: Arthur Miller, Louis Perkins and E. LeRoy Lane of Meriden, Wallace Ritter of New Haven, Joseph W. Ball of this city and Edgar Camp of Wallingford. Frank Smith of New Haven, a cousin of the groom, was the best man.

The wedding collation was served by Maresi of New York and music was furnished by Orchestra of New Haven during the reception from 8 to 10 o'clock, which was attended by about 450 guests. The house was elegant with floral decorations, every room and the halls and stairways being decorated with flowers, roses and omilax, the prevailing colors being pink and green. Mr. and Mrs. Smith were married standing under a canopy of plumous asparagus, woven in streamers looped together with satin ribbon.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith were assisted in receiving by Lieutenant Lane and Mrs. Lane, the parents of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. J. Boardman Smith of New Haven, the parents of the groom and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur S. Lane, the parents of the pretty twin flower girls. The wedding gifts were very handsome and consisted of a handsome teak wood chair made in raised wool work and upholstered in raised, looped, together with satin ribbon. The groom's great, great, great grandfather, Mr. and Mrs. Smith left about 10:30 o'clock for a bridal tour in the South. They will be at home at Washington Heights, Meriden, February 22 and March 6 and after June 1 will reside at Maple Farm, Tolland, Conn. Among those present at the reception from this city were: Mrs. J. R. Stevens and Paul Stevens, Charles E. Nettleton and Miss Cook, Mr. and Mrs. Scott R. Benjamin, Joseph Gorton, Philip G. Gorton, Miss Alice M. Gorton, Miss E. L. Caswell, Charles E. Barry and Mr. and Mrs. Alfred W. Green.
The Famous Carriage Maker Takes a Young Wife in His Old Age.

J. B. BREWSTER MARRIED.

The famous carriage maker takes a young wife in his old age. The news of the marriage of Miss Annie E. Bulkley and J. B. Brewster, the first announcement of a wedding which was solemnized by the Rev. R. T. McNicholl of the Beekman Hill Methodist Church, New York, three weeks ago. Mr. Brewster is the aged senior member of the present New York firm of J. B. Brewster & Co., carriage makers. He was born in New Preston, state, and was the seventh in direct descent from Elder Brewster, who came over on the Mayflower in 1629. He was apprenticed at an early age, in 1824, to learn carriage making. In 1810 he undertook the improvement of the styles of carriages, and soon became the most famous manufacturer of "Brewster wagon," which then came into extensive use. His speciality was the better class of vehicles, and was the first maker in the United States to send a panelled carriage South. He was then in business in New Haven.

He opened a branch of his business in Broad street, New York, in 1815. He abandoned the competing trade soon after, and with several citizens of New Haven, obtained a charter for the construction of a road between New Haven and Hartford. He was president of the company, and was a moving spirit until he and his son embarked in business together.

Mr. Brewster's bride is about 25 years of age. Nothing is known of her family. Mr. Brewster told the clergyman who had him to his first marriage venture that whenever he was in Miss Schwartz's presence he felt impelled to marry again.

FEBRUARY 4, 1895.

MARRIED FIFTY YEARS.

Golden Wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Goodwin of Elmwood celebrated on Saturday the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage. Quite a number of relatives were present as were a few friends and neighbors. The celebration was a quiet one and confined principally to members of the family, as Mr. Goodwin has been somewhat feeble for the past two weeks. Mr. Goodwin's family is a long-lived one. He will be 65 years old on August 7. There were nine children and five are living. Their ages combined are 117 years, an average of 23 years. The family came from New Hartford. Mr. Goodwin's father lived to be 85 years old and died in the house in which he was born. There were two nights during the eighty-five years which he spent away from the home. During the Mexican War he was drafted into a company and when the company was a day's journey from this section it was notified that its services were not wanted. There was no other war to interfere with his methodical manner of living. For sixty years he sang in the church choir. Mr. Goodwin's grandfather had twelve children.

Mr. Goodwin has always enjoyed remarkably good health. He has never used eyeglasses and is able to read the newspapers at ease as well as during the day. He has never had a tooth filled and has lost only four or five. He did not lose any till he was past 60. Mr. Goodwin did not vote until he was 20 years old and then he cast his ballot for Andrew Jackson. He has always been a democrat, but he is opposed
I Honored Sire and honored Mother,
And there is no higher honor
There is no more
Chieft Engineer and in later Mechanic, for

He never smoked a Dineen e -e 'pOe -m-'written
Not Mt/lb - Lite his long life to thi Has always smoked cigars, but this testimonials of kind regard were received Many years. Many valuable presents and Good night to thee, sturdy travelers, Members of a sturdy race,

For more than an hour the hall was crowded with guests. Beautiful costumes among the ladies were especially noticeable. About 9 o'clock the supper room was opened, and the crowd in the hall filled out somewhat. After 10 o'clock, when many of the guests had gone, dancing was begun by the younger people and continued until about 12:30. All the guests voted the reception a most delightful occasion.

Among those present from out of town were Governor O. Vincent Coffin and Alt's ('offin, the Hon. and Mrs. Donald T. Warner of Salisbury, the Hon. and Mrs. Thomas R. Fletcher of Portland, the Hon. and Mrs. Lucerna I. Munson and Miss Munson of Waterbury; Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Page of Waterbury; Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Wallace of Springfield; Mr. and Mrs. Harold J. Gross of Providence; Mr. Dexter and Miss Betti of New York City; the Misses McCrane of Albany, and Frank R. Brandager of New London.

Mr. Charles W. Gross, class of '88, of Yale, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Gross, was present and quite a number of college boys, among whom were Horace B. Clark, '98; R. W. Archbold, '98; James Terry, Sheffield, '95; Alex Bane, '98; Max Smith, '98; George C. Clark, Sheffield, '98, and Frank Howard, '98.

Among the guests from town were the following: Mr. and Mrs. George Day and Miss Day, Mr. and Mrs. John C. Day and the Misses Day, Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Dustin, Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Dwight, Lieutenant and Mrs. Harold H. Eames, Colonel and Mrs. Frank W. Cheney, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur F. Eggleston, Mr. and Mrs. George Ellis and Fred Ellis, Miss Eno, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. English, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Bradley, the Rev. James W. Brando, Mrs. and Mrs. James H. Provost, Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Gross, and Miss Betti of New York City.

Mr. Charies W. Gross, class of '88, of Yale, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Gross, was present and quite a number of college boys, among whom were Horace B. Clark, '98; R. W. Archbold, '98; James Terry, Sheffield, '95; Alex Bane, '98; Max Smith, '98; George C. Clark, Sheffield, '98, and Frank Howard, '98.

Among the guests from town were the following: Mr. and Mrs. George Day and Miss Day, Mr. and Mrs. John C. Day and the Misses Day, Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Dustin, Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Dwight, Lieutenant and Mrs. Harold H. Eames, Colonel and Mrs. Frank W. Cheney, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur F. Eggleston, Mr. and Mrs. George Ellis and Fred Ellis, Miss Eno, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. English, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Bradley, the Rev. James W. Brando, Mrs. and Mrs. James H. Provost, Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Gross, and Miss Betti of New York City.

Mr. Charies W. Gross, class of '88, of Yale, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Gross, was present and quite a number of college boys, among whom were Horace B. Clark, '98; R. W. Archbold, '98; James Terry, Sheffield, '95; Alex Bane, '98; Max Smith, '98; George C. Clark, Sheffield, '98, and Frank Howard, '98.

Among the guests from town were the following: Mr. and Mrs. George Day and Miss Day, Mr. and Mrs. John C. Day and the Misses Day, Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Dustin, Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Dwight, Lieutenant and Mrs. Harold H. Eames, Colonel and Mrs. Frank W. Cheney, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur F. Eggleston, Mr. and Mrs. George Ellis and Fred Ellis, Miss Eno, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. English, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Bradley, the Rev. James W. Brando, Mrs. and Mrs. James H. Provost, Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Gross, and Miss Betti of New York City.

Mr. Charies W. Gross, class of '88, of Yale, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Gross, was present and quite a number of college boys, among whom were Horace B. Clark, '98; R. W. Archbold, '98; James Terry, Sheffield, '95; Alex Bane, '98; Max Smith, '98; George C. Clark, Sheffield, '98, and Frank Howard, '98.

Among the guests from town were the following: Mr. and Mrs. George Day and Miss Day, Mr. and Mrs. John C. Day and the Misses Day, Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Dustin, Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Dwight, Lieutenant and Mrs. Harold H. Eames, Colonel and Mrs. Frank W. Cheney, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur F. Eggleston, Mr. and Mrs. George Ellis and Fred Ellis, Miss Eno, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. English, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Bradley, the Rev. James W. Brando, Mrs. and Mrs. James H. Provost, Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Gross, and Miss Betti of New York City.
The 100th Anniversary of the Philanthropist's Birth.

PEABODY MEMORIAL.

Georgetown, Feb. 17, 1898.

Protestants and Catholics celebrated the 100th birthday of the Philanthropist.

EXERCISES IN MASSACHUSETTS TOWNS.

Oration at Peabody by Lieutenant-Governor Roger Wolcott.—School Children Take Part.

Peabody, Mass., Feb. 18.—The 100th anniversary of the birth of George Peabody was observed in this city today. The day was ushered in by the ringing of church bells. At 9 o'clock all the children of the lower grades of the public and private schools, some 500 in number, gathered at the institute and were entertained for an hour with music and recitation and a brief address by the Rev. J. W. Hudson of the Unitarian Church and members of the school committee, who told the children about the birth and rise of the great London banker. At 10:15 the pupils of the upper grades assembled in the same hall and were addressed upon the lessons of the life of Mr. Peabody by Professor O. S. Butler of Georgetown, who has prepared a life of the philanthropist for preservation in the archives of the London Historical Society.

The portrait of Queen Victoria in the institute library was decorated on either side with the English and American flags, and was also the life-size portrait of Mr. Peabody in the lecture hall. The literary exercises were held in the town hall this afternoon. The platform was occupied by a large number of invited guests. Francis H. Appleton delivered the introductory address and was followed by Lieutenant-Governor Roger Wolcott, the orator of the day. The speaker rehearsed the main incidents in the life of the philanthropist. Peabody, he said, was part of this town of Danvers, when the boy who was to bequeath to it his name was born here 100 years ago. Mr. Peabody's early life in this country, his career as a banker in London and his many gifts were recounted. "It is hardly necessary," said the speaker, "to make the admission that Mr. Peabody's character was not flawless. He had certain follies, and perhaps some faults. But this one thing he did; in the pregnant phrase of Mr. Gladstone, 'he taught men how to use money, and how not to be its slaves.' His immense wealth, honestly acquired, and unstained by chicane or fraud, he devoted in his own lifetime, with widest foresight, to extending to countless thousands of his fellow men, in time present and time to come, the opportunity for improvement in knowledge or in that decency of surroundings which ministers to self-respect. He illustrated the power of an endless life, in making comparison with the immortal few, who, like Washington or Lincoln, have changed the destiny of nations, or, who, like Luther, Columbus or Shakespeare, have opened new worlds to human faith, enterprise and intellect, we may well accord to George Peabody high place among those who have loved and served their fellow men.

"What he did was not the ready an impulsive and ill-regulated benevolence, which breeds dependence and pauperism among its beneficiaries, but was the accomplishment of a deliberate purpose, as wisely executed as it was nobly conceived, to lift successive generations of men and women to a higher plane of knowledge and enjoyment. It is true that in the eye of eternal justice his life may appear to differ from other and grander lives only in the magnitude of its bounty and the permanence of its results. But without questioning this judgment, it is not less true that in human estimate magnitude and permanence of achievement must ever bear heavily in the scales in which we weigh the lives of men.

The poem was entitled "A Hundred Years," and was by the Rev. A. J. Savage, pastor of Unity Church, Boston. The exercises were concluded with music. The celebration was closed with a banquet in the town hall this evening, at which Governor Greenhalge and other distinguished guests were present.

Metintosh-Gompf.

The marriage of Frederick J. Metintosh, son of David McIntosh, and Annie Ethelyn, daughter of Mrs. Emma J. Gompf of "The Courant," took place last evening at the apartments of the bride's mother in "The Goodwin," in this city. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. E. P. Parker, in the presence of only the immediate relatives of the couple.

After a brief wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. McIntosh will begin house-keeping at No. 51 Babcock street, where they will be at home to their friends.

Gomeruor Roger Wolcott.

The 100th Anniversary of the birth of George Peabody was observed in this city today. The mayor closed the schools in the afternoon and the pupils marched in a body from each school to the Peabody Museum, where each speech was presented with a souvenir and a brief account of the life and benefactions of the noted financier and philanthropist.

An announcement is made of the engagement of Mr. Erastus S. Root, son of Mr. G. Wells Root, who has recently recovered from a broken leg, and Miss Lillian A. Derman, the trained nurse who cared for him during the weeks he was confined to his home. The wedding will take place at the home of Miss Derman at Pittsfield, Mass., on Tuesday next.

Root-Dermont.

Erastus S. Root, son of G. Wells Root of this city, and Miss Lucille Derman of Pittsfield, Mass., were married at the home of the bride's parents in Pittsfield yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Only the relatives and immediate friends of the couple were present. After a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Root will return to this city and reside at the Linden.

Reception to Colonel and Mrs. Pope. A reception to Colonel and Mrs. George H. Pope was given by Mr. and Mrs. George H. Pope at their residence on Welderfield avenue last evening. The house was beautifully arranged with flowers from George Atwood's nursery in West Hartford and music was by the Deegan & Hatch Orchestra. Several hundred were sent out and a large number of Hartford people embraced the opportunity to meet Colonel and Mrs. Pope.
WEST SIDE SOCIAL SUCCESS LAST EVENING.

The New Building Decorated With Oriental Luxuriance—Large Company of Well-Known People Dance the Hours Away.

Westward the star of social empire took its course last evening, shedding its luster upon the dedication ball of the Prospect Casino, just over the West Hartford line on Farmington avenue.

The Casino made a full dress appearance with its beautifully architected assembly rooms, draped with yellow hang-

PROSPECT CASINO OPENING.

A CHARMING HOME WEDDING.

Marriage of Miss Washburn to J. C. Deane of Greenfield.

The residence of Mrs. W. B. Washburn on Main street, Greenfield, was the scene of a charming wedding last evening, when Miss Anna Spencer Washburn, daughter of the late Ex-Gov. William B. Washburn, was married to James Calhoun Deane, of Dr. Adasnus C. Deane of Greenfield.

The ceremony, which was witnessed only by the relatives and intimate friends of the families of the bride and groom, was performed at 6:30 o'clock. It took place in the parlor, the bridal couple standing in front of a window lined with wild astilbe and bride roses with palms on either side. The wedding was performed by Rev. Mr. Deane, Jr. of Miss. Lake W.

For the occasion, the parlor has been decorated with Bagdad curtains and eastern rugs. Servants will be in attendance during the evening.

This evening will occur the formal opening ball. The floor of the large hall and adjoining parlor has been crashed. The large hall, while quite elegant, did not hold 250 attended. The bridal couple took place in the parlor, while the members of the orchestra are to be stationed.

There will be two orchestras and sixteen dance and sixteen promenade numbers on the programme. The ball is strict

FEBRUARY 21, 1895.

THE CASINO OPENING.

A CHARMING HOME WEDDING.

Marriage of Miss Washburn to J. C. Deane of Greenfield.

The residence of Mrs. W. B. Washburn on Main street, Greenfield, was the scene of a charming wedding last evening, when Miss Anna Spencer Washburn, daughter of the late Ex-Gov. William B. Washburn, was married to James Calhoun Deane, of Dr. Adasnus C. Deane of Greenfield.

The ceremony, which was witnessed only by the relatives and intimate friends of the families of the bride and groom, was performed at 6:30 o'clock. It took place in the parlor, the bridal couple standing in front of a window lined with wild astilbe and bride roses with palms on either side. The wedding was performed by Rev. Mr. Deane, Jr. of Miss. Lake W.

For the occasion, the parlor has been decorated with Bagdad curtains and eastern rugs. Servants will be in attendance during the evening.

This evening will occur the formal opening ball. The floor of the large hall and adjoining parlor has been crashed. The large hall, while quite elegant, did not hold 250 attended. The bridal couple took place in the parlor, while the members of the orchestra are to be stationed.

There will be two orchestras and sixteen dance and sixteen promenade numbers on the programme. The ball is strict
An Opportunity Will Soon be Given to See the Child Dancer.

Little Ruby, probably the most wonderful child dancer in the world, is a native of this city. She has just returned to Hartford with her mother, Mrs. Kate A. Johnson, from a successful tour through the South and West. Before she starts across the ocean to fill a fourteen weeks' engagement in Paris, an opportunity is to be afforded Hartford people to see her and judge for themselves whether the fame she has won in London and New York has been earned. Little Ruby is now five years old, as beautiful as one of Raphael's cherubs, as full of grace as a fairy and withal as warm-hearted, full loving a little girl as ever lived. She loves to dance as other children love to play, and is never more happy than when exercising her art for the pleasure of her friends.

Little Ruby's trip to London last season won her many laurels. While there she was the protege of the Prince and Princess of Wales, and appeared three times before a royal company at Marlborough House. The entertainment at Unity Hall on February 27, which is planned as a farewell or rather an annual entertainment at Unity Hall Wednesday evening, February 27, happened at St. Peter's Cathedral in London at the time of her last visit and is to be a grand reception last night. Unity Hall was filled with an audience of splendid people, and not only were kind, motherly faces in plentiful evidence all over the house, but many children had come, and they witnessed the entertainment with the utmost interest and the liveliest demonstrations of pleasure. Of course it was delightful. Four children of extraordinary talent, almost startling talent, entertained here on the stage without the least embarrassment or hampering feeling of consciousness, and with a sublime confidence in themselves, and the audience. Their productions were most remarkable. Little Johnnie McKeever, a handsome boy of 7 or 8 years, played on the violin an air of some difficulty, with pizzicato passages and cadences and two variations, with great correctness, ease, and harmonic expression. The tone, the handling and the musical expression were admirable. The violin is less than half size, to suit the fingers of the little artist. Then Sadie Jacoby gave recitations, remarkable for a sort of grotesque earnestness, that carried considerable dramatic force. Baby Parker, a beautiful little girl, sang several songs very clearly and sweetly, and acted out their sentiment with captivating childish art. But the chief was "Little Ruby." She is a splendid dancer, hardly 5 years old. And she is not a precocious child or an infant phenomenon, but simply like any other child of less than 5 years, only that she is able to use her feet, and has an excellent sense of rhythm and musical expression in her. It probably came to her as the very first thing, as she can dance with all her body, and she would dance whether there were audiences or not. It is not a created sense, but a natural talent, guided in accepted directions, that enables her to do skirt and Chinese face whose expression fits the action. And she sings in that low, childish voice that is like the whisper of a breeze, and looks at one with great eyes of confidence and solemnity. For all this is very seldom to be seen to the little girl, and is the expression of her nature in a way that she wants you to respect.

Little Ruby and her friends had a grand reception last night. Unity Hall was filled with an audience of splendid people, and not only were kind, motherly faces in plentiful evidence all over the house, but many children had come, and they witnessed the entertainment with the utmost interest and the liveliest demonstrations of pleasure. Of course it was delightful. Four children of extraordinary, almost startling talent, entertained here on the stage without the least embarrassment or hampering feeling of consciousness, and with a sublime confidence in themselves, and the audience. Their productions were most remarkable. Little Johnnie McKeever, a handsome boy of 7 or 8 years, played on the violin an air of some difficulty, with pizzicato passages and cadences and two variations, with great correctness, ease, and harmonic expression. The tone, the handling and the musical expression were admirable. The violin is less than half size, to suit the fingers of the little artist. Then Sadie Jacoby gave recitations, remarkable for a sort of grotesque earnestness, that carried considerable dramatic force. Baby Parker, a beautiful little girl, sang several songs very clearly and sweetly, and acted out their sentiment with captivating childish art. But the chief was "Little Ruby." She is a splendid dancer, hardly 5 years old. And she is not a precocious child or an infant phenomenon, but simply like any other child of less than 5 years, only that she is able to use her feet, and has an excellent sense of rhythm and musical expression in her. It probably came to her as the very first thing, as she can dance with all her body, and she would dance whether there were audiences or not. It is not a created sense, but a natural talent, guided in accepted directions, that enables her to do skirt and Chinese face whose expression fits the action. And she sings in that low, childish voice that is like the whisper of a breeze, and looks at one with great eyes of confidence and solemnity. For all this is very seldom to be seen to the little girl, and is the expression of her nature in a way that she wants you to respect.

All in all, it was a lovely evening, begun early and ended soon, and exhibited four lovely children in graceful and enjoyable performances. The Beeman & Hatch Orchestra furnished a musical background to the entertainment, and gave lively cum-

For the entertainment will go on sale at Gallup & Morgan's Saturday.
The marriage of Miss Augusta Floyd Vingut, daughter of George Vingut, to Herbert Wolcott Bowen, United States Consul-General in Spain, took place yesterday at the home of the bridegroom's brother, No. 46 West Thirty-fourth St. Because of the recent death of the bridegroom's brother only relatives and a small number of intimate friends were invited to the ceremony, which was performed by Archbishop Corrigan, assisted by the Rev. Father Connolly, and remained for the breakfast. Miss Grace Coutert was the maid of honor. Miss Dorothy Van Schalk and Miss Marie Vyse were the bridesmaids. Clarence Winthrop Bowen was his brother's best man. Mr. and Mrs. Bowen will make their home in Barcelona. The bridegroom, who was graduated from Yale University and the Columbia College Law School, was appointed Consul-General by President Harrison five years ago. Recently Mr. Bowen was made Consul-General by President Cleveland.

Dance Last Evening.

Mr. and Mrs. John C. Day and their daughters gave a dance, chiefly for the younger society people, in City Mission Hall last evening. About eighty were present. The decorations were of yellow and the favors during the interval consisted of apples covered after supper with yellow ribbons. The ceiling, which was painted in the German fashion, was encircled by Arthur P. Day and Francis Persons. Three presented Mrs. Kr and Mrs. John C. Day, the Misses Day, Miss Caroline E. Day, the Misses Jackson of New York, Mr. and Mrs. John Addison Porter, Miss Betts of New York City, Miss Gilbert, Miss Alice Goodwin, Miss Shinn, Mrs. Mrs. Henry C. Bowen, who was pricier of the "Independent." He was educated at Columbia Law School and spent two years in study in Paris and Berlin, President Harrison appointed him consul at Barcelona, Spain; President Cleveland promoted him to be consul-general. President McKinley then made him minister to Persia, succeeded his brother-in-law, Shornbon Hardy, who went to Athens as American minister.

The Divorce Suit Against Miss Gould.

Friends of Herbert Wolcott Bowen, United States minister to Persia, in this city and Woodstock, are surprised to learn that Mrs. Bowen has begun suit for divorce and that her counsel has filed the papers with the clerk of the supreme court in Newport. She charges desertion. She has lived in Newport for a year or more and has been recently taken a new lease of her villa. Mrs. Bowen is the daughter of George F. Vingut of No. 46 East Twenty-sixth Street, New York, and is a beautiful and accomplished woman, and has many friends in Newport society. Mr. Bowen is the son of the late Henry C. Bowen, who was the pricer of the "Independent." He was educated at Columbia Law School and spent two years in study in Paris and Berlin, President Harrison appointed him consul at Barcelona, Spain; President Cleveland promoted him to be consul-general. President McKinley then made him minister to Persia, succeeded his brother-in-law, Shornbon Hardy, who went to Athens as American minister.

DIVORCE GRANTED.

The Herald reports that a decree of divorce was granted yesterday in Newport. The plaintiff is Miss Anna Gould, the daughter of Joseph Jackson, Senator, and Mrs. Chandler of Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. John Addison Porter, Miss Betts of New York City, Miss Gilbert, Miss Alice Goodwin, Miss Shinn, Mrs. Robinson, Mrs. Lucius F. Robinson, Miss Gould, Miss Webb, Miss Talbot, Miss Brindley, Miss Allen, Miss Pierson, Miss Root, Miss Twichel, Miss Plimpton, the Misses Johnson, Miss Minor, Misses Hartin, Dyer, Burtstede, Gates, Parsons, Ferguson and Star of Trinity College, J. L. Bunde, T. Wells Goodridge, P. S. Robinson, P. Robinson, E. P. Robinson, E. P. Robinson, H. A. Perkins, Edward Perkin, Philip McCook, R. W. Huntington, C. P. Coover, W. F. Whitmore, F. D. and others.

ANNOUNCING MISS ANNA GOULD ENGAGED.

Harry Woodruff, the actor, the May 19, New York, January 12—The Herald says A. Delmonico's on Thursday a well-known New York clubman, prominent in society and a friend of George J. Gould, the Countess Castellan, that

ANNOUNCING MISS ANNA GOULD ENGAGED.

Harry Woodruff, the actor, the May 19, New York, January 12—The Herald says A. Delmonico's on Thursday a well-known New York clubman, prominent in society and a friend of George J. Gould, the Countess Castellan, that

DIVORCE GRANTED.

To Wife of Minister Plenipotentiary—The engagement to Persia.

Putnam, May 25

Mrs. Herbert W. Bowen, wife of the envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to Persia, was granted a di-vore yesterday in the appellate division of the supreme court at Newport. Mrs. Bowen by deposition stated that she was 21 when she married Bowen, on February 26, 1895, in New York. Her husband was 32 years old at the time. Immediately after her marriage trouble began over a small amount of personal property which she had inherited. Her husband had prepared a paper for her to sign which conveyed to him the property in question, but she had shown the paper to her father, who had advised her to seek counsel, after which she refused to sign the paper. Again in Barcelona, her husband prepared an-

THE GOULD WEDDING.

Arrival of the Castellane—Miss Anna Gould's Faith.

New York, Feb. 25.—The Marquis and Marquise de Castellane, the father and mother of Count de Castellane, who is about to marry Miss Anna Gould, arrived here yesterday on the French line steamer La Chaumière. Accompanied by Jean de Castellane, he was met by Archbishop Corrigan, who performed the ceremony.

Daughter of a Rham King Marries a Foreign Nobleman.

Henry in of No Account in the linen of the bride, Count Castellane, and Mrs. George Jay Gould, Fifth avenue and Sixty-seventh street, as the ceremony could not be held in the cathedral owing to the fact that the bride is a Protestant. The canons of the church of Rome prescribe baptism in due form before solemnization of the rite of matrimony before the altar of that church. The bride is a Presbyterian, and while she consented to the Catholic rite, she declined to join that church. A special dispensation was therefore granted, and the civil rites were performed.

A wedding in millionairedom.

SPRINGFIELD, TUESDAY, MARCH 5.

COUNT DE CASTELLANE.

Miss Anna Gould, the daughter of Mrs. George Jay Gould, and a cousin of J. Gould, until at the dais. Grouped about in the front of the dais were the relatives of the bride and groom.

The bridal procession descended the stairs at the side of the dais. The doors of all in white. They were Miss Helen Gould, Miss Anna Gould's sister, and the ushers, Prince del Drago, and Jean, Count Castellane, the Marquis and Marquise de Castellane, parents of the groom. Count de Castellane entered the hall a moment later with his best man, Count Jean de Castellane. They took positions at the side of the dais.

The bridal procession descended the stairs and passed along the floral canopied walk through the music-room and into the East India room in the following order. First came the ushers, Prince del Drago, and Jean, Count Castellane, the Marquis and Marquise de Castellane, parents of the groom. Count de Castellane entered from the hall a moment later with his best man, Count Jean de Castellane. They took positions at the side of the dais.

A wedding in millionairedom.

Daughter of a Railway King Marries a Foreign Nobleman.

Money is of No Account in the Magnificent Wedding of Miss Anna Gould and the Count de Castellane.

Miss Anna Gould became the countess de Castellane at high noon in New York yesterday. Archbishop Corrigan officiating. The wedding took place at the home of George Jay Gould, Fifth avenue and Sixty-seventh street, the cathedral touching the keys and the strains of the bridal chorus from "Lohengrin" floated through the house. There was a brief delay as the procession was being formed in the library on the second floor. Archbishop Corrigan and two assistents from the cathedral took their places on the dais. Grouped about in the front of the room were the relatives of the bride, and the Marquis and Marquise de Castellane, parents of the groom. Count de Castellane entered from the hall a moment later with his best man, Count Jean de Castellane. They took positions at the side of the dais.

The bridal procession descended the stairs and passed along the floral canopied walk through the music-room and into the East India room in the following order. First came the ushers, Prince del Drago, and Jean, Count Castellane, the Marquis and Marquise de Castellane, parents of the groom. Count de Castellane entered from the hall a moment later with his best man, Count Jean de Castellane. They took positions at the side of the dais.

A wedding in millionairedom.

Daughter of a Railway King Marries a Foreign Nobleman.

Money is of No Account in the Magnificent Wedding of Miss Anna Gould and the Count de Castellane.

Miss Anna Gould became the countess de Castellane at high noon in New York yesterday. Archbishop Corrigan officiating. The wedding took place at the home of George Jay Gould, Fifth avenue and Sixty-seventh street, the cathedral touching the keys and the strains of the bridal chorus from "Lohengrin" floated through the house. There was a brief delay as the procession was being formed in the library on the second floor. Archbishop Corrigan and two assistents from the cathedral took their places on the dais. Grouped about in the front of the room were the relatives of the bride, and the Marquis and Marquise de Castellane, parents of the groom. Count de Castellane entered from the hall a moment later with his best man, Count Jean de Castellane. They took positions at the side of the dais.

The bridal procession descended the stairs and passed along the floral canopied walk through the music-room and into the East India room in the following order. First came the ushers, Prince del Drago, and Jean, Count Castellane, the Marquis and Marquise de Castellane, parents of the groom. Count de Castellane entered from the hall a moment later with his best man, Count Jean de Castellane. They took positions at the side of the dais.

The bridal procession descended the stairs and passed along the floral canopied walk through the music-room and into the East India room in the following order. First came the ushers, Prince del Drago, and Jean, Count Castellane, the Marquis and Marquise de Castellane, parents of the groom. Count de Castellane entered from the hall a moment later with his best man, Count Jean de Castellane. They took positions at the side of the dais.

The bridal procession descended the stairs and passed along the floral canopied walk through the music-room and into the East India room in the following order. First came the ushers, Prince del Drago, and Jean, Count Castellane, the Marquis and Marquise de Castellane, parents of the groom. Count de Castellane entered from the hall a moment later with his best man, Count Jean de Castellane. They took positions at the side of the dais.

The bridal procession descended the stairs and passed along the floral canopied walk through the music-room and into the East India room in the following order. First came the ushers, Prince del Drago, and Jean, Count Castellane, the Marquis and Marquise de Castellane, parents of the groom. Count de Castellane entered from the hall a moment later with his best man, Count Jean de Castellane. They took positions at the side of the dais.

The bridal procession descended the stairs and passed along the floral canopied walk through the music-room and into the East India room in the following order. First came the ushers, Prince del Drago, and Jean, Count Castellane, the Marquis and Marquise de Castellane, parents of the groom. Count de Castellane entered from the hall a moment later with his best man, Count Jean de Castellane. They took positions at the side of the dais.

The bridal procession descended the stairs and passed along the floral canopied walk through the music-room and into the East India room in the following order. First came the ushers, Prince del Drago, and Jean, Count Castellane, the Marquis and Marquise de Castellane, parents of the groom. Count de Castellane entered from the hall a moment later with his best man, Count Jean de Castellane. They took positions at the side of the dais.

The bridal procession descended the stairs and passed along the floral canopied walk through the music-room and into the East India room in the following order. First came the ushers, Prince del Drago, and Jean, Count Castellane, the Marquis and Marquise de Castellane, parents of the groom. Count de Castellane entered from the hall a moment later with his best man, Count Jean de Castellane. They took positions at the side of the dais.

The bridal procession descended the stairs and passed along the floral canopied walk through the music-room and into the East India room in the following order. First came the ushers, Prince del Drago, and Jean, Count Castellane, the Marquis and Marquise de Castellane, parents of the groom. Count de Castellane entered from the hall a moment later with his best man, Count Jean de Castellane. They took positions at the side of the dais.

The bridal procession descended the stairs and passed along the floral canopied walk through the music-room and into the East India room in the following order. First came the ushers, Prince del Drago, and Jean, Count Castellane, the Marquis and Marquise de Castellane, parents of the groom. Count de Castellane entered from the hall a moment later with his best man, Count Jean de Castellane. They took positions at the side of the dais.

The bridal procession descended the stairs and passed along the floral canopied walk through the music-room and into the East India room in the following order. First came the ushers, Prince del Drago, and Jean, Count Castellane, the Marquis and Marquise de Castellane, parents of the groom. Count de Castellane entered from the hall a moment later with his best man, Count Jean de Castellane. They took positions at the side of the dais.
IN THE PUBLIC EYE.

THE CASTELLANES' PARIS HOME.

Few of the American women married to foreign noblemen have been so constantly talked and written about as the Countess Boni de Castellane, who was Miss Anna Gould. She has done little, since she married, to attract attention to herself; but her husband, the blond and pretty Count Boni, has shown much energy in keeping himself in the public eye, with the result that several of the Gould millions are said to have passed through his fingers. He has bought houses, yachts, and all manner of things.

It is really understandable that the Count de Castellane should desire a home like the Petit Trianon at Versailles, that exquisite palace that Louis XV built for Mme. du Barry, for it is one of the most beautiful buildings in Europe. The Castellane, imitation stands near the Place de l'Étoile, and, with the land, it cost millions, to say nothing of the furnishings, which are very rich and elaborate. But it seems to be worth all the expenditure.

THE FATHER OF HIS SON.

It is not often that it falls to the lot of a father to illustrate the books of his son. John Lockwood Kipling was a person of considerable importance until he was eclipsed by his offspring. Furthermore, he is a charming old gentleman of sixty, showing to all the world a courtesy that his son reserves for his intimates. The elder Kipling is an artist, and he went to Bombay in 1865 to become an instructor in an art school. He married Miss Alice MacDonald, the daughter of a Methodist clergyman, and their son, Rudyard, was born at Bombay.

The elder Kipling afterwards removed to Lahore, where he founded the Mayo Art School, which was endowed by the government in memory of Lord Mayo. After this he was appointed curator of the Lahore Museum, the

THE RESIDENCE OF THE COUNT AND COUNTESS BONI DE CASTELLANE—THE LATTER FORMERLY MISS ANNA GOULD—NEAR THE ARC DE TRIOMPHE, IN PARIS. THE BUILDING IS AN IMITATION OF THE PETIT TRIANON AT VERSAILLES.

3 J M

THE TIMES.
THE GOULD WEDDING.

Arrival of the Castellanes—Miss Anna Gould's Death.

New York, Feb. 25.—The Marquis and Marquise of Castellane, the father and mother of Castellane, about to marry here, arrived by the steamer La, accompanied by their servants, in a large express train. The marquise brought with her a large trunk of baggage. The marquise's younger son and his bride will arrive here by the next steamer. The marquise is accompanied by the Duke de Castellane, her eldest son, and his wife, the Countess de Castellane. The Duke de Castellane is the father of the new bride, Anna, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Jay Gould. The marquise is the mother of Mrs. Anna Castellano, who recently arrived in New York.

The wedding of George Jay Gould and Miss Anna Castellano is to be held in the Twenty-fifth Street Methodist Church. The marquise will be the chief witness. The service will be performed by the Rev. Dr. John N. Foster, the rector of the church.

THE FATHER OF THE BRITISH NAVY.

There are not many sailors who have had the distinction of being photographed with the strong right arm of H. R. H. the Prince of Wales resting familiarly on their shoulder. But there are very few men like Sir Harry Keppel, “the little admiral,” “the father of the British navy,” and the “honorary member of the royal family,” as he is variously known. He is one of the most picturesque and popular old sea dogs in Europe. He is ninety-two years old, and he has seen and known many wonderful things in his service under four English sovereigns. Sir Harry was engaged in the largest and finest institution of the kind in India. He retired a few years after his son's place among contemporary writers was firmly fixed. His home is in Wiltshire, in England. The peculiar elephant design which has been used as a sort of trade mark on the covers of some of his son's books is a bit of the elder Kipling's handiwork.

THE JUNIOR MUNSEY.

John Lockwood Kipling, the Father of Rudyard Kipling, Formerly Curator of the Lahore Museum, in India.

From a photograph by Elliott & Fry, London.

John Lockwood Kipling, the father of Rudyard Kipling, is a highly exciting occupation of chasing...
COUNTESS DE CASTELLANE.

Castellane's Second Son.

New York, Dec. 29.—Word was received at the office of George Gould this morning from Paris, announcing that a son had been born yesterday to Count and Countess De Castellane, formerly Miss Anna Gould of New York, at the Hotel des Invalides. The countess was formerly Anna Gould, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Jay Gould, of New York. The first son was born January 18, 1896.

Son Born to the Castellanes.

Paris, April 15.—Countess Boniface de Castellane, formerly Miss Anna Gould of New York, gave birth to a son yesterday. This is the third child to the Castellanes, the others being a daughter,人群中ter, and a son.

All readers of the New York newspapers must feel a sense of relief that at last the overblown bubble of the wedding of Count Boniface de Castellane and Miss Anna Gould has really taken place. The ceremony took place this noon, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. George Jay Gould, on Fifth Avenue. Very likely the couple will find life to be no nearer heaven, for the rest of their travels they won't be a count and countess, but the owner of millions. Meanwhile an auction is to be held for the benefit of the bondholders of the Kansas and Pacific Railroad, and the amount of the claim is $11,000,000, which would be ten times covered by the aggregate wealth of that vast estate.

New York papers deem it a matter of sufficient public importance to justify an account of "the Esterhazy jewel," a large diamond surrounded by eleven smaller ones, and well known in Europe, which Miss Helen, the sister of Anna Gould, has purchased of Tiffany & Co. and presented to the bride.

The Hartford Times.

Monday, March 6.
HARRY WOODRUFF,
To join the Lyceum Theatre's stock company.

Still another of our title-for-money marriages has come to grief; and then, too, a previous failure of the kind continues from the gutters of Paris, to provide entertainment to those the world over who may be entertained by such exhibitions of the dignity of human nature. It is to be said, however, that most of these marriages endure longer than four years.

THE CASTELLANES ARE OFF.

Extract: The curiosity of the public.

George Gould denies that there was any marriage settlement on the count.

The extraordinary interest or curiosity, with which the public have viewed the Gould-Castellane wedding in New York was again manifested yesterday when the young couple embarked on the steamship New York of the American line for Europe. The count and countess left the Hotel Waldorf at 9.30 o'clock and reached the pier foot of Fulton street at 10.30 in a closed carriage. The deck was crowded with freight, and when the throng poured in the passageway intended to lead to the steamer's gang-plank was choked up. Hundreds stood on freight boxes, and not a few climbed to the dome of the big pillars that support the pier's shed. The crowd was forced back by the police when the carriage containing the count and his wife arrived, and it required the united efforts of the best part of the steamboat squad to keep the crowd in check.

The young countess was dressed in a rich costume of black, and she lost no time in getting up the gang-plank, once free from the carriage. The crowd followed close behind and all the embarkation was momentarily stopped. There were a dozen willing stewards on hand to show the couple to their suite of rooms, which are Nos 4 and 6 on the starboard side of the promenade deck. The other passengers and their friends who were on board crowded after the pair, and even after they had entered their rooms some of the more curious, but less refined, peered through the portholes to catch a glimpse of the couple. It became necessary to pull the curtains across the portholes, and the officers of the ship had to close the alleyways leading to the rooms to prevent the crowd from choking the entrance completely. Count de Castellane came from the room a minute or so later and strolled about the ship. About the same time the steward brought up to the suite from the main saloon, where they had been deposited, half a dozen floral pieces.

Charles Raoul Duval reached the steamer several hours before she sailed to Saki. He superintended the sending up of a case of wine to Mr and Mrs Edwin Gould on the promenade deck. Following the case of wine arrived a whole hot-house of beautiful flowers, and each consignment was followed by an eager, gaping, almost hysterical crowd of women, who lined up along the pier and struggled for the nearest places to the saloon gangway. Shortly after the newly-married couple had reached the deck of the vessel Mr and Mrs George Gould arrived, and were followed soon afterward by Mr and Mrs George Gould. They all went on board, and a farewell party was held in the commodious state-rooms of the count and countess. There were 41 pieces of baggage, including trunks, boxes, parcels and endless smaller articles. Before the departure of the vessel the court, in speaking of their plans, said: "From Southampton we shall go direct to London, where we shall stay four days. Then we intend to cross the channel and spend a week in Paris. That will be the beginning of an extended tour through Europe, which will last I know not how long."

George J. Gould, after seeing the pair off for Europe, was interviewed by a quartet of reporters at his office in the Western Union building. He said: "Now that my sister's wedding is over and she has gone away, I have decided to make a statement concerning one report in particular which has been circulated broadcast. The statement that Count de Castellane ever received a penny from the Gould family is a falsehood from beginning to end. That
HENRY WOODRUFF,
WHO WILL PLAY THE TITLE ROLE IN “BEN HUR”
NEXT SEASON. 1902
HENRY MADE WOODRUFF, "WHO HAS A SUCCESS OF BROWN OF HARVARD"

I have great respect and admiration for the count. Were he to make any suggestion touching upon financial questions that might benefit him, I hardly know what I might do. Then it is not true that there was any consideration of $3,000,000 or some such sum.

"It is a falsehood created by some idle person, for what purpose I do not know. Certainly it is not intended to do the family any good. I haven't the remotest idea how the report originated or by whom it was started. I wish I did. I am surprised and disappointed that any newspaper or collection of newspapers would lend their aid to circulating a wicked, malicious story of that kind.

Count de Castellane has money in his own right. His income is more than sufficient for all his wants and desires, and why, in view of these facts, any person could possibly be so criminal and contemptible as to create a report that any settlement was made is more than I can imagine. My sister loves the count and is loved in return. There was no pecuniary interest in their relationship.

Mrs. Vanderbilt has spent the summer in England at an extensive estate on the Thames near London, which had been rented for her, while Mr. Vanderbilt has spent his time in Paris. It is alleged that when some time ago a tentative agreement of separation was reached, Mr. Vanderbilt agreed to settle upon his wife $10,000,000.

THE VANDERBILT SCANDAL

Mrs. W. K. to Take Up Her Residence in Newport.

Newport, R. I., Sept. 20.—Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt is to come to Newport upon advice of her New York counsel, which strengthens the theory that divorce is the purpose of her visit. Mrs. Vanderbilt's New York attorney, it was learned yesterday, had himself ordered the marble palace reopened, and was therefore, responsible for her action in coming to Newport, a Vanderbilt stronghold. Active work preparing "Marble House" for occupancy is still in progress. Many out of employment, appreciating the opportunity, have gone to the Vanderbilt palace looking for work.

THE VANDERBILT TROUBLE

Statements of London Friends About Their Affairs.

London, Sept. 3.—The domestic affairs have been Americanized for the few days past, and a separate agreement to begin the proceedings is apparently in process. Property has been proactively managed by our friends in London, and it is early in the evening that they have been parceled out here at early in the morning. Misunderstandings of an international character are the order of the day. Mrs. Vanderbilt's instructions to wait for further orders.

Whether he still intends to go to Humburg and Carsbad with his wife, his friends in London are unable to say, but they know nothing to the contrary. Such is the only basis, as far as I know, for the sensational stories about Mr. and Mrs. Vanderbilt.
Wife of William K. to Begin Divorce Proceedings.

New York, Aug. 29.—A morning paper says that Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt is about to begin divorce proceedings. The Vanderbilts, it is said, have lived apart since last spring. The crisis in their affairs, according to the "Commercial Advertiser," to-day, was reached immediately after the running of the Grand Prix de Paris, June 17 of this year.

"Mr. Vanderbilt," says the authority, "won 40,000 francs on the race and almost immediately after receiving his winnings introduced to the woman well known for her beauty and numerous following among the list of welders. She fascinated the millionaire and as evidence of his appreciation of her company presented her with 40,000 francs so openly that several friends saw the unusual occurrence and demonstrated with him. The story of this event was confirmed by the establishment for her in Paris and subsequently gave her a residence at Deanville with servants and every luxury she may desire.

Mrs. Vanderbilt has spent the summer in England at an extensive estate on the Thames near London, which had been rented for her, while Mr. Vanderbilt has spent his time in Paris. It is alleged that when some time ago a tentative agreement of separation was reached, Mr. Vanderbilt agreed to settle upon his wife $10,000,000.

THE VANDERBILT SCANDAL.

Mrs. W. K. to Take Up Her Residence in Newport.

Newport, R. I., Sept. 20.—Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt is to come to Newport upon advice of her New York counsel, which strengthens the theory that divorce is the purpose of her visit. Mrs. Vanderbilt's New York attorney, when he was learned yesterday, had himself ordered the marble palace reopened, and was, therefore, responsible for her action in coming to Newport, a Vanderbilt stronghold. Active work preparing "Marble House" for occupancy is still in progress. Many out of employment, appreciating the opportunity, have gone to the Vanderbilt palace looking for work.

THE VANDERBILT TROUBLE.

Statements of London Friends About Their Affairs.

London, Sept. 2.—The domestic affairs of William K. Vanderbilt have been the subject of gossip in the American circles of London and Paris for the past two months. Within a few days these reports have been magnified into the assertion that a legal separation had been agreed upon between Mr. Vanderbilt and his wife, and that a settlement of $10,000,000 had been provided for Mrs. Vanderbilt by her husband.

There has been no legal separation yet within the knowledge of their London friends. What has happened is this: The Vanderbilts have not been particularly discreet regarding their private affairs since they returned to England at the end of their long cruise early in the summer. They have had disagreements, which have not been kept from the eyes and ears of others. They have quarrelled more than once.

When they went to Paris Mrs. Vanderbilt was not pleased with the furnishings of the suites provided for her at the Hotel Continental. She had the rooms emptied, and furnished them richly at her own expense. Mr. Vanderbilt, Mr. Vanderbilt did not like this.

Before coming to London Mrs. Vanderbilt engaged rooms at the Hotel Berkeley. Mr. Vanderbilt called at the Berkeley and expressed much annoyance at what his wife had done. He left word that no rooms were wanted, as they were going to stop at Brown's Hotel. Nevertheless Mrs. Vanderbilt went to the Berkeley, and Mr. Vanderbilt went to Brown's, and they remained at their respective hotels during the few days they were in London.

Mr. Vanderbilt bought Danesfield House, the magnificent estate of Scott Murray on the Thames, near Henley, for the summer. Mrs. Vanderbilt went there in July and remained there a few days ago. Her husband was rarely there. On Tuesday, August 21, Mrs. Vanderbilt left Danesfield House, saying that she was going to join her husband in Paris and go with him to German watering places. The servants, except those in personal attendance upon her remain at Danesfield House, under instructions to wait for further orders.

Mr. Vanderbilt has been at the Hotel Continental in London for a week past. Whether he still intends to go to Hamburg and Carlsbad with his wife, his friends in London are unable to say, but they know nothing to the contrary. Such is the only basis, as far as is known in London, for the sensational stories about Mr. and Mrs. Vanderbilt.
W. K. VANDERBILT

DIES IN PARIS

Financier Long a Patron of French Turf—Was Active In War Work.

Paris, July 22.—William K. Vanderbilt, the American financier, died here at 8 o'clock this evening. At the bedside were his wife, his daughter, the Duchess of Marlborough, his two sons, William K. Jr., and Harold, and Dr. Edmund Goe, the family physician in Paris.

William Kissam Vanderbilt, son of William H., and grandson of Commodore Vanderbilt, one of the most prominent railroad executives, financiers and sportsmen in the United States, passed much of his time in recent years abroad. The Duke of Marlborough married his only daughter, Consuelo, 1855.

William Kissam Vanderbilt was born on Staten Island, N. Y., December 12, 1845. After receiving an academic education in America, he studied for several years in Geneva, Switzerland. He married Miss Alva Smith, of Mobile, Ala., (now Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont) in 1874 and to them were born, besides Consuelo, two other children, William K. Jr., and Harold Vanderbilt. On April 23, 1903, Mr. Vanderbilt married Mrs. A. H. Rutherford in London, England.

During the war, Mr. Vanderbilt was active in hospital work and relief abroad and in promoting the work of the Lafayette Escadrille. On one occasion he contributed $60,000 to the McNeil hospital fund, and at another time gave $1,000,000 for the war relief in Italy.

Mr. Vanderbilt was born on Staten Island, N. Y., December 12, 1845. After receiving an academic education in America, he studied for several years in Geneva, Switzerland. He married Miss Alva Smith, of Mobile, Ala., (now Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont) in 1874 and to them were born, besides Consuelo, two other children, William K. Jr., and Harold Vanderbilt. On April 23, 1903, Mr. Vanderbilt married Mrs. A. H. Rutherford in London, England.

The Wife Is to Retire on a Gift of $3,000,000.

Her Extravagance Too Much Even for a Vanderbilt.

William K. Vanderbilt, the multimillionaire, who is the grandson of old "Commodore" Vanderbilt, the founder of the fortunes of the numerous house of Vanderbilt, and who built the splendid million-dollar marble palace at Newport, is to be divorced from his wife. The suit will be brought in Rhode Island, where the extravagant wife is said to be living, nearly alone, in the gorgeous pillared pile that she built at 6 o'clock this evening. At the bedside were "Maintenon," "His Prestige," "Netofoia," and "Gibraltar." Besides having built the splendid establishment in which she lives, Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt has lived there for nearly alone, in the gorgeous pillared pile that she built at 6 o'clock this evening. At the bedside were "Maintenon," "His Prestige," "Netofoia," and "Gibraltar." Besides having built the splendid establishment in which she lives, Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt has lived there for nearly alone, in the gorgeous pillared pile that she built at 6 o'clock this evening. At the bedside were "Maintenon," "His Prestige," "Netofoia," and "Gibraltar." Besides having built the splendid establishment in which she lives, Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt has lived there for nearly alone, in the gorgeous pillared pile that she built at 6 o'clock this evening. At the bedside were "Maintenon," "His Prestige," "Netofoia," and "Gibraltar." Besides having built the splendid establishment in which she lives, Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt has lived there for nearly alone, in the gorgeous pillared pile that she built at 6 o'clock this evening. At the bedside were "Maintenon," "His Prestige," "Netofoia," and "Gibraltar." Besides having built the splendid establishment in which she lives, Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt has lived there for nearly alone, in the gorgeous pillared pile that she built at 6 o'clock this evening. At the bedside were "Maintenon," "His Prestige," "Netofoia," and "Gibraltar." Besides having built the splendid establishment in which she lives, Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt has lived there for nearly alone, in the gorgeous pillared pile that she built at 6 o'clock this evening. At the bedside were "Maintenon," "His Prestige," "Netofoia," and "Gibraltar." Besides having built the splendid establishment in which she lives, Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt has lived there for nearly alone, in the gorgeous pillared pile that she built at 6 o'clock this evening. At the bedside were "Maintenon," "His Prestige," "Netofoia," and "Gibraltar." Besides having built the splendid establishment in which she lives, Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt has lived there for nearly alone, in the gorgeous pillared pile that she built at 6 o'clock this evening. At the bedside were "Maintenon," "His Prestige," "Netofoia," and "Gibraltar." Besides having built the splendid establishment in which she lives, Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt has lived there for nearly alone, in the gorgeous pillared pile that she built at 6 o'clock this evening. At the bedside were "Maintenon," "His Prestige," "Netofoia," and "Gibraltar." Besides having built the splendid establishment in which she lives, Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt has lived there for nearly alone, in the gorgeous pillared pile that she built at 6 o'clock this evening. At the bedside were "Maintenon," "His Prestige," "Netofoia," and "Gibraltar." Besides having built the splendid establishment in which she lives, Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt has lived there for nearly alone, in the gorgeous pillared pile that she built at 6 o'clock this evening. At the bedside were "Maintenon," "His Prestige," "Netofoia," and "Gibraltar." Besides having built the splendid establishment in which she lives, Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt has lived there for nearly alone, in the gorgeous pillared pile that she built at 6 o'clock this evening. At the bedside were "Maintenon," "His Prestige," "Netofoia," and "Gibraltar." Besides having built the splendid establishment in which she lives, Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt has lived there for nearly alone, in the gorgeous pillared pile that she built at 6 o'clock this evening. At the bedside were "Maintenon," "His Prestige," "Netofoia," and "Gibraltar." Besides having built the splendid establishment in which she lives, Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt has lived there for nearly alone, in the gorgeous pillared pile that she built at 6 o'clock this evening. At the bedside were "Maintenon," "His Prestige," "Netofoia," and "Gibraltar." Besides having built the splendid establishment in which she lives, Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt has lived there for nearly alone, in the gorgeous pillared pile that she built at 6 o'clock this evening. At the bedside were "Maintenon," "His Prestige," "Netofoia," and "Gibraltar." Besides having built the splendid establishment in which she lives, Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt has lived there for nearly alone, in the gorgeous pillared pile that she built at 6 o'clock this evening. At the bedside were "Maintenon," "His Prestige," "Netofoia," and "Gibraltar." Besides having built the splendid establishment in which she lives, Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt has lived there for nearly alone, in the gorgeous pillared pile that she built at 6 o'clock this evening. At the bedside were "Maintenon," "His Prestige," "Netofoia," and "Gibraltar." Besides having built the splendid establishment in which she lives, Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt has lived there for nearly alone, in the gorgeous pillared pile that she built at 6 o'clock this evening. At the bedside were "Maintenon," "His Prestige," "Netofoia," and "Gibraltar." Besides having built the splendid establishment in which she lives, Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt has lived there for nearly alone, in the gorgeous pillared pile that she built at 6 o'clock this evening. At the bedside were "Maintenon," "His Prestige," "Netofoia," and "Gibraltar." Besides having built the splendid establishment in which she lives, Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt has lived there for nearly alone, in the gorgeous pillared pile that she built at 6 o'clock this evening. At the bedside were "Maintenon," "His Prestige," "Netofoia," and "Gibraltar." Besides having built the splendid establishment in which she lives, Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt has lived there for nearly alone, in the gorgeous pillared pile that she built at 6 o'clock this evening. At the bedside were "Maintenon," "His Prestige," "Netofoia," and "Gibraltar." Besides having built the splendid establishment in which she lives, Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt has lived there for nearly alone, in the gorgeous pillared pile that she built at 6 o'clock this evening. At the bedside were "Maintenon," "His Prestige," "Netofoia," and "Gibraltar." Besides having built the splendid establishment in which she lives, Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt has lived there for nearly alone, in the gorgeous pillared pile that she built at 6 o'clock this evening. At the bedside were "Maintenon," "His Prestige," "Netofoia," and "Gibraltar." Besides having built the splendid establishment in which she lives, Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt has lived there for nearly alone, in the gorgeous pillared pile that she built at 6 o'clock this evening. At the bedside were "Maintenon," "His Prestige," "Netofoia," and "Gibraltar." Besides having built the splendid establishment in which she lives, Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt has lived there for nearly alone, in the gorgeous pillared pile that she built at 6 o'clock this evening. At the bedside were "Maintenon," "His Prestige," "Netofoia," and "Gibraltar." Besides having built the splendid establishment in which she lives, Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt has lived there for nearly alone, in the gorgeous pillared pile that she built at 6 o'clock this evening. At the bedside were "Maintenon," "His Prestige," "Netofoia," and "Gibraltar." Besides having built the splendid establishment in which she lives, Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt has lived there for nearly alone, in the gorgeous pillared pile that she built at 6 o'clock this evening. At the bedside were "Maintenon," "His Prestige," "Netofoia," and "Gibraltar." Besides having built the splendid establishment in which she lives, Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt has lived there for nearly alone, in the gorgeous pillared pile that she built at 6 o'clock this evening. At the bedside were "Maintenon," "His Prestige," "Netofoia," and "Gibraltar." Besides having built the splendid establishment in which she lives, Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt has lived there for nearly alone, in the gorgeous pillared pile that she built at 6 o'clock this evening. At the bedside were "Maintenon," "His Prestige," "Netofoia," and "Gibraltar." Besides having built the splendid establishment in which she lives, Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt has lived there for nearly alone, in the gorgeous pillared pile that she built at 6 o'clock this evening. At the bedside were "Maintenon," "His Prestige," "Netofoia," and "Gibraltar." Besides having built the splendid establishment in which she lives, Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt has lived there for nearly alone, in the gorgeous pillared pile that she built at 6 o'clock this evening. At the bedside were "Maintenon," "His Prestige," "Netofoia," and "Gibraltar." Besides having built the splendid establishment in which she lives, Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt has lived there for nearly alone, in the gorgeous pillared pile that she built at 6 o'clock this evening. At the bedside were "Maintenon," "His Pret...
Mr. William K. Vanderbilt's relatives are thoroughly in accord with him, and they have shown no sympathetic interest in Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt on her return. This, says the World, was plainly shown on her arrival in New York. She was highly incensed at the fact that only one-half of Marble House had been opened and thought it allowed an intention to slight her. The windows and doors of the entire house had been boarded up in the usual Newport fashion.

Since her arrival in Newport Mrs. Vanderbilt has secluded herself. She drives out daily for a couple of hours and is invariably alone in her phaeton. She drives two spirited black horses, which are the highest steppers on the ocean drive.

While Mrs. Vanderbilt will have the legal custody of her children, it is believed that the two eldest, who are almost grown up, will be allowed to make their choice and live with their father or his family if they wish to. "Not for years has domestic discord so agitated New York society as greatly as that of Mr. and Mrs. Vanderbilt. Only the Colean-Durant case can be compared with it for interest and there was of a considerably different character."

What Mr. Vanderbilt will do after the divorce is ended is the phase of the case which is now exciting most interest. He is good-looking, amiable and of society. When a marriageable man combines those qualifications with a vast fortune there must be a very large number of hearts yearning to console him. There is even a rumor already of the prospective engagement of Mr. Vanderbilt to the widowed Duchess of Manchester, who was formerly Miss Consuelo Yznaga of New York, and who is a very handsome woman.

William Kissam Vanderbilt is the third son of the late William H. Vanderbilt. He is now 44 years old. He was educated at Yale and abroad, and then entered the office of his grandfather, Commodore Vanderbilt, with whom he was a great favorite. The commodore left him $1,000,000.

The late William H. Vanderbilt, father of William K., bequeathed to each of his children $1,000,000,000. The residue of the estate, valued at $1,000,000,000, was divided equally between Cornelius and William K., who, in addition received each the same share as their brothers and sisters. Mr. W. K. Vanderbilt is, therefore, one of the richest men in the world. He is a pleasant, good-natured man, and is quite popular in New York's "society."

He has spent his immense fortune freely. The residence in New York at the corner of Fifty-second street and Fifth Avenue, cost about $3,000,000. This was built shortly after he returned with his bride from their honeymoon in 1878. The great marble house which he built for his wife at Newport and which was only completed last fall, cost $1,000,000. It was a subject of undying comment at the social center that visitors to the house were not admitted, even beyond the front gate, until their claims to know Mrs. Vanderbilt had been passed upon by her. Her exclusiveness took this form.

So great has been her extravagance of late that even the inextricable Mr. Vanderbilt began to complain. She hired a suite of rooms at the Hotel Bristol in Paris for a few weeks and then furnished, even for that short time, in the most expensive manner which Parisian insensates could devise. This is said to have been the last straw which broke the camel's hump of Mr. Vanderbilt's patience. Then he took to exhibiting himself publicly with Nelly Neustetter.

This remarkably extravagant Mrs. Vanderbilt was originally Miss Aline Smith, daughter of Mr. Murray Smith of Albany. She captured the millionaire heart years ago when he was engaged to a Miss Alva Smith, daughter of Mr. Murray Smith of Albany. She captured the millionaire heart years ago when he was engaged to a Miss Alva Smith, daughter of Mr. Murray Smith of Albany. She captured the millionaire heart years ago when he was engaged to a Miss Alva Smith, daughter of Mr. Murray Smith of Albany.
An Absolute Decree Granted Alva E. and W. K. Vanderbilt.

New York, March 5.—Judge Barrett of the Supreme Court this afternoon granted a decree of absolute divorce to Alva E. Vanderbilt against her husband, W. K. Vanderbilt.

The judicial order of separation contains the following provisions:

It is also adjudged that the plaintiff be permitted to marry again during the life of William K. Vanderbilt, as if the marriage to him had never taken place. It is decreed, however, that William K. Vanderbilt be permitted to marry during the life of the said Alva E. Vanderbilt.

It is ordered that the said William K. Vanderbilt be permitted to visit the said children at all proper times.

It is also ordered that the children receive their education in the United States upon consent of both parties through their lawyers in court.

The three children of the marriage are Consuelo, born March 21, 1877; W. K., Jr., born October 6, 1878; and Harold S., born July 6, 1884.

New York, March 6.

A lively sensation in social and club circles was caused by the announcement last evening that Judge Barrett had granted to Mrs. Alva Vanderbilt a divorce from Mr. William K. Vanderbilt on the statutory ground, and that all the details of their final separation had been arranged, leaving Mrs. Vanderbilt free to re-marry at once, if she desires to do so. The World is the only paper which tries to make a great newspaper story about the matter, and, as usual, it has manufactured its news to order. It prints the portrait of a Pacific coast adventuress to whom Mr. Vanderbilt is said to have given large sums of money in Paris, and who has deserted him when the Vanderbilts were not in it at all. The purpose of the article seems to be to defame and annoy Mr. Vanderbilt.

The truth is that Mr. and Mrs. Vanderbilt have been drifting apart for ten years. Several of Mrs. Vanderbilt's sisters have been divorced from their husbands, and it seems to run in the family. The following details from the Sun are fairly authentic:

"William K. Vanderbilt had just returned from a European tour in 1878, when Mrs. Elliott F. Shepard, his sister, gave a reception in his honor. Among those present was Miss Alva E. Smith, a handsome Southern girl, at that time 18 years old, who, a year later, became Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt. Mrs. Shepard had met Miss Smith in Mobile, and was very much taken with her pretty face. Miss Smith's father was a cotton broker, and before the war he had been wealthy. Miss Alva Smith was the eldest of three sisters, who were known in Mobile as "the pretty Smith girls." They had been educated in France. Virginia, who was a year or two younger than Alva, married Fernando Yznaga, and was subsequently divorced from him. Miss Alva Smith's engagement to W. K. Vanderbilt was kept secret for a long time. Mr. Vanderbilt took his wife abroad for a wedding trip. They went for a long time, and at last they returned to settle down in New York. Mr. Vanderbilt began building in 1881 the great white chateau at Fifth Avenue and Fifty-second Street, which is said to have cost..."
Mr. William K. Vanderbilt gave the most beautiful ball ever seen in Newport, last night, at Marble House, in honor of her daughter, Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt, who is named after Consuelo, Duchess of Manchester. It was her second great social triumph. Her first triumph was when the stormed the gates of New York society, before barred and double-locked against all the tribe of Vanderbilt in the court yard at the ocean side of the mansion. That improvised dining hall was most elaborately decorated with paper and illuminated by lamps and radiating warm light. The most noted and elegant of all the ladies was Mrs. Vanderbilt, who was in her pink ribbon and black dress.

Miss Vanderbilt was the daughter of Mr. William K. Vanderbilt, and was born in Newport. She was educated in Europe, and was married to the Duke of Marlborough in 1875. She was the most beautiful ball ever seen in Newport, at Marble House, in honor of her daughter, Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt, who is named after Consuelo, Duchess of Manchester. It was her second great social triumph. Her first triumph was when the stormed the gates of New York society, before barred and double-locked against all the tribe of Vanderbilt in the court yard at the ocean side of the mansion. That improvised dining hall was most elaborately decorated with paper and illuminated by lamps and radiating warm light. The most noted and elegant of all the ladies was Mrs. Vanderbilt, who was in her pink ribbon and black dress.

Mr. William K. Vanderbilt gave the most beautiful ball ever seen in Newport, last night, at Marble House, in honor of her daughter, Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt, who is named after Consuelo, Duchess of Manchester. It was her second great social triumph. Her first triumph was when the stormed the gates of New York society, before barred and double-locked against all the tribe of Vanderbilt in the court yard at the ocean side of the mansion. That improvised dining hall was most elaborately decorated with paper and illuminated by lamps and radiating warm light. The most noted and elegant of all the ladies was Mrs. Vanderbilt, who was in her pink ribbon and black dress.

Mr. William K. Vanderbilt gave the most beautiful ball ever seen in Newport, last night, at Marble House, in honor of her daughter, Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt, who is named after Consuelo, Duchess of Manchester. It was her second great social triumph. Her first triumph was when the stormed the gates of New York society, before barred and double-locked against all the tribe of Vanderbilt in the court yard at the ocean side of the mansion. That improvised dining hall was most elaborately decorated with paper and illuminated by lamps and radiating warm light. The most noted and elegant of all the ladies was Mrs. Vanderbilt, who was in her pink ribbon and black dress.

Mrs. Vanderbilt was the daughter of Mr. William K. Vanderbilt, and was born in Newport. She was educated in Europe, and was married to the Duke of Marlborough in 1875. She was the most beautiful ball ever seen in Newport, at Marble House, in honor of her daughter, Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt, who is named after Consuelo, Duchess of Manchester. It was her second great social triumph. Her first triumph was when the stormed the gates of New York society, before barred and double-locked against all the tribe of Vanderbilt in the court yard at the ocean side of the mansion. That improvised dining hall was most elaborately decorated with paper and illuminated by lamps and radiating warm light. The most noted and elegant of all the ladies was Mrs. Vanderbilt, who was in her pink ribbon and black dress.

Mr. William K. Vanderbilt gave the most beautiful ball ever seen in Newport, last night, at Marble House, in honor of her daughter, Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt, who is named after Consuelo, Duchess of Manchester. It was her second great social triumph. Her first triumph was when the stormed the gates of New York society, before barred and double-locked against all the tribe of Vanderbilt in the court yard at the ocean side of the mansion. That improvised dining hall was most elaborately decorated with paper and illuminated by lamps and radiating warm light. The most noted and elegant of all the ladies was Mrs. Vanderbilt, who was in her pink ribbon and black dress.

Mr. William K. Vanderbilt gave the most beautiful ball ever seen in Newport, last night, at Marble House, in honor of her daughter, Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt, who is named after Consuelo, Duchess of Manchester. It was her second great social triumph. Her first triumph was when the stormed the gates of New York society, before barred and double-locked against all the tribe of Vanderbilt in the court yard at the ocean side of the mansion. That improvised dining hall was most elaborately decorated with paper and illuminated by lamps and radiating warm light. The most noted and elegant of all the ladies was Mrs. Vanderbilt, who was in her pink ribbon and black dress.

Mr. William K. Vanderbilt gave the most beautiful ball ever seen in Newport, last night, at Marble House, in honor of her daughter, Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt, who is named after Consuelo, Duchess of Manchester. It was her second great social triumph. Her first triumph was when the stormed the gates of New York society, before barred and double-locked against all the tribe of Vanderbilt in the court yard at the ocean side of the mansion. That improvised dining hall was most elaborately decorated with paper and illuminated by lamps and radiating warm light. The most noted and elegant of all the ladies was Mrs. Vanderbilt, who was in her pink ribbon and black dress.

Mr. William K. Vanderbilt gave the most beautiful ball ever seen in Newport, last night, at Marble House, in honor of her daughter, Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt, who is named after Consuelo, Duchess of Manchester. It was her second great social triumph. Her first triumph was when the stormed the gates of New York society, before barred and double-locked against all the tribe of Vanderbilt in the court yard at the ocean side of the mansion. That improvised dining hall was most elaborately decorated with paper and illuminated by lamps and radiating warm light. The most noted and elegant of all the ladies was Mrs. Vanderbilt, who was in her pink ribbon and black dress.

Mr. William K. Vanderbilt gave the most beautiful ball ever seen in Newport, last night, at Marble House, in honor of her daughter, Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt, who is named after Consuelo, Duchess of Manchester. It was her second great social triumph. Her first triumph was when the stormed the gates of New York society, before barred and double-locked against all the tribe of Vanderbilt in the court yard at the ocean side of the mansion. That improvised dining hall was most elaborately decorated with paper and illuminated by lamps and radiating warm light. The most noted and elegant of all the ladies was Mrs. Vanderbilt, who was in her pink ribbon and black dress.

Mr. William K. Vanderbilt gave the most beautiful ball ever seen in Newport, last night, at Marble House, in honor of her daughter, Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt, who is named after Consuelo, Duchess of Manchester. It was her second great social triumph. Her first triumph was when the stormed the gates of New York society, before barred and double-locked against all the tribe of Vanderbilt in the court yard at the ocean side of the mansion. That improvised dining hall was most elaborately decorated with paper and illuminated by lamps and radiating warm light. The most noted and elegant of all the ladies was Mrs. Vanderbilt, who was in her pink ribbon and black dress.

Mr. William K. Vanderbilt gave the most beautiful ball ever seen in Newport, last night, at Marble House, in honor of her daughter, Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt, who is named after Consuelo, Duchess of Manchester. It was her second great social triumph. Her first triumph was when the stormed the gates of New York society, before barred and double-locked against all the tribe of Vanderbilt in the court yard at the ocean side of the mansion. That improvised dining hall was most elaborately decorated with paper and illuminated by lamps and radiating warm light. The most noted and elegant of all the ladies was Mrs. Vanderbilt, who was in her pink ribbon and black dress.

Mr. William K. Vanderbilt gave the most beautiful ball ever seen in Newport, last night, at Marble House, in honor of her daughter, Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt, who is named after Consuelo, Duchess of Manchester. It was her second great social triumph. Her first triumph was when the stormed the gates of New York society, before barred and double-locked against all the tribe of Vanderbilt in the court yard at the ocean side of the mansion. That improvised dining hall was most elaborately decorated with paper and illuminated by lamps and radiating warm light. The most noted and elegant of all the ladies was Mrs. Vanderbilt, who was in her pink ribbon and black dress.

Mr. William K. Vanderbilt gave the most beautiful ball ever seen in Newport, last night, at Marble House, in honor of her daughter, Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt, who is named after Consuelo, Duchess of Manchester. It was her second great social triumph. Her first triumph was when the stormed the gates of New York society, before barred and double-locked against all the tribe of Vanderbilt in the court yard at the ocean side of the mansion. That improvised dining hall was most elaborately decorated with paper and illuminated by lamps and radiating warm light. The most noted and elegant of all the ladies was Mrs. Vanderbilt, who was in her pink ribbon and black dress.

Mr. William K. Vanderbilt gave the most beautiful ball ever seen in Newport, last night, at Marble House, in honor of her daughter, Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt, who is named after Consuelo, Duchess of Manchester. It was her second great social triumph. Her first triumph was when the stormed the gates of New York society, before barred and double-locked against all the tribe of Vanderbilt in the court yard at the ocean side of the mansion. That improvised dining hall was most elaborately decorated with paper and illuminated by lamps and radiating warm light. The most noted and elegant of all the ladies was Mrs. Vanderbilt, who was in her pink ribbon and black dress.

Mr. William K. Vanderbilt gave the most beautiful ball ever seen in Newport, last night, at Marble House, in honor of her daughter, Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt, who is named after Consuelo, Duchess of Manchester. It was her second great social triumph. Her first triumph was when the stormed the gates of New York society, before barred and double-locked against all the tribe of Vanderbilt in the court yard at the ocean side of the mansion. That improvised dining hall was most elaborately decorated with paper and illuminated by lamps and radiating warm light. The most noted and elegant of all the ladies was Mrs. Vanderbilt, who was in her pink ribbon and black dress.
EX-MAJOR MATHER
One of Hartford's Oldest and Most Influential Citizens.

Ex-Major Roland Mather of this city, who is the oldest banker in Hartford, came here from the town of Westfield in Massachusetts in 1826, and from that time till now has been identified with the best interests of the city. He is a descendant of the Rev. Richard Mather, who was associated with the Plymouth colony in 1620.

Mr. Mather has felt a deep interest through life in the history of the Pilgrims and has manifested that interest in exceedingly felicitous ways. Some years ago, when the Plymouth monument was erected in Connecticut, gave one of the tablets commemorating the departure of the Pilgrims from Delft Haven for America. The gift was by vote of the Legislature, and the design was made by the Hartford sculptor, Carl H. Conrads. The tribute was less than the part that Connecticut should have had in the testimonial to the memory of the New England founders. Major Mather, from his own purse, contributed a tablet representing the signing of the compact in the Mayflower and the figure of Morality, which occupied a position at the base of the monument from opposite the figure of Morality, which was given by the State of Massachusetts.

It is an interesting fact that the only grandchild of Major Mather, the wife of a lineal descendant of the Rev. Thomas Hooker, the founder of the Connecticut Colony. She is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Turner of Philadelphia, and the wife of Edward W. Hooker, assistant treasurer and secretary of the Broad Brook Company. She and her husband belong in the city and belong to the Center church, of which the Rev. Thomas Hooker was the first pastor.

Major Mather was born in Westfield and is in the neighborhood of 86 years of age. The town of Westfield has contributed to Hartford some of its most prominent citizens. The number includes ex-Mayor John G. Root and City Collector George P. Tuttle. There is an interesting incident in the political history of these two gentlemen in Hartford that can hardly be duplicated in the towns and municipal records of New England. Both came here as young men from Massachusetts town and both by a most admirable decision at the polls were placed at the head of the town and municipal governments during a period of two years, Mayor Root being at the head of the city government and Mr. Fowler being the first selection.

Major Mather, who came here in 1825, was made major of the Governor's Foot Guard in 1838, holding the position during the administration of Governor Ellsworth. He is the oldest surviving commandant of the Foot Guard, and is the senior officer by several years of President James Fuller, Boller of the Hartford National Bank, a member of the staff of Governor Cleveland who succeeded Governor Ellsworth.

Major Mather was an old business partner of the celebrated London banker, James S. Morgan, and retained a lifelong friendship for him. There was always the sincerest cooperation of thought and feeling between the two men and many interesting recitals might be offered in illustration of this fact were it necessary. Major Mather is the commissioner of the fund for the Deaf and Dumb Asylum which was derived from the sale of public lands contributed to the institution by Congress during the days of Henry Clay. He is also the president of the fund. He is one of the trustees of the Society for Savings and was for years president of the board.

The Asylum Hill, an exceptionally beautiful tract of land, was given to the city by Rev. Richard Mather of Torrington, his MADAME EAMES.

Mother of the Famous Singer a Guest in Hartford.

Madame Eames, the mother of the celebrated opera singer, Emma Eames, is the guest of her son, Lieutenant H. H. Eames of Columbia street. Madame Eames is remarkably youthful in her appearance, possessed of fine figure and wonderfully graceful in manner. She is a charming conversationalist, unbounded in her enthusiasm about her talented daughter and exceedingly modest regarding her own attainments. Until Emma Eames began her studies abroad, mother and daughter were most devoted workers, the older woman watching and aiding the progress of the younger with jealous care. Hartford people will remember that some nine years ago Miss Eames, while still a young girl, sang here at a concert, and once later, she sang at Miss Porter's school in Farmington. At present she is in Paris where she has been singing with great success since the close of the season in New York. She has just completed her engagement there, and intends calling from Paris for London tomorrow where she will sing for the remainder of the season at Covent garden. A characteristic of the famous artist is her lack of satisfaction with herself. She is continually raising her standard of perfection. One of the finest photographs of Emma Eames is one in which the character of her face shows at best, represents her as Eloise in "Lohengrin."

Since her daughter became Madame Storrey, Madame Eames has made her home in New York during the winter season and, yielding to the earnest solicitations of friends, has accepted an engagement to a large number of young people prominent in New York society. Intimate acquaintances of the "Stone school." Mrs. Emma Eames Storrey, the opera singer's mother, is a noted character of voice with her son, and Mrs. Story's mother spent a month in this city as the guests of Lieutenant Eames, while a pro-Mrs. Story's brother. They were on their way from Boston to New York on one of the excursion trains and stopped over several days to visit Lieutenant Eames. Mrs. Blic. After spending an enjoyable visit with friends, Mrs. Story will open the season of grand opera at the Metropolitan Opera House this season, beginning the beginning of the season with a new number of the Aetna, being one of the choicest productions from her pen. Nothing that Mrs. Chapman has written in years will surpass it in interest and spirit. Mrs. Chapman has spent the most of her life in this city, coming here when a bride nine years ago. She became one of Mrs. Sigourney's favorites, the poetess, experiencing great pleasure in the poetic gifts and tastes which she displayed. One of the treasured tokens from Mrs. Sigourney is a pose given to Mrs. Chapman by the poetess.

Hartford Personal.

Perhaps some of our oldest citizens will remember Miss Mary A. Bacon, formerly of Hartford, who was later Mrs. Conine, and who removed to Oxford, Ohio, many years ago. She has recently celebrated her 60th birthday anniversary at Oxford, with children and grandchildren and a great many friends. Mrs. Conine is in good health, retains her faculties to a remarkable degree. Her friends think she bides fair to celebrate many more birthdays. She was a sister of Mrs. Elizabeth Bacon, afterwards Mrs. Corwin, who had been a teacher at a military school for girls, where the great Waverley building now stands.
THE GOLDEN WEDDING OF MR. AND MRS. NATHANIEL HYDE

He has been married 63 years—Crescent Club's Dramatic Success—May Start the Milk

Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Hyde celebrated their golden wedding at their home at 87 North street Monday. Both were natives of the city. Mr. Hyde married March 15, 1811, at the church in that city, the occasion being the first marriage. His first wife died about thirteen years later. His second marriage was an original anniversary poem composed during the day and read by Mrs. W. J. Adams of Norwich, the only person living who was a guest at the wedding fifty years ago. The aged couple received many presents. The others are as follows: Mrs. Lovias Robins, Mrs. Fred. L. Swift, Mrs. Edward Manning, Mrs. George Hyde, Mrs. W. J. Adams, Mrs. Cyrus Cole, and Mrs. Harlan Hyde of Vermont. Among the guests was Mrs. Samuel H. Gager of Franklin, the only person living who was a guest at the wedding fifty years ago. The couple received many substantial remembrances, among which were an elegant French clock and a pair of gold eye glasses from the children; a most elaborately trimmed loaf of wedding cake from the nephews and nieces, on the outer edge of which imbedded in the frosting, were four gold pieces and an elaborately designed gold-lined silver fruit dish. A wedding feast was served at 5 o'clock and during the evening the occasion was enlivened by vocal and instrumental music and recitations, among which was an original anniversary poem composed during the day and read by Mrs. Cyrus Cole. Notwithstanding the efforts of many men and women, no living can count as many years of married life as Mr. Hyde, for it should be known that the ceremony fifty years ago was his second marriage, his first marriage having been March 18, 1814. His first wife died about three years of married life. One child, Mrs. E. C. Grant of this city, an invalid, was by the first marriage. Mr. Hyde removed this city twenty-one years ago from Franklin, where he had spent his previous life as a farmer.

THE GOLDEN WEDDING OF MR. AND MRS. NATHANIEL HYDE

MR. AND MRS. NATHANIEL HYDE

Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Hyde celebrated their golden wedding at their home at 87 North street Monday. Both were natives of the city. Mr. Hyde married March 15, 1811, at the church in that city, the occasion being the first marriage. His first wife died about thirteen years later. His second marriage was an original anniversary poem composed during the day and read by Mrs. W. J. Adams of Norwich, the only person living who was a guest at the wedding fifty years ago. The aged couple received many presents. The others are as follows: Mrs. Lovias Robins, Mrs. Fred. L. Swift, Mrs. Edward Manning, Mrs. George Hyde, Mrs. W. J. Adams, Mrs. Cyrus Cole, and Mrs. Harlan Hyde of Vermont. Among the guests was Mrs. Samuel H. Gager of Franklin, the only person living who was a guest at the wedding fifty years ago. The couple received many substantial remembrances, among which were an elegant French clock and a pair of gold eye glasses from the children; a most elaborately trimmed loaf of wedding cake from the nephews and nieces, on the outer edge of which imbedded in the frosting, were four gold pieces and an elaborately designed gold-lined silver fruit dish. A wedding feast was served at 5 o'clock and during the evening the occasion was enlivened by vocal and instrumental music and recitations, among which was an original anniversary poem composed during the day and read by Mrs. Cyrus Cole. Notwithstanding the efforts of many men and women, no living can count as many years of married life as Mr. Hyde, for it should be known that the ceremony fifty years ago was his second marriage, his first marriage having been March 18, 1814. His first wife died about three years of married life. One child, Mrs. E. C. Grant of this city, an invalid, was by the first marriage. Mr. Hyde removed this city twenty-one years ago from Franklin, where he had spent his previous life as a farmer.

105 YEARS OLD TO-DAY.

AUNT SALLY BROWN OF EAST GRANDY'S GREAT LONGEVITY.

Her Birthday Anniversary Finds Her Seriously Ill in Bed—She Remembers Seeing Washington—He Faculties and Memory Fairly Preserved.

To live to a good old age is a laudable ambition and one that is within the reach of every well minded person of sound bodily health. What a good old age may be is a relative question at present. None of us would care to live to the reputed years of Methusaleh, or undertake the art of ship building at the age that Noah began his famous undertaking. But that longevity is increasing, that the average age of mankind is a trifle more than it was a century ago, and that individual instances of attaining to a very old age are more abundant than formerly, is susceptible of proof. It was said of a famous countess of Londonderry that she lived to the age of one hundred and ten.

Under the circumstances it is fair to say that if the instances had not met with so unfortunate an accident she might have lived to the age generally accredited to "Old Parr," an Englishman who is believed to have made the time limit of his existence 152 years, quite a distance beyond the human stretch of any of us are anticipating. These instances are individual instances quite rare. To show that the climate of Connecticut, and especially of the hill towns of Connecticut, is conducive to longevity it is necessary only to call attention to Aunt Sally Brown of East Grandy, who today celebrates the 105th anniversary of her birth. During this long period of life, Aunt Sally has lived within a radius of fifteen miles of the place where she was born, and has never been out of the invigorating atmosphere of the hills of that region to pass more than a few weeks at a time. What is more, she has been, until since her 96th year, at the head of a household, and during this long period an unusually active woman, a hard-working wife of a farmer until sixty years ago, when her husband died, leaving her with a babe in arms and two other children to provide for. From that time she kept her family together and did days' work out as housekeeper and gardener, and help in the vicissitude of Grandy. More than that, she was not ever what might be termed a strong muscular woman. She was of slight of stature and weighed but a few pounds in excess of 100 in her prime. She was fair-haired, of light complexion and of nervous temperament, fond of work and house work and driving herself about her daily duties during the long hours of a farmer's wife's day. Nevertheless, she has enjoyed good health during her life and since she passed the century mark has been as active, for the most part, as the average height old lady of 70 years. Aunt Sally Brown is the last remaining member of her family. The others are individual instances quite rare.
Aunt Sally Brown is easily the oldest member of the East Granby Church, and so long as she was able has been a regular attendant. It is not likely, under the present condition of her health that she can live a long time, probably not to reach another birthday anniversary, possibly not longer than a few weeks. She had a slight attack of the grip about a year ago and has never been quite so light upon her feet since. Her present illness, while it is looked upon as a family as temporary, is quite severe, and it is likely to result fatally, the embers of a failing life have been so long on the hearthstone. It would be nothing strange to learn of her death at any time.

The sketch of Aunt Sally as she appears now after 105 years' struggle in this cold, unsparing world, goes to show that Connecticut is a good place in which to live a long life, that hard work does not always lessen its chances, and that the possession of a robust and sturdy physique is not always necessary to carry one beyond the century mark, above par.
Wednesday, March 27, 1895.

The pleasant home of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Lamphear, No. 19 Ward street, was well filled, Tuesday evening, with friends from the Memorial Baptist church. In behalf of many, who have highly appreciated Mrs. Lamphear’s services to the Memorial church as singer, the Rev. H. M. Thompson presented to her a handsome silver tea service. Mr. and Mrs. Lamphear were married on Wednesday last, and Tuesday evening’s gathering was made the occasion for many hearty congratulations and good wishes.

FLOWERS FROM THE NEWSGIRLS.

At 8 o’clock last evening, thirty-three newsgirls, of from 7 to 15 years of age, called upon Mr. A. E. Burr, at his residence, 788 Main street, and through their spokesman, Rosie Dunn, presented him with a large bouquet of white and red pinks. There were eighty of the flowers.

Rosie, a girl of 14 years, with sparkling black eyes, a broad forehead, and handsome face, said, as she handed the box of flowers to Mr. Burr:

"Mr. Burr: You have been very kind to the newsgirls, and we want to give you these flowers on your 80th birthday. We have bought eighty pinks. Will you be so kind as to accept them from the girls who have signed this paper?"

Then the following paper, duly signed, was handed to Mr. Burr:

Harford, Conn, March 27, 1895.

Will Mr. Burr please accept these eighty pinks on his 80th Birthday, from the Thirty-three newsgirls of Hartford, because he has been so kind to them?

Rosie Dunn, Annie Sedgley, Jennie Sedgley, Bessie Sarrey, Doris Scholes, Rachel Gruber, Fannie Copland, Bessie Ratites, Rose Rosenfeld, Mamie Seltzer, Yettie Rogers, Beekey Goldberg, Belle Davidson, Rekey Runes, Saraelder, Sarah Goldstein, Katie Seldzer, Lena Sobidaphski, Yettie Rogers, Bessie Ratites, Rachel Gruber.

Mr. B.—"Who told you to purchase these flowers?"

Rosie—"None. We wanted to do something for you to pay you for your kindness to us. But we can’t do much. We sold out all our papers soon after 6 o’clock this evening, and then we went to the greenhouse and bought the flowers."

Mr. B.—"I accept the flowers with pleasure, and thank the girls for their friendly feelings and kindly consideration. Do any of you stay out after 8 o’clock?"

Rosie—"No. These forty girls used to stay out later (pointing to four girls of about 15), but they do not now, since you requested all of us to go home an hour earlier.

Most of us go home by 7 o’clock.

The pinks were handsomely arranged by the florist with smiles. Mr. Burr was taken wholly by surprise, and the girls kept pouring in, till they filled the hall and sitting-room.

"We thank you, sir, for your great kindness to us," again said Rosie Dunn, the leader of the band.

One little girl said: "Shan’t we tire him?"

Another said, "Oh, we are so glad to see him!"

One of them said: "Oh, 80 years is pretty old, but we hope he’ll live a good long time yet. He’s been our best friend.

When asked about her paper-selling, some of them told how many customers they had varying from half a dozen to 35. One little voice piped up with, "I sell one." And her bright eyes showed that she appreciated even one penny a night.

We understand she has a customer who pays her 20 cents a week. She makes 12 cents a week on that paper.

Mr. Burr said, "We want all of you to be truthful and good girls all the time, when you are selling papers and at your homes. You know what it is to be a good girl, I suppose?"

"Yes, yes, we do, and we shall be good girls!"

Then they passed round, shaking hands with Mr. Burr, and wishing him many years of happiness.

We do not believe that these are thirty-three other girls in this city, of similar ages, who could have behaved with more propriety, or passed through these ceremonies more gracefully.

The Hon. A. E. Burr, the veteran editor of the "Harford Times," was eighty years old on Wednesday and a party of newsgirls presented him with a bunch of eighty pinks. Mr. Burr, in spite of his many years, continues his deep interest in the paper that he has built up and that represents his life work.

Judge Risley speaks for all the rest of the press of the state no less than for itself when it wishes him many years more in which to enjoy the well earned results of his labors. Mr. Burr has never used his paper to get office for himself, but his influence in helping other democrats along has been one of the leading factors in the history of the party in this state.

Hartford’s Veteran Editor.

(Springfield Republican.)

Here is a shining exception to the generalization that "newspaper men die young," for Mr. Burr is still an active force in his chosen profession. He comes very near being "the grand old man" of the Connecticut democracy, for he was on the inside of Nutmeg politics before most of those now on the active stage of affairs were born. It is worth much to have such a background as Mr. Burr possesses, at the city of it is that the best-informed men cannot last forever. Here is hoping that the rare old editor may be enrolled in the list of centenarians who are to be cursed for their longevity.

MARCH 31, 1895.

STAFFORD SPRINGS, CT.

One of the most enjoyable events of the week was the reception given by Mr. and Mrs. Dr. Smith to Mrs. Smith’s father and mother, Judge James Risley and wife, on the occasion of their golden wedding.

Judge Risley is one of the oldest residents of the borough. He was born in Manchester, September 6, 1820, and married Emily Foster, daughter of William Foster, in 1845. Most of Judge Risley’s life has been spent in Stafford. Their only child, a daughter, is dead, and Mr. Smith is an adopted daughter. Judge Risley has been prominent in the business and politics of the town for the past 50 years. He was engaged in the manufacture of woolen goods for some time. He has served in nearly every office in the gift of his fellow-townsmen. He has filled town clerk, selectman, school visitor, judge of probate for the Stafford probate district, and judge of the borough court until he was obliged to resign on account of the age limitation. He has also been a director of the Stafford savings bank for many years. The reception was attended by a large number of friends in Stafford and a few out of town, many of whom left gifts.
Mrs. Mary C. Barbour of this city was 80 years old, to-day, and the anniversary was celebrated in an enjoyable way at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. M. Jennie Eastman, No. 21 Tolman street. During the afternoon the ladies of Robert O. Tyler Post Relief Corps and of Ivanhoe Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, were received by the aged lady. There were also friends present from Bridgeport and Danville, making the occasion a memorable one.

Mrs. Barbour has not been in robust health for a number of years, but was able this afternoon to share in the festivities attending her birthday with great pleasure.

She was born in the town of Tolland, March 30, 1860, being the daughter of Captain Ezra Chapman of that place, who was the first post office in this part of the country. Captain Chapman had a large family of children. Besides Mrs. Barbour, there are two of the number still survive. They are Mrs. W. D. Baldwin of Newark, N. J., and Mrs. Charles Conkey of Irvington, also of New Jersey. Neither of the ladies, however, was able to be here this afternoon. Remembrances were received from them. Mrs. Conkey graduated from Wilbraham Academy, of Massachusetts, and afterwards removed to the town of Coventry, where she had a brother residing at the time. It was there that she first met her husband, Mr. A. S. Barbour, and was married to him at her home in Tolland in 1883. During the war Mr. and Mrs. Barbour kept the Barbour hotel in Tolland, Brown, removing there from Collinsville, where the first years of their married life were spent. After the war they came to Hartford and lived for years on Lewis street. Mr. Barbour died here ninety years ago. The family consisted of three children, Albert E. Barbour, Mrs. M. Jennie Eastman and A. A. Barbour. The latter served in the Eighteenth Connecticut during the war, and was killed at Winchester, Mass., in 1864. He was unmarried. Mr. Albert E. Barbour died in this city twenty years ago. Mrs. Eastman is the only survivor of the children. Her husband was Lieutenant Ervin S. Eastman, of the Eleventh Connecticut. His death occurred in this city fifteen years ago. Mrs. Eastman is a member of Robert O. Tyler Woman's Relief Corps and of Ivanhoe Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star. She has been appointed a member of the staff of the Massachusetts Memorial of Meriden, president of the State corps. The mother of Mrs. Eastman has lived with her for a number of years. Both are members of the Pearl Street Congregational church. Mrs. Barbour has been a church member for seventy-nine years, first uniting on profession of faith when she was 11 years of age. She has been devoted to the welfare of women through life, and is held in the tenderest regard by all with whom she has come in contact.

Many presents and congratulations were received by her this afternoon, showing the affection in which she is held. There are only two grandchildren of the venerable lady surviving. They are Frank O. Barbour of this city and Mrs. Mary C. Parkinson of Bristol.
SPRINGFIELD, THURSDAY, APRIL 14.

GOLDEN WEDDING CELEBRATED

By Mr and Mrs J. C. Smith at Their Elliott-Street Home.

A happy family event last night was the golden wedding which was celebrated by Mr and Mrs Lebbeus C. Smith of 77 Elliott street. It was largely a family gathering, most of the 50 present being relatives. There were three present who were present at the marriage ceremony 50 years ago before, Willard Elmer of this city, a brother of Mrs Smith. Leonard Barton of Hill and Mrs Watson Smith of this city. The official board of Trinity church made its appearance at the scene of the festivities headed by Dr William Rice and laden with a beautiful box of roses as a tribute to Mr Smith, who has been for years one of the pillars of the church. Dr Rice made the presentation speech. Among the other presents were a beautiful gold-mounted cane and a handsome engraving of Mr and Mrs Smith.

Mr Smith was born in Palmer in 1823. He learned the cabinet trade when young. In 1845 he married Miss Charless Elmer, who was living with her brother Rufus in the double brick house at 58 Bliss street. The elgynian officiating was Rev Mr May of the Wesleyan Methodists, who formerly occupied the old church on Sanford street, which has now been used as a colored church. The pair went to Palmer for a wedding tour and Mr Smith returned with $17 in his pocket. He began and sold for Rufus Elmer in the store and in three years bought him out, continuing in the same business 15 years. Mr and Mrs Smith formerly lived where the courthouse now stands and built a house where the county selected the site for the courthouse. There are two children, Emma, who is the wife of W. W. Adkins, and of this city, and Annie G., widow of Edward Barton, who has been living with Mr Smith. For 13 years Mr Smith took the prison contract for shores from the Hampden county jail and for two years, from the New Haven jail. He has long been associated with Trinity church, which he joined under Rev Martin Ira, who is now in Wilmington, Del. He was a lay delegate to the general conference in 1888 and is now a trustee of Trinity church.

BABES JOINED AT THE HIPS.

Case Similar to That of the Siamese Twins, But There Is No Bond of Flesh.

New York, April 16.—A wonderful pair of girl twins was born in this city just before midnight on Monday. They are perfectly formed infants, hale and healthy: They cried together, feed and sleep well. They are perfect. The chances are that the hip bones are amalgamated. The mother is a healthy young woman about 30 years old, and has one other child. The space covered by the joint is about two inches long and three broad. The babies weigh fourteen pounds together. They cry together.

Dr. Tynberg is of the opinion that if the twins were separated both would die.
A Pomfret Wedding.

The New York Herald announces the marriage on Tuesday, April 16, of Miss Mary Anthony Chapin to Mr. Chester Smith, a son of the late Charles W. Smith of Worcester, Mass., which will take place in Christ Memorial Church, Pomfret, at noon. Invitations to this wedding are sent out in the name of Mr. and Mrs. William Viall Chapin, the former a brother of the bride-to-be, and his daughter, a daughter of General Walter B. Chapin, who lives in London, England. Her mother, who is not living, was formerly Miss Frances Viall, a noted beauty of Providence, R. I. The wedding will be a very simple one, owing to a recent death in the bridegroom's family.

Mr. Charles Smith will act as his brother's best man, and the ushers will be Messrs. H. Anthony Dyer, Alexander Duncan Chapin, Hamler Anderson, cousins of the bride, and Mr. J. Crompton of Worcester, Mass. It was Miss Chapin's intention to have four bridesmaids, Miss Mildred Chase and Miss Evelyn Osborne of this city, Miss Agnes Hoppin of Providence, and Miss Ethel Clark of Boston, but it was necessary to change the list somewhat. However, these young ladies will be present at the wedding, and will have a place in one of the front pews. The only attendant of the bride's niece, Elsie Chapin, daughter of Dr. Fred Chapin.

A very small wedding breakfast will follow at the Acorns, the country house of the bride's sister, Miss Maria Chapin. There will be four country houses at Pomfret open for the wedding festivities. Dunworth, Mr. Locsin White's; Dunworth Lodge, Mr. William Viall Chapin's; Oberthal, Dr. Chapin's, and the Acorns. Mr. and Mrs. William Viall Chapin have been spending the winter in Providence, from which city a special train will leave for the wedding, with members of the Dyer, Hoppin, Goldair, Rossiter and Grosvenor families, nearly all of whom are related to the bride.

MAYO-ELVERSON.

Fashionable Wedding at the Church of the Incarnation.

New York, April 16.—Miss Eleanor Mayo, daughter of Frank Mayo, the actor, was, at 12:30 to-day, married to Colonel James Elverson, Jr., general manager of the Philadelphia Inquirer, by the Rev. Dr. Arthur Brooks, at the Church of the Incarnation. The bride was attended by his best man, Mr. Lennud Coffin Altemus of Philadelphia. The ushers were Mr. James Michael, manager of the Philadelphia News, Mr. Fred E. Whiting, publisher of the Boston Herald, and Edward W. Osborne, publisher of the Cleveland Press. There were no bridesmaids, but Miss Mayo was attended by her sister, Miss Deronda Mayo, as maid of honor. There were present a large number of friends of the contracting parties, including a delegation from Philadelphia. After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the Drill Hall of the Fourth Church of this city, of which the bride and groom are members.

Marriage of Charles E. Whiting and Jennie McCarthy.

There was a pretty home wedding at No. 48 Wooster street, yesterday afternoon, when Julia E. Fowler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah C. Fowler, was married to Charles E. Whiting, well known as a clerk at the office of the Hartford Fire Insurance Company. The parlor was handsomely decorated with potted plants, Easter lilies holding a conspicuous place. The guests included relatives and intimate friends only. The couple entered the parlor as the wedding march from "Lohengrin" was played on the piano by Marion Fowler, sister of the bride. The bride was attired in a traveling suit of Gobelin blue, trimmed with silk and looked most attractive. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. George R. Warner, rector of St. Thomas's Church. The ushers were the three brothers of the bride, Richard W., Edward C, and Arthur C. Fowler. The wedding gifts were numerous and included an onyx clock from the City Guard, a handsome suite of chamber furniture from the officers and employees of the Hartford Fire Insurance Company, and many other handsome and useful articles. After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Whiting departed on a wedding trip among relatives of the groom. They will be at home at No. 119 Bellevue street after June 1.

BURNHAM-SMITH.

A Pleasant Home Wedding in West Hartford.

There was a pleasant home wedding yesterday noon at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Hyman F. Smith, Farmington avenue, West Hartford, the contracting parties being their daughter, Miss Florence Flower Smith, and Myron J. Burnham. The officiating clergyman was the Rev. H. H. Kelsey of the Fourth Church of this city, of which the bride and groom are members.

The Episcopal service was used. About twenty-five relatives and friends were present, among them being Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Flower of West Hartford, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Hills, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Guilfoil and Mrs. Kelsey of this city, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Smith of Andover and Homer Flower of Feeding Hills, Mass. A number of very pretty gifts were received. The young couple are well known in this city; the bride's family formerly resided here, Mr. Smith being in the grocery business in this city for years and becoming a resident of West Hartford in 1883. Mr. Burnham has been in the employ of the wholesale firm of Hills & Co. for the past six years.

After luncheon had been served an afternoon train was taken for a wedding trip among relatives in Vermont. Mr. and Mrs. Burnham will be at home to their friends after May 5 at 119 Trumbull street.

Marriage of Fred. D. Pelletier.

Fred D. Pelletier, youngest son of Dr. P. D. Pelletier of this city, was married Monday at Syracuse, N. Y., to Miss Jennie McCarthy, daughter of a wealthy city gentleman of that city. The wedding, which was a fashionable affair, was attended by Mr. Pelletier's father, mother and sister. Mr. Pelletier is traveling abroad for the Hartford office of the Broad Brook Company.
Nuptials of Harry Phelps Foster and Miss Maria Amalia Del Pino.

The marriage of Miss Maria Amalia Del Pino, daughter of Mrs. Marco Del Pino, and Mr. Harry Phelps Foster of Hartford, was celebrated Wednesday night, at 8:30, in the Protestant Episcopal church of the Incarnation and Thirty-fifth's. The ceremony was performed by Dr. Arthur Brooks, the bride, and a groom of heavy weight, a long train, with quantities of corpse was used. The veil of paint, a coiffure with a bun and a diamond sun gift. Her bouquet was white, tied with Fre.

The best man was Henry C. Morgan, U. S. A., to whom the story that its reporter, Miss Eliza, 100, was made West Springfield his home, has received the Liberal,
Lord Curzon is forty-seven. The eldest son of Lord Scarsdale, he was educated at Eton and Balliol, and twenty years ago was assistant private secretary to the late Lord Salisbury. In the following year he entered Parliament as Conservative member for Southport, and continued until 1898, holding various ministerial offices. In the intervals of a strenuous parliamentary life he travelled extensively in order to acquire geographical knowledge and to solve political problems. His travels embraced Persia, India, Central Asia, Bokhara, Samarkand, Canada, China, Korea, Japan, Kashmir and Afghanistan. In 1898 he was elevated to the peerage, and in the following year was appointed viceroy of India, to which position he was reappointed a few months ago. Lord Curzon's selection for this important office created a good deal of surprise, but as a matter of fact he had aspired to that office since his schooldays.
A Beautiful American Woman of High Positions Ever Attained by an American Woman is That of Vice-Reine of India, Held by Mary Leiter, of Chicago. The Above Picture, Which is Her Latest, Shows Lady Curzon, Vice-Reine of India.
EARL CURZON WEDS
AMERICAN WIDOW

London, Jan. 2.—The marriage of Earl Curzon of Kedleston and Mrs. Grace Elvina Duggan took place privately in London today. A small luncheon party followed.

Lord Curzon, a member of the British war council and formerly viceroy of India, was a widower. His first wife, Mary Victoria, daughter of the late Levi Z. Leiter of Chicago, died in 1906. Countess Curzon, a native of Alabama, is the eldest daughter of the late J. Munroe Rinds, formerly American minister to Brazil. Her first husband was Alfred Duggan of Buenos Aires.

HIGH GIFTS FOR LADY CURZON
Calcutta Shows Its Pleasure at Seeing Again the Viceroy's Wife

Calcutta, March 6—Lady Curzon, with her husband, the viceroy of India, has arrived here, and has been given a unique reception. The chairman and members of the corporation welcomed her at the railway station, and presented an address and a diamond ornament. A regiment of light horse formed a special escort to Government House, where a big gathering cheered her ladyship. An address of welcome in an ivory casket was presented in the throne room by the ladies of Calcutta. Lord and Lady Curzon were delighted with the warmth of the reception.

Lady Curzon, wife of the viceroy, intends to present a handsome fountain to the city of Calcutta as a mark of her gratitude for the notable welcome accorded her on returning to India after her long illness in England.

Lady Curzon of Kedleston, wife of the viceroy of India, Lord Curzon of Kedleston, and formerly Miss Leiter of Washington and Chicago, and her three children, sailed for India to-day on the British steamer Arabia. A crowd of friends bid them farewell at the London dock.
APRIL 24, 1895.

Married in Brooklyn.
Mr. Harry L. Burr of the Aetna Insurance Company and Miss Elizabeth A. Pollard, also of this city, were united in marriage at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the home of the bride's brother, Mr. Charles E. Pollard, 2561 Ocean avenue, Brooklyn.

It was a quiet home wedding with immediate family. Among the valuable presents was a set in antique oak, etc., from the Aetna Insurance Company.

Mrs. Burr will enjoy the "at home" at No. 2561 Ocean avenue, on Tuesdays to Thursday evenings.

Miss Mary Victoria Leiter.

The Rev. Dr. Charles Ray Palmer of the First Congregational Church, Bridgeport, is about to resign so that he can devote all his time to Yale University, of the corporation of which he is a member.

This Morning's Wedding.

Howard C. Gaines and M. Elsie Griswold will be married this morning at 2 o'clock.

Real Estate Sale.

The Hooker place, on Forest and Hawthorne streets has been purchased by Mr. George W. Merrow of Mansfield, who will move there with his family. The nominal asking price was $20,000, but it is understood that a somewhat less sum was accepted. There are two mortgages on the place amounting to $16,000, which Mr. Merrow will wipe off. The house, which fronts southward on Hawthorne street (but it has an entrance also on Forest street), stands back on a 1,400 feet on that street by a little over 200 feet on Forest street. It is one of the pleasantest, most historic spots in New England. The house was built by John Hooker, some forty years ago, amidst some of the noblest of the trees that had been, very wisely, permitted to remain, and there Mr. and Mrs. Hooker have since resided. There is no more homelike spot, and none so safe to dwell in what Hawthorne called "its accessible seduction." On the opposite side of Hawthorne street is the pleasant house where Mr. Warner wrote "My Summer in a Garden." Mr. Merrow, the purchaser of the Hooker place, is one of the firm of J. B. Merrow & Sons, 127 Sheldon street, manufacturers of high-speed crocheting machinery. He does not intend to take possession of the place before the middle of July.
Wedded at the Cathedral.

Nuptials of Dr. Joseph H. Cahill and Miss Katherine C. Clifford.

At 10 o'clock this morning at St. Joseph's Cathedral occurred the marriage of Miss Katherine Clifford, daughter of the late Patrick Clifford, and Dr. Joseph H. Cahill. The occasion was of unusual interest in Catholic social circles and the large church was well filled with friends. As the bridal party entered the church the organist played Mendelssohn's "Wedding March." The procession passed through the communion rail gates to the steps of the large altar. Here the marriage ceremony took place, being performed by the Rev. Dr. Ryleane, pastor of St. Mark's Church.

The bride wore a beautiful gown of white silk mull over pink silk mull and carried pink roses. The maid of honor was gowned in pink silk mull and carried pink roses. The maid of honor was Miss Annie Louise Roberts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Roberts, and Mr. Charles Levi Tolles, son of Mr. and Mrs. George F. Tolles, were married at 7:30 Wednesday evening at the house of the bride's parents, 18 Marshall street, by the Rev. Dr. J. F. Stidham of New Britain, using the Episcopal ritual. The bride was born in 1826 and is a widower. The ceremony was witnessed by only a few relatives and friends. The groom is a couple of years younger than the groom, and for fifteen years has been head librarian of a free library in New York. At one time she lived in Hartford.

At the house the following participated in the festivities:

The Revs. Dolker, Maher, Eagan, Ledy, Lee, Flannery, and Shanley, Mrs. McDonald of Waterbury, the Misses Keece, Mrs. Marshall St. John and daughters, Josephine, Katherine and Eulalie, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Geary, Misses O'Neil, Misses Bell and sisters, Misses McGuire, the Rev. Wm. Kennedy, Misses O'Neil, Mrs. Thomas Monahan, Miss Minnie Burt, Misses O'Kane, Misses Gebhard, Misses Bolle and Louise Baker, Miss Nellie McGrath, Mrs. Reedy, Miss Nellie Murphy, Andrew Murphy, William Dunn of New York, Richard T. Dwyer, Robert T. Dwyer, J. L. Dower, John E. Dwyer, E. J. Mulcahy, Dr. O'Connell of East Hartford, William F. Dunn and Mrs. Dunn, Miss Anna Murphy, Misses Mulcahy, Misses Keller, Misses Belle and Louisa van Epps, Jerry Kane, Lizzie Begogian, Mrs. P. H. Smith, Will Smith, Miss Murphy and the Misses Murphy, Margaret, Miss Clare and James Kennedy, Ahern and daughters, Minnie and Margaret, Joseph Murphy and the Misses Murphy, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. St. John, Drs. G. A. and M. Barlow, and E. H. Warner, Mr. and Mrs. James Kennedy, Joseph Murphy and the Misses Murphy, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. St. John, Drs. G. A. and M. Barlow, and E. H. Warner, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Levi Tolles, the bride's parents.

The couple left on the 4:40 train for a wedding trip. It is understood that they will return and locate at "home" to their friends May 29, and June 6 and 15.

Miss John S. Camp gave a large reception in her charming new home on Asylum avenue from 4 to 6 o'clock on Thursday afternoon. Miss Brainard, Miss Root, Miss Hart, Miss Corrigan, Miss Williams and the Misses Plimpton assisted at the refreshments and tables were set in harmonious coloring prevailing in the decora-
EX-MAYOR GRANT'S WEDDING.

Solemnized by Archbishop Corrigan. Great Secrecy Maintained.

Washington, April 29.—Although the fact cannot be positively stated, owing to the impenetrable veil of mystery thrown about it by the family, there is every reason to believe that the marriage of ex-Mayor Hugh J. Grant of New York, and Miss Murphy, daughter of the New York Senator, took place at the appointed hour of noon today. The license was secured early this morning. At 12:30 Archbishop Corrigan left the Murphy residence, and the clergyman and a group of attendants proceeded to the back drawing-room. The house was sealed against outsiders and no information was given to the press. Senator Murphy gave orders to receive no cards and instructed his servants to say nothing about what had taken place.

At Chappaqua, N. Y., on Tuesday, Miss Alice Haight Cock, daughter of the late Ephraim Cock of that town, was married to Sherman Evarts, son of the Hon. William Evarts, at one o'clock, at the residence of the Hon. Edward S. Hand of that place. The Rev. Dr. Davis, brother of the bride, performed the ceremony.

Miss Minetta Parker.

This attractive daughter of Connecticut is winning great praise abroad. Her success in Italian Opera is marked. Her fine contralto voice was more or less known in this city, and in Boston, and other places, before she went abroad to study in Italy. She has lately completed a course of several years' study in Italy, under such critical and exacting teachers as there flourish, and has since gone for awhile to London, where The Minstrel in its March number, publishes a fine portrait of her (she is decidedly handsome), and with it the following article—giving the lady's name in the Italian form:

MISS MINETTA PARCHER.

Miss Minetta Parcher is, like many other prima donnas who now occupy the foremost places among Italian opera singers, an American—having been born in Connecticut. Her splendid voice and musical talents secured for her a well-remunerated place in the choir of a Boston church. From her, her splendid voice and musical talents secured for her a well-remunerated place in the choir of a Boston church. However, the lady's voice is more or less known in the realm of English music, where the lady's voice is more or less known in the realm of English music, and in its March number, publishes a fine portrait of her (she is decidedly handsome), and with it the following article—giving the lady's name in the Italian form:...
The marriage of the Dowager Duchess of Marlborough to Lord William Beresford will take place in St. George's Church, Hanover Square, at 1 o'clock to-morrow afternoon. Lord Beresford is a member of the ancient Irish family of Waterford. He served with distinction in Zululand, and received the Victoria cross for bravery. The duchess was formerly Miss Lilly Warren Price, daughter of Commodore Price of the United States navy. Her first husband was Louis C. Hammerly, whose father left him the income of $7,000,000.

Mrs. Lilly Warren Price-Hamersley-Machborough will be married in London, to-day, to Lord William Beresford, and another member of the British aristocracy will be made rich and, let us hope, happy.

"London, April 30.—The marriage of the Dowager Duchess of Marlborough to Lord William Beresford took place in St. George's church, Hanover Square, at 1 o'clock this afternoon. The weather was delightfully clear and bright and the church was crowded with aristocratic guests. A full choral service was performed and the ceremony was conducted by the Rev. Edgar Shepard, M.A., the Queen's chaplain in ordinary, assisted by the Rev. Mr. Anderson, the vicar of St. George's. The church was beautifully decorated with palms, orchids and flowers. The chancel screen was covered with white osier flowers, and the altar was covered with floral pieces of exquisite design.

Among those present were United States Ambassador Bayard and Mrs. Bayard. The Duke of Cambridge, accompanied by Major Davidson, occupied a front pew.

The bride wore a magnificent dress of pearl gray velvet, richly embroidered with pearls and trimmed with pale gray ostrich plumes sliding white aginette. Instead of the usual bouquet, the bride carried a prayer-book. As she entered the church every one present rose. The bride stood at the altar and was married to Lord Beresford by the Rev. Mr. Sheppard, chaplain in ordinary of the household of the Queen, sub-dean of the Chapel Royal (St. James Church), began the service. The duchess answered the usual questions in a clear and strong voice, without any hesitation, he related, and many of the particulars are corroborated in part by Henry G. Hummer, the overseer of the poor farm. Hummer has known Raby half a century, and is confident that he is at least 110 years old, and probably more.

"Uncle Noah," as Raby is known among his acquaintances, is short in stature, and slightly bent with age. For six years he has been totally blind. An abundance of bushy white locks crowns his well-shaped head, and there are yet traces of black in his beard.

In talking the old man betrays his Southern birth in the accent, and he is apparently under some difficulty to remember dates clearly, although he is very positive regarding the times and spaces in various places. He says his father was an American Indian and his mother a native of South Carolina. In a clear voice, without any American accent, he related the following story of his life:

"I was born at Eatontown, Gates county, N. C., on April 1, 1772. When I was twenty-one I left the old homestead, and for several months worked as looktender at Norfolk and Portsmouth. I then served on the training-ship Constitution for a year, and was on the Brandywine with Admiral Farragut a year. After leaving the naval service I worked in the Navy Yard and farmed. I expect to end my days here."

"I came to Jersey after leaving the Navy Yard and worked for a number of years on the "Connecticut Farms," near Elizabeth, over from the sea. I came to Middlesex county, and have been here ever since. For a term of years I worked for George Dunham at Stedman, N. C., on April 1, 1772. When I was twenty-one I left the old homestead, and for several months worked as looktender at Norfolk and Portsmouth. I then served on the training-ship Constitution for a year, and was on the Brandywine with Admiral Farragut a year. After leaving the naval service I worked in the Navy Yard and farmed. I expect to end my days here."

When he was seven years old Noah acquired the habit of smoking from lighting his mother's pipe. He enjoys a smoke even now but gives up tobacco ten years ago. He used glasses for the first time twenty years ago. He asserts that he remembers a speech by George Washington delivered at Yorktown.

The only serious illness Raby remembers was when he was 18. He had a severe attack of bilious fever, and the doctor gave him up as dead. He recovered, and has enjoyed excellent health since then.

He sleeps well, sitting up in a chair to avoid a rush of blood to his head. His mind is wonderfully alert, and his faculties are little impaired. In talking he emphasizes nearly everything he says by saying "Certain, Sir." The old man lives upon bread and milk, with some boiled fish and rice occasionally. He has few books in his family, but says he has three sisters, Penelope, Frances and Elizabeth. A wire has been strung from the back door to the well in the yard, with a pole as a guide for him when he goes out for fresh air.

There is a general belief in New Brunswick that the old man's story is true.
To Sing in Springfield.

Mr. George S. Lenox, clerk at the Travelers Insurance Company, received a call through Mrs. Marwick to sing before the musical committee of the South Church of Springfield, Mass., in competition with many others to fill the position made vacant by the withdrawal of Mr. Henry Trask. The committee was much pleased with Mr. Lenox's work and vote, and before returning to Hartford he had signed a contract for a year from April 1. His voice is of unusual range and of remarkably pure tenor quality, which has been developed by J. Marwick. This engagement, which is the most prominent one in Springfield, must be very gratifying to him as well as to his teacher and many friends.

Edward H. Smiley, the New Principal of the High School.

RESIGNATION ACCEPTED.

MAY 3, 1895.

Principal Douglas Retires from the High School.

Vice-Principal Smiley Appointed Acting Principal — Important Action by the High School Committee.

At a special meeting of the high school committee at the school last evening, the resignation of Principal Charles H. Douglas was accepted to take effect immediately. This was the unanimous action of the board, after a full discussion of matters connected with the school, the relations of the principal to the teachers and the pupils, the discipline of the school, and a careful consideration of its government and the duty of the committee in the matter. The full committee was present at the meeting—Chairman George H. Day, Dr. George R. Shepherd, Lieutenant-Colonel Charles E. Thompson, Joseph Schwab, and Arthur L. Shipman.

Principal Douglas came here from Keene, N. H., in November, 1883, and succeeded Principal Joseph Hall, who was then made principal emeritus. The committee last evening considered the question of filling Mr. Douglas's position, and after a careful consideration of all matters in connection with the school, decided to appoint Vice-Principal Edward H. Smiley acting principal, to take entire charge of the school for the summer term, which will begin May 13. Mr. Smiley has been a teacher in the school for several years and is popular with the pupils.
MAY 3, 1895.

CHILDREN'S EVENING.

The Little Folks of Miss Reilly’s Dancing Class Give a Reception.

The children of Miss Reilly’s juvenile dancing classes received their friends at Foot Guard Armory last evening, and it would be difficult to decide which had the advantage, the friends or the children, as to enjoyment. The little people, handsomely dressed, with an abundance of roses, aside from those ever fresh in their happy faces, danced with the grace and dignity of their elders, and with much lighter feet and lighter hearts. It was a delightful sight to see nearly 300 of them moving about the dancing floor like so many miniature men and women, while the dances were on, and to see them resolve themselves into happy, self possessed childhood during the intermission. That they were the happiest party of children in Hartford last evening is not too broad a statement. As for their papas and mammas and their other friends they were decidedly proud of them.

The patronesses of the reception were: Mrs. Walter Sanford, Mrs. Harry B. Stedman and Mrs. Charles E. Chase. The marshal was David Henry Brown, aids, G. Reginald Penfield, Harold Greenwood Baldwin, Howard Reed Hastings, Joseph Franklin Cooley, Halsey Raymond Philbrick, Arthur Williams Allen.

Miss Reilly had many elegant bouquets presented to her and they adorned the section of the hall occupied by the patronesses of the reception. They were from Miss Valerie Sanford, Miss Genevieve Chase, Miss Elsa Miller, Mrs. H. B. Stedman, Mrs. Ida Dimock, Miss Ethel Hale, Miss Clare Smith, Masters Henry Brown, Percy Bryant, Charles Pritchard, Harrison Smith, Ned Strong and Wyckoff Mills.

The hours of the reception were between 5 and 9 o'clock. This evening Miss Reilly’s senior classes hold their assembly at Foot Guard Armory.

MAY 4, 1895.

Assembly of the Senior Classes.

The closing assembly and reception of the senior dancing classes of Miss Reilly’s school was held last evening in Foot Guard Hall. There were nearly 200 couples on the floor, and there were some elegant costumes worn by the young ladies. The galleries were filled with spectators. A pleasant feature of the assembly was the several presentations of bouquets to Miss Reilly. Miss Reilly was assisted in receiving by Mr. George S. Miller, and she opened the dancing with Mr. Ned Allen Strong as partner. The marshal of the evening was Smart Francis Hills, aids, James Webb Booth, jr., Alfred Burriette Wood, Guy Partridge Miller, Guy Mortimer Cardoen, Arthur Odette Wofley, Arthur Dayton Francis and Chester Burton Kellogg.

The engagement is announced of Mrs. Frederick E. Terry of New York and Norfolk to Carl Stoeckel of Norfolk. Mrs. Terry is the only child of the late Hon. Robbins Battell, and her sole heir, inheriting a half million or more at his recent death. Her husband (who was a son of John T. Terry) and her only child have been dead some time. Mr. Stoeckel is a son of Professor Stoeckel at Yale. The young man has been in charge of Mr. Battell’s business at Norfolk for years.

Mrs. Ellen Battell Terry Married.

Norfolk, May 7.—A cablegram received here to-day announces the marriage of Carl Stoeckel and Mrs. Ellen Battell Terry, daughter of the late Hon. Robbins Battell of Norfolk. The ceremony was performed at Whitewell, on the Isle of Wight, famous as the summer resort of Queen Victoria. When their engagement was announced several months ago it was received with great astonishment throughout the State. The bride is much older than her husband, who is a son of Professor Augustus Y. Stoeckel of Yale University.

MARY A. LIVERMORE.

Golden Anniversary of Her Wedding Celebrated.

Boston, Mass., May 5.—The golden anniversary of the marriage of the Rev. D. P. and Mrs. Mary A. Livermore was observed this afternoon at their home in Melrose. It was intended to have no public recognition of the day, but the world-wide reputation of Mrs. Livermore...
The residence of the Hon. John M. Niles, the Postmaster-General, and organizer of the Liberal and Democratic party in Connecticut in the early part of the century, Mr. Niles was an advanced agriculturist. His garden abounded in choice fruits.

The old gentleman held of what he thought was a new variety, and christened it the Rogers. In honor of his wife he gave it a name that mortified to find that it was a well-known Flemish Beauty. I had the specimen of the fruit, bred by Judge Niles's grandson, and the judges Mr. Roland Mathew, then the Hon. W. J. Hamesley, father of Judge Hamesley, and himself one of the most prominent wrangling citizens we have. Opposite Mr. Hamesley lived Mr. Peter Niles, who was John Butler's oldest son.

On the west side there were so many houses, a few bass-woods, and one or two maples adorned the west side of Main street. Beautiful elm and maples adorned the west side of Main street, which was more attractive for residences. Beautiful elm and maples adorned the west side of Main street.

Henry C. Robinson, a witty lawyer, who, after the used to live in Hartford, Ct., told the fol-lower, Mr. Lucas, owing an adscrip-er one evening when he was reading and introducing an English author to a Hartford-Albany, was heard by the audience: "The most famous English-union place, De- man whom I ever saw was Charles Dick- evels, who lectured here in Hartford, Albany, and was a young boy. I had read some of the way, lived the stories of this great writer and I was eager to catch a glimpse of the man we have so often been with. So on the afternoon when the days of his expected to arrive I walked up and down the street in front of the hotel where I knew he was to stay.

Dickens himself, and was really talk- very early hour the next day ing to me. Mr. Robinson paused impressiv-ly, and some one on the platform inquired, soon he extended

"What did he say, Mr. Robinson?" "He said, 'Go away little boy; go away,'" quiet must yield to the progress of our active and successful business interests. HENRY C. ROBINSON
H. H. Quintard

His Bride Will Be Mrs. Richardson, Alias State Jailer.

John Edward gormandizer and the town clock's noon about 4 o'clock in the marriage license so far as his own patron was some of the proposed and she was a woman was granted. The license's last included a short time for a statutory color of peddler and is also so.

Stella Johnson and Edith Richardson never knew her at the street. The reasons why the couple can get married, as stated by "the contracting parties," are as follows: When Edith was a young girl and did not know her own mind, when she had not that contact with the world and the experience which later years have brought, she married a young man. There was no affinity between them and each married again. Edith married Richardson and her first husband married a woman more to his liking. Recently this man died, leaving a wife and nine children. Therefore, Sherlock claims that Edith's marriage with Richardson was void, because when she married him she had a husband living. Now that her original husband is dead, she is free to marry whom she chooses. Sherlock was seen on the street by a reporter yesterday afternoon. He was in a hurry and had a square piece of cardboard in his hand that might have contained a wedding cake or a summer bonnet, one of those things that they would be bride when that she was a woman was granted. The clock's last included a short time for a statutory color of pedestrian, is also so.

Sherlock is Married.

His bride is Edith Richardson, the renowned peddler's daughter.

Mrs. Edith Richardson, or Stella Johnson as the marriage license calls her, arrayed herself in a dark dotted dress yesterday, put a few dabs of powder on her dusky face and sat down in her cell at the jail to await the coming of her long-time admirer, John Edward Sherlock, pedestrian, gormandizer, singer, painter, etc. She waited patiently and she waited long, but for some reason the expected bridegroom delayed his coming. Finally late in the afternoon he appeared at the jail with Lawyer Leonard Morse, who, acting as a justice of the peace, made the twain one at 4:15 o'clock. The witnesses were Assistant Deputy Jailer Michael D. Connaughton, Night Watchman John E. Flynn and Clerk H. Russell Wood. After Judge Morse had told the couple they were one but must pay hold for two, Chaplain Dillingham brought the ceremonies to a close with a brief prayer.

Mrs. Sherlock then put on her new spring bonnet, one of those very small affairs that the women are wearing now. And she and her husband entered a carriage and were driven away. The carriage was an open one, so that they could see and be seen.

H. H. Quintard

Remarkable Record of H. H. Quintard of this City.

Hale, hearty and strong at 52. Henry Harrison Quintard of No. 90 Capitol avenue attributes his good health to having abstained from intoxicating liquors of any kind for fifty years. Just fifty years ago last night, May 9, 1845, he joined Franklin Division, Sons of Temperance, at Brookfield, Conn., and never since that time has any intoxicating liquor passed his lips, except once, when sick, when he drank two bottles of porter prescribed by his physician. He is strong and comparatively active, has no physical ailments; and although he has always been a hard-working man, is ten years younger in appearance than his years would indicate.

The semi-centennial anniversary of Mr. Quintard's joining the ranks of temperance was celebrated last evening by Hawley Division, No. 32, Sons of Temperance, of this city, calling upon Mr. Quintard at the home of his sister, ex-Councilman Henry Patten, No. 13 Rusk street. About forty members of the division, which was headed by Worthy Patriarch A. J. Hirt, made the evening one of much pleasure and enjoyment to Mr. Quintard and his relatives. They went along with them a large framed group picture of seventeen members of the division, twelve women and five men, which was presented to Mr. Quintard by Mrs. C. E. Puffer in a few well-chosen words. The recipient of the gift made reply, dwelling upon the benefits of total abstinence which, he said, had kept him in good health and lengthened his days. C. C. Musella, a member of the division, presented Mr. Quintard with a basket of choice flowers and the evening was spent in a jolly, informal manner. There was a duet by Mrs. Crane and the ex-Chapman, songs were sung by Miss Helen Pellett, Miss Kemmerer and George Crane. H. W. Puffer and Victor H. Baker gave recitations, there were readings by Mrs. C. E. Puffer and James Smith and brief speeches were made by C. C. Musella, W. A. Bader, C. E. Puffer and others. A. J. Hirt played on the auto-harp. Refreshments were served.

After coming to Hartford in 1855, Mr. Quintard joined Hartford Division. He subsequently became a member in succession of Good Will and Capitol divisions and took a card to Hawley division when it was organized in 1858. He is chaplain of Hawley Division, was grand scribe of the Grand Chapter for two years and in July, 1859, initiated a member of the National Division, at Concord, N. H. From the time he was eight years old until he became fifty Mr. Quintard chewed tobacco. He abandoned that habit when he crossed the half-century mark, and has continued to smoke and finds his pipe a great solace in his old age.

Henry Harrison Quintard was born at Norwalk, Conn., September 15, 1812. He comes of French descent and Revolutionary stock. His father, James Quintard, kept a hotel at Norwalk near the dock and served in the Revolutionary War. He was taken prisoner at the battle of Long Island. Mr. Quintard's wife, who died November 9, 1894, was the daughter of Isaac Hillard of Redding, who fought in the Revolutionary War and was wounded at the battle of Bunker Hill. Mr. Quintard remarried.
This will be a great day in Troy, N. Y., because of the dedication of the new building of the old Troy female seminary, built by Russell Sage of New York and called "Russell Sage hall," and the unveiling of a bronze statue of Mrs Emma Hart Willard, the distinguished leader in women's higher education, who made the seminary famous. Mr Sage has spent from $115,000 to $120,000 on the new hall; it is of buff pressed brick and sandstone; the windows throughout are of plate glass; quartered oak is the furniture of the dining-room; all the dormitories are furnished with mahogany; the attic where the servants are fitted with oak, Venetian blinds, hair mattresses and fine rugs; in fine, expense has not been spared. To-day Bishop Potter of New York will conduct the dedication exercises, and President Stryker of Hamilton college and Chauncey M. Depew will make speeches. But why on such a day is there no woman to make a speech? Emma Willard deserves something from women.

The Emma Willard Memorial.

The Russell Sage hall, built at Troy, N. Y., as a memorial to Mrs Emma Willard, the great teacher, is a magnificent affair all through. The building is made of the finest Belleiller brick, all the window casings and all the furnishings are made of buff pressed brick. No expense has been spared in the interior arrangement and decoration of the building. All the dining-room furniture is of quartered oak, made to order. The second floor, which is devoted entirely throughout to dormitories, is furnished thoroughly with mahogany. Even the attic, which is set aside for the use of servants in the institution, is fitted out with carved oak, Venetian blinds, expensive rugs and the finest hair mattresses that Mr Sage was able to buy. Every room of the building is lighted by two or more large windows, glazed with polished mirror plate glass. There are three entrances to the building, one on the park side is an arched opening, flanked on each side by elaborately carved pilasters, which support a model and carved lintel bearing the inscription, "Russell Sage Hall.

May 16, 1895.

The Emma Willard Association, I composed of former pupils of the famous Troy Female Seminary, held their annual banquet at the Windsor Hotel here one day last week. Over 200 "girls," ranging in age from 18 to 50, sat down at table together. Such a buzz as there was — and just one mam present — Mr. Lewis E. George, who a year ago presented the city of Troy and the seminary building with a $50,000 recitation building. Next May will be dedicated Russell Sage Hall, a dormitory building given by Russell Sage to the city, the seminary, and in memory of both his wives. The present, Mrs. Sanborn, is president of the Emma Willard Association, and the second Wednesday of every month she receives all the alumni of Troy Female Seminary at her home, tells of events, and learns the latest news of all the graduates. The great teacher, is a magnificent affair all through. The building is made of the finest Belleiller brick, all the window casings and all the furnishings are made of buff pressed brick. No expense has been spared in the interior arrangement and decoration of the building. All the dining-room furniture is of quartered oak, made to order. The second floor, which is devoted entirely throughout to dormitories, is furnished thoroughly with mahogany. Even the attic, which is set aside for the use of servants in the institution, is fitted out with carved oak, Venetian blinds, expensive rugs and the finest hair mattresses that Mr Sage was able to buy. Every room of the building is lighted by two or more large windows, glazed with polished mirror plate glass. There are three entrances to the building, one on the park side is an arched opening, flanked on each side by elaborately carved pilasters, which support a model and carved lintel bearing the inscription, "Russell Sage Hall.

May 20, 1895.

The Rev. George E. Sanborn has resigned as steward at the Retreat for the Insane, after twenty years' service, and Mrs. Sanborn has resigned as matron. Mr. Henry J. Thompson, who has been acting as clerk to the steward, has been chosen to succeed Mr. Sanborn, and Miss Harriet E. Brown, who has been supervisor, will be the new matron.

Manager Lawler's Wedding.

(Special to The Courant)

Columbus, Md., May 18.

Charles W. Lawler of Hartford, general manager of the Philadelphia, Reading & New England Railroad, was quietly married here last night to Miss Ada Hofer, by Rev. Chas. W. Traver, rector of the Presbyterian Church. The bride is a beautiful and accomplished woman with a host of friends. Mr. and Mrs. Lawler left on a late train for Hartford, where they will reside.
MAY 22, 1895.

The marriage of Sheriff-Elect Smith to Mrs. Smith of Plantsville.

Sheriff-elect E. J. Smith of this city was quietly married to Mrs. Lillian Hough Smith of Plantsville at high noon yesterday. The wedding occurred at “Hillcrest,” the charming residence of the bride, and was witnessed only by the immediate family and Rev. F. T. Rouse of the Congregational Church officiated. Mrs. Smith is the daughter-in-law of Sheriff-elect Smith, who is a well-known resident of Plantsville, and at one time prohibition candidate for governor.

The wedding ceremony was performed in the presence of the executive and many of the leading citizens of Southington.

Mrs. Lillian Hough Smith of Southington, who on Wednesday was married to Sheriff-elect Edwin J. Smith of this city, is the only sister of Mrs. E. D. Parker of Capitol Avenue, widow of E. L. Parker.

The bride is one of the best-known and esteemed ladies of Southington. For many terms she was a successful teacher in the Plantsville school, and was married to the late C. D. Parker, son of the Hon. H. D. Smith, of the H. D. Smith & Co. manufacturing concern.

JUNE 1, 1895.

SHERIFF SMITH.

He Takes Possession of the Office To-day.

E. J. Smith, who was elected sheriff of Hartford county in November last by 438 plurality, will take possession of the office in the very early morning and also of the residence in the jail on Seyms street, together with the charge of the jail itself. Sheriff Preston has cleared out the desks of his office yesterday and late in the afternoon the sheriff-elect was at the office arranging the office furniture and putting in supplies for the carrying on of the county business that comes under his care to-day.

This morning the retiring and the incoming sheriff will meet at the jail and the keys of the institution will be turned over to Sheriff Smith and he will take formal possession of the institution in the presence of the executive force.

Sheriff Preston took from his family the jail residence to No. 214 Collins street, where he has purchased a house. Before the Seyms street residence is occupied by Sheriff Smith and his bride it will be thoroughly redecorated and painted and put into first-class order.

Deputy Sheriff Graham has been the court officer of the court of common pleas since June 5, 1891, and he finished his connection with the court when he adjourned it yesterday afternoon, Judge Calhoun told Mr. Graham yesterday morning that he had been on the bench for the past eighteen years and he feels that there is nothing better than a faithful court officer, the court had had in that time.

Sheriff-elect Edwin J. Smith of this city, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Brewer, bookkeeper at the “E. A. Brewer Bookkeeper,” was solemnly inculcated at 9:30 o’clock at the home of Broad street. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. F. T. Rouse of the First Congregational Church.

The bride, Miss Bertha Louise Miller, the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Miller, is a very popular girl and was educated in Paris and Dresden. She was prominent in society work in Philadelphia and was a founder of the League of Boys in that city. In 1895 she married Arthur Preston, of Southington, and came to this city.

She was prominent in society work in Hartford. She was a member of the Connecticut Cottage Dames of America and was keenly interested in the recreation of the old state house.

There was a substantial wedding breakfast given at the residence by the bride’s parents and cut flowers early spring before the wedding ceremony.

Among the wedding presents were many wedding presents of beautiful and useful articles. The best man was Charles R. Best, brother of the bride, and the ushers were Charles H. Cooley, jr., Charles Ripley, Philip D. Burnham and Bliss Cowles. The officiating clergyman was the Rev. Milner Wilbur of Baltimore, Md., a relative of the bride.

Broadhurst-Best.

There was a pretty home wedding at No. 57 Buckingham street last evening, when Miss Alice Mayer Best, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Best, married to Leon P. Broadhurst, of the Phoenix National Bank. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. R. Willard, of Southington, and followed immediately by a reception lasting until 9 o’clock, which was largely attended by the society people of Hartford.

The bride wore a white satin gown, trimmed with duchesse lace, and carried a bouquet of white roses. The maid of honor was Miss Ellis, who wore a dress trimmed with chiffon and lace and carried pink roses.

The bridesmaids were Miss Waite of Baltimore, Md., Mrs. Mackintosh of Holyoke, Mass., Miss Millie Broadhurst, sister of the groom, and Miss Daisy Best, sister of the bride. They wore in pink organdie and carried bouquets of carnations. The best man was Charles R. Best, brother of the bride, and the ushers were Charles H. Cooley, jr., Charles Ripley, Philip D. Burnham and Bliss Cowles. The officiating clergyman was the Rev. Milner Wilbur of Baltimore, Md., a relative of the bride.

During the reception, Emmosons Orchestra, stationed on the veranda, played several selections. There was a continual stream of guests going and coming for more than two hours, and the rooms of the house were crowded to their utmost capacity.

There were very many wedding presents of beautiful and useful articles. Mr. and Mrs. Broadhurst left for the West on Friday morning and their return will be at home at the corner of Broad and Madison streets.

In addition to the many city guests there were present Mr. and Mrs. Milner Wilbur, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Appold and Miss Clara Waite and Misses E. and C. E. Mackintosh, the Misses Alice and Etta Mackintosh, Miss Shumway and Miss Kellogg of Holyoke, Mass., and Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Cooley, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Turnbull, and Mrs. Mull of New Britain and guests from Manchester and other places.
Deacon Chauncey G. Smith’s Anniversary.

Action of First Baptist Church.

Deacon Chauncey G. Smith of the First Baptist church attained his 90th birthday Thursday. The Times announced the fact and stated that the venerable deacon would, if possible, attend the prayer-meeting in the church in the evening. Deacon Smith did not attend, and his absence was a source of disappointment to the many who had gone to the meeting in the hope of extending their congratulations to him. He remained quietly at the home of his son-in-law, Mr. E. G. Whittlessey, No. 105 Ann street. His health is slightly impaired and he was not feeling as well on his 90th birthday as he had been feeling previously.

Deacon Smith was born in the town of Scotland, Windham county, this State. He has been a resident of Hartford about seventy-five years. For years he had been in the dry goods business and subsequently managed the business of real estate, continuing in the latter business up to a few years ago.

At the prayer-meeting of the church the pastor, the Rev. Dr. Draper, made a happy allusion to Deacon Smith’s connection with the church and to the great service which he has rendered in.

Deacon R. F. Chapman offered the following resolutions, which were supported by ex-Lieutenant-Governor James L. Howard, who is a deacon in the church, and by Deacon L. C. Glazier.

Whereas, our brother, Deacon Chauncey G. Smith, has this day reached the ripe age of 90 years, having been a member of this church for fifty-seven years, and served in the office of deacon for nearly fifty-three years, it is proper to resolve:

Resolved, That the following minute be entered upon the record of the church, viz:

That, in view of his long, faithful and Christian service in this church, his love for its Master, manifested by his consistent life, and devotion to its interests at all times, this church sends him by his associate, the Rev. Dr. Draper, a message of respect and love, with the prayer that his heavenly Father may continue to hold him in his keeping and grant him an ever present sense of his presence and beneficence.

The resolutions were unanimously adopted, and were presented to Deacon Smith to-day.

HONORS FROM THE QUEEN.

Henry Irving and Besant Knighted.

VICTORIA’S 70TH BIRTHDAY OBSERVED.

An unusually charming and original social occasion was the house-warmings and Receptions being given on Wednesday evening by —Rosebery Dines Judge and Mrs. Arthur Perkins at his new residence on Niles street, into—The seventy-sixth which the family has just moved. Some twenty-five or thirty intimate friends were invited and the guests, with lighted tapers in their hands, marched in procession all over the house to inspect its tasteful fittings and architecture, both of which are in the colonial style. The other ceremonies included the breaking of a bottle of champagne over the fire-place. Each guest bore away a pretty card tied with green ribbon and bearing the inscription, “House-Marshal of Ripon Warming at Grey Nook.”

Rosebery last evening gave a dinner in honor of the day, among the guests being Nasr Ulla Khan, the second son of the Amir of Afghanistan, and conduct him to the

In honor of the Queen.

Victoria’s Birthday Officially Celebrated—By German Grandson Gives a Dinner.

The queen’s birthday was officially celebrated in London yesterday, the artillery at all of the naval and military stations firing salutes and the troops parading. The queen’s household brigade performed their trooping the colors, persons witnessed on the ground at 11 surrounded by enthusiastically cheered.

The palace and her daughters of York witnessed windows of the gov-rates were crowded with torchery. At noon, the prince of Wales, the British em-granted great atten-at London show that the guests were given at all the British embassies and legations. Reviews of troops were held and salutes fired in the colonial capitals and also at Cairo and Gibraltar. In Berlin, Emperor Wil-i m gave a dinner to 80 guests, including Sir Edward Malet, the British embassador, Chancellor von Hohenlohe and Baron Marschall von Biebergstein, minister of foreign affairs.

The residences of the ministers and the colonial agents in London were illuminated last night, some of the designs being a crown, with the letters “V.R.”—Lord Rosebery last evening gave a dinner in honor of the day, among the guests being the prince of Wales, the Russian, French, American, German, Austrian and Italian diplomats serving in the archbishop of Canterbury, Sir John Mackintosh and Lord Brassey, Sir William Harcourt, Earl Spencer, and the of Ripon also gave dinners.

Queen Victoria is the daughter of Edward, duke of Kent, the fourth son of George III. Upon the death of her uncle, William IV, June 19, 1837, she became queen, and June 28, 1838, the coronation took place at Westminster. February 10, 1840, she married Albert, duke of SAXONY. She has had nine children, the first of whom was born November 21, 1840, the princes royal, who in 1858 married the prince imperial of Germany, and on November 9, 1851, was born the heir apparent to the crown, Albert Edward, prince of Wales. In December, 1851, Prince Albert died, to the queen's intense grief, and for the marriage of nearly all of them to the court were suspended. In June, 1867, the queen's jubilee was celebrated to commemorate the 50th year of her reign. During the quarter of a century the queen has been in London 1,300,000 square miles having been added. Her reign is up to the present the longest but one of any of the sovereigns of England.

The Level-Headed Queen.

Comparison of Two With Other Queens.

(New York Sun, May 24.)

Lots of poems and other compositions will be printed in London to-day in honor of Queen Victoria as they are upon every recurrence of her birthday. Victoria may not be as great as Elizabeth was, or any more amiable than Anne was, but the nation over which she reigns has been both more patient and content. During its continuance there has been a very great growth of the wealth of England and of her commerce. It has been both a small affair in comparison with the dominions of Victoria. Her reign has been both a period of intellectual and artistic advance for England. The nation over which she reigns has been adorned by the names of many renowned statesmen, and military leaders, and masters of science, and men of letters and captains of industry, and honest worthies. It better deserves the name of the "Augustan period of English literature" than the reign of Queen Anne. It has been a time of unprecedented advance for England.

Victoria is the shrewdest queen that ever reigned. She has never sought to go beyond her constitutional powers; she has accepted such ministerial advisers as Parliament chose for her; she has maintained her own dignity, while never appearing to have less regard for her personal rights and personal pleasures, her sympathies are doubtless with the poor, but she has conferred with Gladstone and Roscherby hardly less freely, though perhaps less cordially, than she conferred with Palmerston, or Disraeli, or Salisbury. She has always taken a personal interest in the policy of the government, about which she is ever well informed. She has recognized the truth of Rosebud's exclamation: "The Crown is a Council." She has a calm judgment and large self-control, though it would not be unfair to say that she is opinionated.

Of the three reigning queens of England in historical times (leaving out Mary of the house of Stuart-Orange) Queen Elizabeth was unmarried; Queen Anne bore seventeen children, and Queen Victoria has been the mother of four sons and five daughters. Her living posterity are very numerous, and she has been very successful in her negotiations for the marriage of the eldest of them who have reached the marriageable age.

There must be over a score of British books writing for the laureatship. This ought to be a good day for one of them to win it by striking the chords of the lyre in a manner that will touch the soul of royalty and fire the loyalty of the empire. Poor Ireland!

The Hartford Times.

Saturday, May 25, 1895.

Hills-Mellen Wedding.

Mr. Lee Hamilton Hills, son of Mr. E. H. Hills, and Miss Marion Houghton Mellen, daughter of Mr. Moses Mellen, were married Friday evening at 8 o'clock, in the Church of the Redeemer, by the pastor, the Rev. Frederick W. Perkins. The church was filled with friends and well-wishers of the happy couple. The bridal couple, Albert A. Pixley and Miss French, daughter of W. H. French of 118 Quincy street, Chicago, took place it Westminster. Friday was also the twenty-sixth wedding anniversary of the bride's parents. Mr. Lee Hamilton hills, son of Mr. E. H. Hills, will reside at No. 30 Spring street. Friday was also the twenty-sixth wedding anniversary of the bride's parents. The married couple was very happy, and the guests were filled with joy.

Hills-Mellen Wedding.

Mr. Lee Hamilton Hills, son of Mr. E. H. Hills, and Miss Marion Houghton Mellen, daughter of Mr. Moses Mellen, were married Friday evening at 8 o'clock, in the Church of the Redeemer, by the pastor, the Rev. Frederick W. Perkins. The church was filled with friends and well-wishers of the happy couple. The bridal couple, Albert A. Pixley and Miss French, daughter of W. H. French of 118 Quincy street, Chicago, took place it Westminster. Friday was also the twenty-sixth wedding anniversary of the bride's parents. Mr. Lee Hamilton hills, son of Mr. E. H. Hills, will reside at No. 30 Spring street. Friday was also the twenty-sixth wedding anniversary of the bride's parents. The married couple was very happy, and the guests were filled with joy.

Hills-Mellen Wedding.

Mr. Lee Hamilton Hills, son of Mr. E. H. Hills, and Miss Marion Houghton Mellen, daughter of Mr. Moses Mellen, were married Friday evening at 8 o'clock, in the Church of the Redeemer, by the pastor, the Rev. Frederick W. Perkins. The church was filled with friends and well-wishers of the happy couple. The bridal couple, Albert A. Pixley and Miss French, daughter of W. H. French of 118 Quincy street, Chicago, took place it Westminster. Friday was also the twenty-sixth wedding anniversary of the bride's parents. Mr. Lee Hamilton hills, son of Mr. E. H. Hills, will reside at No. 30 Spring street. Friday was also the twenty-sixth wedding anniversary of the bride's parents. The married couple was very happy, and the guests were filled with joy.

Hills-Mellen Wedding.

Mr. Lee Hamilton Hills, son of Mr. E. H. Hills, and Miss Marion Houghton Mellen, daughter of Mr. Moses Mellen, were married Friday evening at 8 o'clock, in the Church of the Redeemer, by the pastor, the Rev. Frederick W. Perkins. The church was filled with friends and well-wishers of the happy couple. The bridal couple, Albert A. Pixley and Miss French, daughter of W. H. French of 118 Quincy street, Chicago, took place it Westminster. Friday was also the twenty-sixth wedding anniversary of the bride's parents. Mr. Lee Hamilton hills, son of Mr. E. H. Hills, will reside at No. 30 Spring street. Friday was also the twenty-sixth wedding anniversary of the bride's parents. The married couple was very happy, and the guests were filled with joy.

Hills-Mellen Wedding.

Mr. Lee Hamilton Hills, son of Mr. E. H. Hills, and Miss Marion Houghton Mellen, daughter of Mr. Moses Mellen, were married Friday evening at 8 o'clock, in the Church of the Redeemer, by the pastor, the Rev. Frederick W. Perkins. The church was filled with friends and well-wishers of the happy couple. The bridal couple, Albert A. Pixley and Miss French, daughter of W. H. French of 118 Quincy street, Chicago, took place it Westminster. Friday was also the twenty-sixth wedding anniversary of the bride's parents. Mr. Lee Hamilton hills, son of Mr. E. H. Hills, will reside at No. 30 Spring street. Friday was also the twenty-sixth wedding anniversary of the bride's parents. The married couple was very happy, and the guests were filled with joy.

Hills-Mellen Wedding.

Mr. Lee Hamilton Hills, son of Mr. E. H. Hills, and Miss Marion Houghton Mellen, daughter of Mr. Moses Mellen, were married Friday evening at 8 o'clock, in the Church of the Redeemer, by the pastor, the Rev. Frederick W. Perkins. The church was filled with friends and well-wishers of the happy couple. The bridal couple, Albert A. Pixley and Miss French, daughter of W. H. French of 118 Quincy street, Chicago, took place it Westminster. Friday was also the twenty-sixth wedding anniversary of the bride's parents. Mr. Lee Hamilton hills, son of Mr. E. H. Hills, will reside at No. 30 Spring street. Friday was also the twenty-sixth wedding anniversary of the bride's parents. The married couple was very happy, and the guests were filled with joy.
Yung Wing Leaves On an Important Mission.

To Consult with the Imperial Authorities.

Yung Wing, a member of the Chinese Education Commission, embarked on a mission to consult with the Chinese imperial authorities. He was being summoned to China, where he would confer with the emperor of China.

Yung Wing was recognized by the Chinese Government as a former Head of the Chinese Education Commission in New York City. Afterward, he served as the Chinese Minister at Washington.

A well-known Chinese resident of the city, he was summoned on an important mission to confer with the Chinese imperial authorities. He would leave New York for Vancouver, B.C., via the Northern Pacific.

Yung Wing was expected to have an audience with Li Hung Chang and subsequently with the emperor of China.

About six weeks ago, Yung Wing received a long telegram from Chinese officials, urging him to embark on this mission.

The date of departure was May 24, 1895, and Yung Wing's letter was received in Washington, reporting that he was on his way to China.
Among the pupils educated here was a nephew of Yung Wing, Yung Liang, who has just been assigned to the command of a ship in the Chinese navy, stationed in the Southern Chinese waters. Several other students have been appointed to responsible positions under the Chinese government.

The commission was abandoned by the Chinese government for various reasons, including the attitude of the United States government on the Chinese emigration question and also because it was supposed by the imperial authorities that Chinese youths were not given the same privileges to attend the military and naval schools at West Point and Annapolis as were the Japanese youths in this country.

Chin Lan Pin, now dead, was the direct representative of the Chinese government at the Educational Commission in this city. He was afterwards minister to the United States, at the Hartford. Several ministers were appointed to each the United States, Spain and Peru. Yung Wing was associated with him as assistant minister resident at Washington for about four years. He then returned to China to make his official report, as required by the diplomatic customs of the country; came back owing to the ill-health of Mrs. Yung Wing, although offered high political preferment there, and has since remained in Hartford.

Yung Wing was born in Nan Ping, province of Kwang Tung, China, November 11, 1828, became a pupil of the Rev. Dr. S. B. Beale, a teacher in China under the Morrison Education Society, and accompanied Dr. Brown to the United States in 1847 after his graduation at Yale in 1841, in the class with Austin C. Duham of this city, ex-Governor Lufon B. Morris, Judge Henry A. Dunham of New York and the late George De Forest Lord, he was engaged in the tea and silk business until 1844, when he entered the service of the Chinese government and purchased machinery in the United States for the Kiang Nan Arsenal. In 1870, at Tientsin, he advocated before the imperial commission particular interest attaches. This Dr. Yung Wing, a Chinese by birth, known a naturalized American resident at Hartford. This is the gentleman who in 1872 accompanied the Chinese Educational Mission to the United States. He has recently been ordered to Peking by the Emperor with the purpose of the probability of establishing a national banking system similar to that of the United States. Such a system, if honestly and intelligently carried out, could be made to relieve China of her present financial burdens and put her currency upon a better footing. No difficulty would arise.

Yung Wing returning.

San Francisco, June 14.—Dr. Yung Wing, a Chinese scholar and man of letters, who has played a somewhat conspicuous part in the affairs of his country during the past few decades, was a passenger on the steamer Gaelic which has reached port from the Orient.

Dr. Yung Wing, who is a man of advanced years, was the first of his countrymen to receive a degree from an American institution of learning, Doctor of Laws of Yale College in the class of 1834. Since that time he has won prominence, first among his friends and in the United States. Such a system, if honestly and intelligently carried out, could be made to relieve China of her present financial burdens and put her currency upon a better footing. No difficulty would arise.

Yung Wing in TOWN.

Stopped at New Haven for Commencement and Will Be Here Some Time.

Dr. Yung Wing is passing a few days in the city as the guest of Dr. and Mrs. E. W. Kellogg at their home on Asylum avenue. He came to this city from New Haven, where he attended the commencement exercises, his son, Bartlett Yung, graduating from Yale University. About three years ago Dr. Yung Wing reached San Francisco from China and on his arrival went at once to Los Angeles, where his son Morrison Yung is engaged in business as a civil engineer. After visiting his son he came East and stopped at New Haven during the commencement exercises. His future plans are indefinite, but he will remain in this city for some time renewing the cordial relations with friends which he made while a resident of Hartford.

Yung Wing's Decision.

Would Not Accept the Chinese Mission to Japan.

Rumors have been prevalent lately that Yung Wing of this city, who is now in China, had been recommended by his friend, Viceroy Chong Chi Fong of Hoo Kwang, for minister from China to Japan. Yung Wing was called to China two or three months ago to take a conspicuous part in the affairs of his country. Many graduated waters. Several other students have been appointed to responsible positions under the Chinese government.

The commission was abandoned by the Chinese government for various reasons, including the attitude of the United States government on the Chinese emigration question and also because it was supposed by the imperial authorities that Chinese youths were not given the same privileges to attend the military and naval schools at West Point and Annapolis as were the Japanese youths in this country.

Chin Lan Pin, now dead, was the direct representative of the Chinese government at the Educational Commission in this city. He was afterwards minister to the United States, at the Hartford. Several ministers were appointed to each the United States, Spain and Peru. Yung Wing was associated with him as assistant minister resident at Washington for about four years. He then returned to China to make his official report, as required by the diplomatic customs of the country; came back owing to the ill-health of Mrs. Yung Wing, although offered high political preferment there, and has since remained in Hartford.

Yung Wing was born in Nan Ping, province of Kwang Tung, China, November 11, 1828, became a pupil of the Rev. Dr. S. B. Beale, a teacher in China under the Morrison Education Society, and accompanied Dr. Brown to the United States in 1847 after his graduation at Yale in 1841, in the class with Austin C. Duham of this city, ex-Governor Lufon B. Morris, Judge Henry A. Dunham of New York and the late George De Forest Lord, he was engaged in the tea and silk business until 1844, when he entered the service of the Chinese government and purchased machinery in the United States for the Kiang Nan Arsenal. In 1870, at Tientsin, he advocated before the imperial commission particular interest attaches. This Dr. Yung Wing, a Chinese by birth, known a naturalized American resident at Hartford. This is the gentleman who in 1872 accompanied the Chinese Educational Mission to the United States. He has recently been ordered to Peking by the Emperor with the purpose of the probability of establishing a national banking system similar to that of the United States. Such a system, if honestly and intelligently carried out, could be made to relieve China of her present financial burdens and put her currency upon a better footing. No difficulty would arise.

Yung Wing returning.

The Distinguished Chinese Scholar Will Soon Be in Hartford.

San Francisco, June 14.—Dr. Yung Wing, a Chinese scholar and man of letters, who has played a somewhat conspicuous part in the affairs of his country during the past few decades, was a passenger on the steamer Gaelic which has reached port from the Orient.

Dr. Yung Wing, who is a man of advanced years, was the first of his countrymen to receive a degree from an American institution of learning, Doctor of Laws of Yale College in the class of 1834. Since that time he has won prominence, first among his friends and in the United States. Such a system, if honestly and intelligently carried out, could be made to relieve China of her present financial burdens and put her currency upon a better footing. No difficulty would arise.

Yung Wing in TOWN.

Stopped at New Haven for Commencement and Will Be Here Some Time.

Dr. Yung Wing is passing a few days in the city as the guest of Dr. and Mrs. E. W. Kellogg at their home on Asylum avenue. He came to this city from New Haven, where he attended the commencement exercises, his son, Bartlett Yung, graduating from Yale University. About three years ago Dr. Yung Wing reached San Francisco from China and on his arrival went at once to Los Angeles, where his son Morrison Yung is engaged in business as a civil engineer. After visiting his son he came East and stopped at New Haven during the commencement exercises. His future plans are indefinite, but he will remain in this city for some time renewing the cordial relations with friends which he made while a resident of Hartford.

Yung Wing's Decision.

Would Not Accept the Chinese Mission to Japan.

Rumors have been prevalent lately that Yung Wing of this city, who is now in China, had been recommended by his friend, Viceroy Chong Chi Fong of Hoo Kwang, for minister from China to Japan. Yung Wing was called to China two or three months ago to take a conspicuous part in the affairs of his country. Many graduated waters. Several other students have been appointed to responsible positions under the Chinese government.

The commission was abandoned by the Chinese government for various reasons, including the attitude of the United States government on the Chinese emigration question and also because it was supposed by the imperial authorities that Chinese youths were not given the same privileges to attend the military and naval schools at West Point and Annapolis as were the Japanese youths in this country.

Chin Lan Pin, now dead, was the direct representative of the Chinese government at the Educational Commission in this city. He was afterwards minister to the United States, at the Hartford. Several ministers were appointed to each the United States, Spain and Peru. Yung Wing was associated with him as assistant minister resident at Washington for about four years. He then returned to China to make his official report, as required by the diplomatic customs of the country; came back owing to the ill-health of Mrs. Yung Wing, although offered high political preferment there, and has since remained in Hartford.

Yung Wing was born in Nan Ping, province of Kwang Tung, China, November 11, 1828, became a pupil of the Rev. Dr. S. B. Beale, a teacher in China under the Morrison Education Society, and accompanied Dr. Brown to the United States in 1847 after his graduation at Yale in 1841, in the class with Austin C. Duham of this city, ex-Governor Lufon B. Morris, Judge Henry A. Dunham of New York and the late George De Forest Lord, he was engaged in the tea and silk business until 1844, when he entered the service of the Chinese government and purchased machinery in the United States for the Kiang Nan Arsenal. In 1870, at Tientsin, he advocated before the imperial commission particular interest attaches. This Dr. Yung Wing, a Chinese by birth, known a naturalized American resident at Hartford. This is the gentleman who in 1872 accompanied the Chinese Educational Mission to the United States. He has recently been ordered to Peking by the Emperor with the purpose of the probability of establishing a national banking system similar to that of the United States. Such a system, if honestly and intelligently carried out, could be made to relieve China of her present financial burdens and put her currency upon a better footing. No difficulty would arise.

Yung Wing returning.

The Distinguished Chinese Scholar Will Soon Be in Hartford.

San Francisco, June 14.—Dr. Yung Wing, a Chinese scholar and man of letters, who has played a somewhat conspicuous part in the affairs of his country during the past few decades, was a passenger on the steamer Gaelic which has reached port from the Orient.

Dr. Yung Wing, who is a man of advanced years, was the first of his countrymen to receive a degree from an American institution of learning, Doctor of Laws of Yale College in the class of 1834. Since that time he has won prominence, first among his friends and in the United States. Such a system, if honestly and intelligently carried out, could be made to relieve China of her present financial burdens and put her currency upon a better footing. No difficulty would arise.
commission was held and a number of mandarins of high rank were sent over here to conduct the work of the commission under the direction of Yung Wing. Young Chinamen were sent here to be educated—in all 120 during the life of the commission—and placed in schools all around this section of the country. Many graduated with honors from the high school, and when the commission was broken up in 1881 by imperial decree, and the boys ordered back to China, there were several of whom were Yale. Some of the boys did not return, preferring to remain in this country and others afterwards came back to the United States.

Among the pupils educated here is a nephew of Yung Wing, Yung Lan Pin, now the direct representative of the Chinese government at the Educational mission in this city. He was minister to the United States at the time that two more pupils were selected to each the United States and China. Yung Wing is with him as assistant at Washington, for an official report, as required by the laws of the country. Yung Wing, although not a political preferment, was born in Hartford, Yung Wing was born in the province of Kwang Tung, November 17, 1828, became a member of the Morrison Society, and accompanied Dr. Rogers to the United States in 1847. At graduation at Yale in 1854, in the same year, he was named as assistant at Washington for abroad. He returned to China with an official report, as required by the laws of the country. Yung Wing, although not a political preferment, remained in Hartford.

Yung Wing was born in the province of Kwang Tung, November 17, 1828, became a member of the Morrison Society, and accompanied Dr. Rogers to the United States in 1847. At graduation at Yale in 1854, in the same year, he was named as assistant at Washington for abroad. He returned to China with an official report, as required by the laws of the country. Yung Wing, although not a political preferment, remained in Hartford.
Cameron-Tiffany Wedding.

Miss Annie Fleming Cameron, the third daughter of Sir Frederick Cameron, was married to Belmont Tiffany of New York city yesterday noon in St John's Episcopal church, Clifton, S. I. The ceremony was performed by the rector of the church, Rev. Dr. John C. Eccleston, Miss Catherine Cameron, a sister of the bride, was the maid of honor, and the six bridesmaids were Miss Jennie Tiffany, sister of the groom, Misses Lilian, Miss Lenora Morton, daughter of Gov. Morton, Miss Margaret Morgan, Miss Mary M. Williams and Miss Mand Wetmore. The groom was attended by his brother, William Tiffany, who acted as best man. After the ceremony the bridal party and guests were taken in carriages over to Clifton Berley, Arrochar, where the wedding breakfast was served and a large reception was held.

Marvin-Watrous Wedding in Chicago Yesterday.

The marriage of Loren Pinckney Waldo Marvin of this city, son of E. E. Marvin, clerk of the United States court, to Miss Florence Bell Watrous, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Christopher B. Watrous of Chicago took place at the home of the bride's parents yesterday afternoon, the Rev. Dr. E. P. Goodwin performing the ceremony. The bridesmaids were Miss Margaret Wilson, Miss Maude Hambleton and Miss Adelaide Hamilton of Chicago and Miss Elizabeth Hyde, daughter of the rector of St. James church, William Hyde, New York. Henry H. Kellogg of New York was best man and the ushers were H. W. Hamlin and Bruce Hamilton of Chicago and H. E. Gabriel of St. Louis. A reception followed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Marvin will live at No. 31 Gillette street until their house on Woodward street is finished.

Camberlain-Russell Nuptials.

A beautiful ceremony was performed at St. Mark's church at high noon today, when Dwight F. Chamberlain of Lyons, N. Y., and Miss Margaret E. Russell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry E. Russell of this city, were united in marriage by the Rev. H. N. Wayne, rector of the church. The chancel was handsomely decorated with ferns, palms and hydrangeas. The regular Episcopal service was used by the officiating clergyman, H. J. Brown, who presided at the organ and the boy choir sang Lohengrin's 'Wedding Chorus,' as the procession approached the chancel.

The bride was met at the altar by the groom, attended by his best man, Frederick W. Chamberlain of Lyons, N. Y., Miss Harriet Russell, a sister of the bride, was maid of honor. The bride wore a dress of white satin, with pearl trimmings and lace insertion, and wore a hat of the same color, trimmed with white feathers and berries. She also carried a bouquet of white sweet peas.

The bridesmaids were Miss Chamberlain, sister of the groom, Miss Williams of Todds, N. Y., Miss Ethel C. Russell, sister of the bride, and Miss Frances Whiteley of New Britain. The bridesmaids were dressed in white organza over white silk, with satin trimmings and lace insertion, and wore a hat of the same color, with chiffon, white feathers and berries. They also carried a bouquet of white sweet peas.

The wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents on Lake street. Among the guests present from out of town were: Mr. and Mrs. Chamberlain, Miss Chamberlain, Frederick Chamberlain, Miss Dr. Witt Parshall and Miss Annie Parshall of New York, N. Y., Miss Ecker of Brooklyn, N. Y., Miss Eckel of Brooklyn, Mrs. James P. Allen, the Misses Allen and Mrs. W. M. H. Russell of New York City, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis of N. Y., Mr. and Mrs. John L. Bishop of Philadelphia; Mr. Whitmore, Charles Talbott, Mr. and Mrs. Paulson of West E. Hills, Mr. and Mrs. Riddell of New York City; Charles H. Hooker of New Haven, and Miss Helen Smith of Waterbury. After an extended wedding tour Mr. and Mrs. Chamberlain will reside at Lyons, N. Y.

The marriage of Addie Lovisa Hollister and Mr. Omri R. Brewer was celebrated at the residence of the bride's parents on Hudson street, Wednesday afternoon, in the presence of the family and relatives of the contracting parties. The Rev. L. W. Saltontall was the officiating clergyman. The presents were abundant and numerous. On their return, Mr. and Mrs. Brewer will reside on Willow street, East Hartford, where they will be "at home" to their friends after July 1.

Omri P. Brewer and Addie K. Hollister, who recently lived at 72 Hudson street, Hartford, were married yesterday. Mr. Brewer is a widower, 57 years old, a farmer, living at the corner of Main and Willow street. The bride is 36 and a sister of the late Thomas Hollister. She formerly was noted for her palatable pies, which helped to make Brown, Thomson & Co.'s cafe popular and owns the property on Hudson street.

Schoedler-Kreher.

The Confectioner Marries a Girl From Dresden.

Frederick G. Schoeder and Miss Olsa Kreher were married at Mr. Schoeder's residence, No. 14 Morgan street, at 8 o'clock last night, by the Rev. Hugo K. Erdman, Mr. Schoeder first met Miss Kreher in Germany a few years ago. The bride is from Dresden, Saxony, and arrived in this city the first of the week, making the voyage with her cousin, Miss Richter. The ceremony was performed under a floral horseshoe, over which was hung a wreath. Charles H. Schoeder, a brother of the groom, was the best man and the bridesmaids were Miss Kittle E. Schoeder, a sister of the groom, and Miss Gertrude Beckmann of Northampton, Mass. The maid of honor was Miss Elsie Schoeder. The usher was Herman F. Oplitz of Brooklyn, N. Y. The bride wore a handsome dress of white silk, with a veil, and the bridesmaids and maid of honor wore white tulips. Miss Richter wore a blue gown. The ceremony Carl Beckmann, a cousin of the groom, was baptized by the Rev. Mr. Erdman. The catering was by Hanstein. Mr. and Mrs. Schoeder will reside at No. 14 Morgan street. Mr. Schoeder is the manager of the Schoeder confectionery shop.
Wedding Ceremony, Dinner and Banquet at the Allyn House.

There was happiness and genuine sociability at the wedding of Victor M. Oppen, a manufacturer of New York City, and Miss Alies M. Gutman, a former teacher in the Brown School last evening. The ceremony was performed by Rabbi M. Elkin in the parlor of the old Allyn mansion now a part of the annex to the Allyn House, the couple standing within an arch of evergreen and beneath a floral bough. The bride wore a white satin gown trimmed with duchesse lace and covered with a bouquet of roses. She was attended by Miss Lois Gutman, her sister, as maid of honor, and two other sisters, the Misses Bella and Rosa Gutman, as bridesmaids. The best man was Mr. S. I. Freeman, a cousin of the groom, and the ushers were Edwin Alsheberg, Moses Blumenthal, Joseph Krotosziner, Jacob L. Fox, Morris P. Marks and Mr. C. S. Stern. The gifts to the ushers were silver match safes with individual monograms engraved upon them.

After the ceremony was served to a large company of guests, followed by dancing in the Allyn House dining room, which was handsomely decorated with evergreen and beneath a floral bough, the Beeman & Hatch’s Orchestra furnished the music.

Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Oppen, parents of the groom, Mr. Gans, Mr. Levits and the Misses Oppen, Miss Alice Popper, Miss Levy and Miss Carrolle of New York, a cousin of the groom, and the ushers were Edwin Alsheberg, Moses Blumenthal, Joseph Krotosziner, Jacob L. Fox, Morris P. Marks and Mr. C. S. Stern. The gifts to the ushers were silver match safes with individual monograms engraved upon them.

After the ceremony a dinner was served to a large company of guests, followed by dancing in the Allyn House dining room, which was handsomely decorated with evergreen and beneath a floral bough, the Beeman & Hatch’s Orchestra furnished the music.

The Rev. Herbert N. Bevier, pastor of the Allyn Church, held the ceremony yesterday afternoon to Miss Bortha A. Giddings of this city. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. E. P. Parker at the residence of the bride’s mother, Mrs. Susan M. Giddings, on the corner of New Britain avenue and White street. The bride was given away by her brother, Major Howard A. Giddings. She wore white silk and carried a bouquet of white sweet peas and maid-hair fern. The wedding was a family gathering, relatives being present from this city, New Britain and other places. The bower, where the ceremony occurred, was decorated with ferns and flowers, the prevailing colors being white and green. A luncheon was served after the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Bevier left on the 7:10 p.m. train south for Philadelphia, on a brief visit to Mr. Bevier’s mother, with whom they will reside.

The Rev. Mr. Bevier is a Hartford woman and was graduated from the Hartford Public High School in 1889. In 1890 she entered Mills College, San Francisco, where she met Professor Joseph E. Keep, a member of the faculty. Since last fall, after she was graduated at San Francisco, she has been connected with the South School under Principal Joseph A. Graves.
ETUNE'S FIRST WEDDING DAY.

June 20, Yesterdby, when Edward and Ida ninig bride's grandmother, Mrs Bates, 75 Twelfth city editor of the Homestead, was married To the strains of Mendelsohn's the most intimate friends of the tinnily, mony took place at the residence of the bridal party. An aisle being formed by ribbons stretched by the ushers, A. Bates Butler and William Bates, cousins of the bride, Thomas Turner, brother of the groom, and C. Marsh, often a brides-brother of the groom. The impressive Episcopal service of the First Christian church, the bride's pastor, was read by Rev W. H. Hayden, pastor of the church. The auditorium was filled to the roof by the guests. Nothing would do for Mr and Mrs Sloane but broughams for all the company so that the Sloane "place," comprises 20 acres of beautiful lawn, the beautiful Berk-shire town with its great country places and spacious summer palaces, gave a far more picturesque appearance to the great Burden-Sloane wedding than the fortunate bridegroom's income is worth. The fortune of the family originated in the iron-works founded by the late Henry Burden, James Abercrombie, Jr., now helps to manage the business.

This is a fair face of the bride. She carried a bouquet of fragrant sweet peas edged by lilies of the valley. The bride's hair was dressed in white silk. Her bridal veil was trimmed with lilies of the valley. Dwight Bidwell, brother of the groom, was best man. The ushers were O. H. Dwight Bidwell, brother of the groom, Miss Bidwell of Bloomfield was the bride's bridesmaid, and Mrs. Bidwell-Jenks, formerly Miss Maria Louisa Shepard, daughter of Mr and Mrs Elliott F. Shepard. The bride is the great grand-daughter of Commodore Cornelius, Frederick W., William K. and George W. Vanderbilt, and of Mrs W. Seward Webb and Mrs McK. Twombly, Mr Burden's graduate of Harvard college and of the Harvard law school. He lives at Troy, and has an elegant home on the Hudson. The fortune of the family originated in the iron-works founded by the late Henry Burden, James Abercrombie, Jr., now helps to manage. The bride's train was formed by the most costly special vestibule trains hurrying the guests from New York and Boston, that the Curds hotel, the largest in the neighborhood. was leased for their accommodation, and that the wedding presents, chiefly in the form of jewelry, cost over $700,000. Nor was the employment of special trains limited to the transportation of the guests. Nothing would do for Mr and Mrs Sloane but broughams for all the company, and after securing Lenox and all the neighboring towns only 50 could be found. So 180 more were sent up from New Haven on special freight trains at a cost of $49 each for transportation, making a total cost of $7200 for transportation that one single day.

It is needless to say that the fete which accompanied the wedding was of the most gorgeous character. The beautiful Berk-shire town with its great country places and spacious summer palaces, gave a far finer appearance to the bride than would have been possible in any city. Elm Court, the Sloane "place," comprises 20 acres of beautiful lawn, the great picturesque white wedding presents were most gorgeous and were given at the home of the bride's parents and refreshments served. The wedding presents were of the most gorgeous character. The beautiful Berk-shire town with its great country places and spacious summer palaces, gave a far finer appearance to the bride than would have been possible in any city. Elm Court, the Sloane "place," comprises 20 acres of beautiful lawn, the great picturesque white
The list of guests naturally includes almost every one known to the fashionable world. There were at least 20 present who are worth over $10,000,000 each; nothing less was of any consequence at that gathering. Cornelius Vanderbilt and John Jacob Astor stood out among the guests with their estimated $150,000,000 each, and D. O. Mills, Moses Taylor, Mrs Orme Wilson, Robert H. Kti, Miss Robert Gould, Mrs William H. Vanderbilt, Mrs Eliot Peabody, W. K. Vanderbilt, George Vanderbilt, Dr Seward Webb, Mrs Sloane, Levi P. Morton and J. T. Remsen, Borden, J. A. Burden and Augustus Corbin are all rated above $20,000,000, while James P. Kenna, John, August Belmont, Adolph Luderer, Charles Luce, C. O. Isaias W. D. Sloane and Anson Phelps Stokes have over $10,000,000 each. The world of art was also represented by Mrs Van Rensselaer Cruze, Richard Harding Davis, Mr and Mrs Reginald DeKoven and George W. Smalley.

Many of the guests were of course already at Lenox, staying at the country places throughout the summer, but the bridal party came up from New York on a special train leaving at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. It was run in two sections, and was composed entirely of Wagner vestibule cars with every luxury. The way of the wood, etc. A special car from Cambridge came with 40 Harvard students. Another special train from New York brought up Sherry and his best men, and the last special train run at the last moment brought the presentable viands from New York. All the special trains left last evening when the festivities were completed. The morning was spent in the quietest possible way. The young men lounged about in tennis suits or with white duck trousers and straw hats, and the only busy place was Elm court. About 11.30 every one began to gravitate toward the church.

Trinity church was beautifully decorated in the colors of the Porcelain club to which Mr Borden belonged while at Harvard. Mr Cottriel, who had charge of the work, made good use of a great number of palms from Mr Sloane's green-houses, while the white was furnished by a rose garden of pears which he had procured. At the end of every pew you found a bunch of white poppies tied.in a set of the colors. The morning music was played by the church organist, who wore a Paris gown of taffeta silk, trimmed with pink ribbon; Mrs John S. Barnes, black silk; Miss Croker, white chiffon, with green ribbon; Mrs John Washburn, brown silk, trimmed with pink ribbon; Mrs John S. Barrows, black silk; Miss Anne Barnes, rose silk, white chiffon, with green ribbon; Mrs John Washburn, brown silk, trimmed with pink ribbon; Mrs John S. Barrows, black silk; Miss Anne Barnes, rose silk, white chiffon, with green ribbon; Mrs John Washburn, brown
Among those present were the following:

Mr. and Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish, Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Graham, Miss Gray, Mrs. W. H. Gray, Miss Eliza Gandy, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Harmon, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Howard, Mrs. W. E. Hope, Miss Hopson, Miss Asbury, Mrs. William Baylis, Gen. and Mrs. Burnett, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bowden, Mr. and Mrs. William P. Budde, Miss Evelyn Burden, Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Bronson, Miss Bronson, Mrs. W. H. Vanderbilt, Mr. and Mrs. Cornelia Vanderbilt, Miss Gertrude Vanderbilt, William R. Vanderbilt, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Vanderbilt, Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Twombly, Dr. and Mrs. William Seward Webb, Miss Edith Shepard, Miss Alice Shepard, Mr. and Mrs. Augustus D. Shepard, Miss Eliza Brackett, Mr. and Mrs. William Carey, Mr. and Mrs. A. Cave Cupples, Miss Cameron, the Misses Duer, Mr. and Mrs. Edith Dwyer, Mrs. Paul Duhiggan, Mrs. Frederick Duhiggan, Miss Kathleen Emmet, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Edgerton, Miss Hunt, Mrs. Edith Hall, Chauncey M. Doe, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Howe, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Harriman, Mr. and Mrs. Richard M. Hunt, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Leedy, Mr. and Mrs. Bradford Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Kekosh, Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Kissell, Mr. and Mrs. J. Kerkosh, Miss Kerkosh, Miss Minn Livingston, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lecomte, Miss Henry S. Lovett, Mr. and Mrs. William M. Martin, Mr. and Mrs. Florence Morgan, Mr. and Mrs. H. Purdin McDowell, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Porter, Mrs. H. C. Porter, Mrs. Burke Roche, Miss Hattie Roberts, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Rushby, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Dillon Riley, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Schenck, Mr. and Mrs. Coleman Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Seton, Mr. and Mrs. William Stewart, Miss Amy Townsend, Mr. George Tucumcari, Miss Fanny Tupper, the Misses Whiting, Miss Laura Webb, Miss Jessie Ward, Mrs. Joan Wilmerding, Mr. and Mrs. John Wilmerding, Miss Wilmerding, Mr. and Mrs. M. Witherspoon, Miss Whittier, Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Roberts, Mrs. George L. Roane, the Misses Strong, Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer, Miss Louise Taylor, Miss Trevor, Mr. and Mrs. J. Kennedy Tod, Miss Van Rensselaer, Miss Vail, Mr. and Mrs. Grosvenor Whitney, Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Woodbury, Mr. and Mrs. Lucas Wilmerding, Mr. and Mrs. James M. Waterbury, Miss Marie Winthrop, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Bacon, Mr. and Mrs. B. Roche, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Baylis, Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Beve, Mr. and Mrs. James L. Beere, Mrs. Henry Clews, Miss Elsie Clews, Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Collier, Col. and Mrs. S. Van Rensselaer Granger, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Foster Carey, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Dinsmore, Mr. and Mrs. W. Earl Dodge, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Edgerton, Mrs. W. Cadwalader Evans, Miss Evans, Mr. and Mrs. Gerard Foster, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Freeman, James W. Appleton, Charles A. Appleton, J. Henry Alexander, W. H. Blodgett, Frederick H. Baldwin, Pierre Bolduc, Lewis Eddie, Henry Bloem, Reginald Brooks, Charles Bolden, Hamilton Cary, Alfred H. Coates, Count Blauemarck, Sir Frederick Cameron, W. A. Chamberlain, F. S. Crosby, E. A. Crowthers, Brockholst Cutting, William Curtin, C. R. Harding Davis, Marger de Villoutre, W. A. Duer, J. Coleman Dryden, J. Langdon Ewing, William Van Rensselaer Ewing, Robert Emmett, Theodore Fellingham, William Field, A. E. Kountze, A. F. Kountze, Townsend Irwin, Irene Iselin, F. C. Harrison, W. S. Hoyt, Valentine G. Hall, G. Beckman Hopple, J. A. Hurin, James W. Gecaz, Eliot Greely, Reginald Furman, John Dool Miller, John Ford, Gilbert Franchin, John C. Prang, William B. Field, Philip M. Tadler, Paul Le Fèvre, Edward Livingstone, Goodhue Livingston, Reuben Lockwood, J. Crowers Lee, Prince Lobkowicz, Raymond Le Gratt, J. A. Murray, Peter Mare, Marvinay Blew, the Turkish minister, Matthew J. Morgan, George Musgrove, Robert Perkins, P. J. Rea, Ronalds, Francis Riggs, Charles M. Robinson, J. W. Ritchie, Thayer Robb, Baron von Annen, George W. Seabury, Paul Sears, Charles Sancs, Robert Cornell Sands, S. R. Richard, Enoch Townsend, J. Louis White, Ferdinand Weyel, Worthington Whittome, and Bern Lichirri.
For Miss Porter's Farmington School.

Miss M. A. Howe has resigned from the Hartford High School to accept a responsible position in Miss Porter's well-known school for girls at Farmington.

A member of the high school committee said last evening that the resignation had not yet been acted upon, but the committee would, of course, accept it because it would have to, but would do so with reluctance. She will leave at the end of the present term.

Miss Howe taught in the West Middle School for three years and after that went to high school, where she has been teaching for six years. Since 1883, for the past twelve years, she has been at the Free Chair of French department, and she has long been one of the most popular and one of the most successful instructors in the school. Her room has been a well-known center and a good many of her pupils have taken hold with intelligence and enthusiasm of the studies in which she was their instructor. Her influence has been felt all through the school and has been one of the very best forces at work there. Her withdrawal will be regretted all over Hartford. All the city is interested in the high school, and all who know of its working know the very important place that she fills in its affairs.

This community owes a very heavy debt to her for the work that she has carried on here for years past with so much tact and ability and such marked success.

MISS HOWE.

A Card From the Rev. Mr. Truscott, to the Editor of The Courant.

Sir,—Permit me to thank you for the hearty word of appreciation and praise, given in Monday's "Courant," to Miss Howe on occasion of her resigning the position she has so long occupied in our High School faculty. Large as was the value it assigned to her service, it was no more than she merited. In speaking of her as you did, you certainly expressed the mind of very many whose sons and daughters have been under her teaching and discipline.

By the force of her generous womanly nature her pupils have ever been made to feel that they had in her a friend, whose wishes were a pleasure to meet, and to deserve whose approval was an object worth striving for. Our (and their) sense of obligation to her could scarcely be over-stated. While for the sake of the High School, and of our children who are yet to pass through it, and of the new principal, Mr. Smiley, who has our universal good will, and with whom in the loss of such a coadjutor as Miss Howe, just as at this time, we sympathize—We deeply regret her going.

P. S. We are deeply rejoiced that the handsome diamond ring, given to Miss Howe by the officers of the school was returned to her unaltered, having been thrown into a state of feverish excitement yesterday morning when it became known that two of the oldest and best known residents were married in Southington Sunday night.

The bridegroom was Joseph Gridley, deacon of the Congregational church, and Mrs. Mary E. Gridley was the bride. Behind this ceremony there is a romance, for Gridley is 90 years of age, while the bride 77. Six years ago this couple were lovers, but during a quarrel they became estranged. The young woman married Gridley a well-known resident of Bristol, but lived in no way connected with Dea. Gridley. Three years ago Henry Gridley died. He left to his wife and children his entire estate, and Mrs. Gridley became easily the wealthiest person in town. Mrs. Gridley had lived with her husband 30 years. During the past month the former lovers were thrown together again, the quarrel was patched up and their happiness was consummated by the ceremony at Southington which made them man and wife.

MERWIN—VAN SLYCK—In St. Paul, Minn., June 11, T. Dwight Merwin, formerly of New Milford, Conn., and Mrs. C. W. Van Slyck, a daughter of the late C. S. Weatherby of Hartford.

T. Dwight Merwin, formerly of New Milford and at one time clerk of the House, was married at St. Paul, Minn., yesterday to Mrs. C. W. Van Slyck, a daughter of the late C. S. Weatherby of this city.

Cards are out for the marriage of Mrs. Anna R. Farnie of 53 Lafayette street, and Mr. John Williams of this city, to take place at the bride's residence, June 12, at 3 p.m.

McNider—Stone.

The marriage of Frank B. McNider, an employee of the Case, Lockwood & Brainard Company, and Miss Minnetta Stone took place at the South Park Methodist Church at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, the Rev. W. A. Richards, performing the ceremony. The church was decorated with hydrangeas and palms. The bridesmaids were Miss Rose Linnest and Miss Bertha Bull. Miss Nellie Akers, a maid of honor. The best man was Mr. Cramer, and the ushers were George W. Bull of Southington, H. S. Root and O. H. Thrall. The bride's dress was made of long white satin, trimmed with lace, and the beading was of chain. The dress of the bridegroom was of black velvet, trimmed with gold lace edging.

The maid of honor was Miss Lucy Goodrich, sister of the bride, and the bridesmaids were Miss Lizzie J. May Street of Providence, and Miss Geneva Keen of this city. They wore white and yellow, and the ushers were Messrs. James H. Goodrich, a brother of the bride; Samuel H. Havens, Dr. A. A. Hunt of this city and Charles H. Potter of Springfield. The church was tastefully trimmed with daisies and palms.

After the ceremony a reception was given at the home of the bride's parents. There were a number of presents given the happy couple. Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler left town on an early train for a brief wedding trip. Their future home will be in Providence.

Wheeler—Goodrich.

Mr. Edward Mallory Wheeler of Providence, R. I., and Miss Harriet B. Goodrich, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James B. Goodrich of No. 16 Belden street, were married in the North Methodist church, Tuesday evening of this week.

The marriage of Frank B. McNider, an employee of the Case, Lockwood & Brainard Company, and Miss Minnetta Stone took place at the South Park Methodist Church at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, the Rev. W. A. Richards, performing the ceremony. The church was decorated with hydrangeas and palms. The bridesmaids were Miss Rose Linnest and Miss Bertha Bull. Miss Nellie Akers, a maid of honor. The best man was Mr. Cramer, and the ushers were George W. Bull of Southington, H. S. Root and O. H. Thrall. The bride's dress was made of long white satin, trimmed with lace, and the beading was of chain. The dress of the bridegroom was of black velvet, trimmed with gold lace edging.

The maid of honor was Miss Lucy Goodrich, sister of the bride, and the bridesmaids were Miss Lizzie J. May Street of Providence, and Miss Geneva Keen of this city. They wore white and yellow, and the ushers were Messrs. James H. Goodrich, a brother of the bride; Samuel H. Havens, Dr. A. A. Hunt of this city and Charles H. Potter of Springfield. The church was tastefully trimmed with daisies and palms.

After the ceremony a reception was given at the home of the bride's parents. There were a number of presents given the happy couple. Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler left town on an early train for a brief wedding trip. Their future home will be in Providence.
Brilliant Wedding at St. John's Church at High Noon.

The wedding of Mr. John O. Enders, son of Mrs. Thomas O. Enders, and Miss Harriet G. Whitmore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin G. Whitmore, was celebrated at noon today, at St. John's church, the Rev. J. W. Bradin, rector of the church, officiating. The maid of honor was Miss Ruth Whitmore, sister of the bride. The bridesmaids were Miss Mary S. Russell, Miss Margarette Hart, Miss Mary Lyles of Brooklyn, N. Y., Miss Mabel Chagborn of Philadelphia, Miss Alice W. Gaffney of Springfield, Miss Alice Somer of Boston, Miss Mary R. Penn and Miss Ruth H. Gay of Farmington, Mr. Russell Lee Jones of this city, acted as best man. The usher was William Whitley, Whit and William St. John, Frank Elmore, John C. Bulkeley, Samuel Emore, Burdett Loosga and John Strawbridge of Philadelphia.

The bride wore a white satin, trimmed with pears, pearl pears, old lace, chapel veil and train. She also wore an elegant diamond star, the gift of the bridesman, and orange blossoms. The maid of honor wore a pink silk dress with lace and a white organza hat, and carried pink roses. The bridesmaids wore white muslin, with insertion lace, white leghorn hats, and pink roses. The scene was one of the most brilliant ever witnessed at St. John's.

The guests present included Mrs. Frank B. Danielson, and daughters from Chicago, Mrs. H. K. Mody of New York, Samuel Elmore, Charles Elmore, Harry Elmore, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Post, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel W. Strong Post, Miss Annie Post, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Sloan, ex-Governor and Mrs. Morgan G. Bulkeley, General and Mrs. William H. Bulkeley, William A. Darrah, Mr. and Mrs. Leverett Brainard, Mrs. William H. Wardwell of Brooklyn, N. Y., Mrs. Henry Stacy and Misses Azelia and Fannine Steel of New York, Mrs. Dickson, Mr. and Mrs. George H. Holten of New York, Miss Florence Gay of Farmington, Miss Mae Corrington and Mrs. Edward G. Strauss, Mrs. Henry Whitley of Farmington, Mr. and Mrs. William S. Newson, Mrs. David Samborn of New York, Mrs. Chas. of Philadelphia, Mr. and Mrs. William Corson, Mr. and Mrs. James B. Cone, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Elmore, Mrs. and Mr. Burdett Loomis, Mr. and Mrs. I. W. Ringmister, Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Hart, Mrs. C. C. Goodrich, Miss Ingraham, Miss Forrest, Miss Lawrence, the Misses Barbour, the Misses Correll, Miss Taft, the Misses Johnson, Miss Bennett and Miss Jones.

Dr. Thomas B. Enders, the brother of the bridesman, is in Europe, and will meet the bridal pair on the continent. They will leave for Europe in a week. An elegant bridal breakfast was served at the residence of Mr. Whitmore after the ceremonies at the church.

JULY 7, 1904.

Woodward-Ray.

Charles S. Woodward, assistant superintendent of the almshouse, and Miss Nellie L. Ray, assistant matron at the same institution, were married at the residence of the Rev. George R. Warner in Farmington on high noon. They took the noon express to Boston for a brief wedding trip, and on their return will continue on their positions as officials of the almshouse.

FEBRUARY 14, 1906.

Newton-Hyde.

Miss Corinne Hyde, daughter of Salisbury Hyde, and Arthur Duane Newton, secretary and treasurer of the Eddy Company of Windsor, were married at Mr. Hyde's residence, No. 362 Laurel street, at 8 o'clock last evening. The Rev. E. DeF. Mills of Trinity Church officiated. The best man was Charles H. Luddington of Albany and the bridesmaid was Miss Jennie E. Hyde, a sister of the bride. H. E. Blake of Boston and Alfred W. Dodd of this city were the ushers. The bride wore a very handsome white satin dress. The house was decorated with daisies. Mr. and Mrs. Newton will live at Mr. Hyde's house after October 1.
The pretty little Episcopal Church, St. Thomas's, on Windsor avenue, was well filled yesterday afternoon when at 5 o'clock was solemnized the nuptials of Wilbur Nichols Shelton of Boston, son of Edward Shelton, the real estate broker, and Miss Helen Jordan of Canton street, daughter of Geo. Jordan. The bride, Miss Jordan, who was unattended by maids, was handsomely gowned in a white India silk dress with pearl trimmings and without train or veil, and carried a bride's bouquet of white roses. The ushers were Charles E. Shelton, Will. Jordan, A. Raleigh Carpenter and Ralph H. Foster. During the passage up the aisle the organist, Walter H. Hawkins, played the "Lohengrin" wedding march and gave the pretty "Nuptial March" from Lévybach for the recessional. Following the service a small reception was given for relatives and intimate friends.

The young couple were the recipients of quite a number of valuable presents, among them being an elegantly upholstered boudoir parlor chair from the Nutmeg Club, of which the groom is a member. Mr. and Mrs. Jordan live in Dorchester, Mass.

The engagement of Miss Marion Weed to Charles S. Stearns, son of Dr. Stearns of the Retreat for the Insane, has just been announced. Miss Weed was formerly of Newburgh, but has lived in Hartford for the last three years.

STEARNS—WEED—On Saturday, June 16th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Jordan, of 7 Elm street, Miss Helen Lispenard Weed to Charles Stonier Stearns.

The marriage of Dr. Charles P. Stearns to Miss Marion Weed was celebrated last Saturday at 12:30 o'clock at the residence of the bride, No. 83 Elm street. Only a small number of guests were invited. The bride wore a beautiful gown of white silk. Announcements of the marriage have been sent to Mr. and Mrs. Stearns's many friends in this city and elsewhere.

CARTER—WEBB—On Tuesday, June 18th, at St. John's Church, Hartford, Conn., by the Rev. J. W. Bradin, rector of St. Peter's, Philadelphia, assisted by the Rev. Dr. T. A. Lewis, rector of St. Peter's, Philadelphia, assisted by the Rev. J. W. Bradin, rector of St. John's Church, and was witnessed by a large number of well known people from Hartford and elsewhere, among them being many of the faculty and recent graduates of Trinity College, where Mr. Carter was graduated in 1883. The effective decorations of the church, specially beautiful and impressive one. The chancel rail had been banked with ferns, laurel and hydrangeas and paling were placed at the altar. Around the sides of the chancel was also a rose of ferns and syringas. The altar was covered with daisies and the rear walls were partly concealed by ferns.

The ushers, who led the bridal procession up the aisle, were Francis P. Webb of Philadelphia, Robert W. Morgan and E. R. Parks of New York City, Vincent Lockwood of Riverside, N. Y., Walter S. Schutz, Philip C. Washburn and E. C. Whitcomb of the city. The best man was Prentice Browning of New York City. The maid of honor, who preceded the bride, was Miss Porter, the daughter of Professor J. J. McCook of Hartford. She wore a gown of white figured organdy over pink and a hat trimmed with pink roses, and carried a large bouquet of bridesmaid roses.

The bride came up the aisle on the arm of her uncle, John C. Parsons, of this city, who gave her away. Her gown was of mousseline de soie over white satin. The corseage was trimmed with point duchesse lace and the bride wore a handsome pearl necklace with a sapphire pendant, the gift of the groom, and her tulle veil was kept in place by a cluster of diamonds and a large diamond crescent. She carried an ivory covered prayer book, from which the service was read. There were no bridesmaids.

As the bridal procession moved up the aisle, the bride was accompanied by the Reverend Father and the ushers were Francis P. Webb of Philadelphia, Robert W. Morgan and E. R. Parks of New York City, Vincent Lockwood of Riverside, N. Y., Walter S. Schutz, Philip C. Washburn and E. C. Whitcomb of the city. The best man was Prentice Browning of New York City. The maid of honor, who preceded the bride, was Miss Porter, the daughter of Professor J. J. McCook of Hartford. She wore a gown of white figured organdy over pink and a hat trimmed with pink roses, and carried a large bouquet of bridesmaid roses.

The bride came up the aisle on the arm of her uncle, John C. Parsons, of this city, who gave her away. Her gown was of mousseline de soie over white satin. The corseage was trimmed with point duchesse lace and the bride wore a handsome pearl necklace with a sapphire pendant, the gift of the groom, and her tulle veil was kept in place by a cluster of diamonds and a large diamond crescent. She carried an ivory covered prayer book, from which the service was read. There were no bridesmaids.

The bride was accompanied by the Reverend Father and the ushers were Francis P. Webb of Philadelphia, Robert W. Morgan and E. R. Parks of New York City, Vincent Lockwood of Riverside, N. Y., Walter S. Schutz, Philip C. Washburn and E. C. Whitcomb of the city. The best man was Prentice Browning of New York City. The maid of honor, who preceded the bride, was Miss Porter, the daughter of Professor J. J. McCook of Hartford. She wore a gown of white figured organdy over pink and a hat trimmed with pink roses, and carried a large bouquet of bridesmaid roses.

The bride came up the aisle on the arm of her uncle, John C. Parsons, of this city, who gave her away. Her gown was of mousseline de soie over white satin. The corseage was trimmed with point duchesse lace and the bride wore a handsome pearl necklace with a sapphire pendant, the gift of the groom, and her tulle veil was kept in place by a cluster of diamonds and a large diamond crescent. She carried an ivory covered prayer book, from which the service was read. There were no bridesmaids.
Fashional Wedding at Milford.

Milford, June 19.—Miss Mary Taylor, second daughter of Mr. Henry Tayler, the New York millionaire, will be united in marriage to Mr. Frederick W. Burnside, cousin of the late General Burnside, tonight, the ceremonies taking place in the Masonic Memorial church here. The bride will wear a white satin dress, trimmed with point lace. Her only ornament will be a diamond-studded brooch, the gift of her father, holding her veil in place, and ambros received during the day.

The bridesmaids will be Miss Lucy Taylor, of New York City; Miss Frances Janeway, Miss Frances Janeway of New York City; Miss Grace Walker of Montclair, N. J.; Mrs. Frances New of New York City; Mrs. E. W. Parsons, Mrs. George C. Perkins, Mrs. W. W. Perkins, Mrs. H. A. Perkins, and Mrs. W. G. Perkins, 2d. of Wethersfield. There were many handsome presents of silver.

Married at Bryn Mawr, Pa., Wednesday Afternoon.

A very pretty wedding was celebrated at Bryn Mawr, Pa., Wednesday afternoon, when Miss Evangeline Holcombe Walker was married to Professor Charles McLean Andrews at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. Henry W. Holcombe. The house was profusely decorated with laurel, ferns, palms and flowers, and the guests were received and ushered to the drawing-room by the bridesmaids, who wore dresses of argente and carried bouquets of lilacs and sweet peas, and the guests were received and ushered to the drawing-room.

The bride's dress was of white satin, trimmed with point lace. Her only ornament was a tiara of six-diamond stars set on a diamond-studded brooch, the gift of her father, holding her veil in place, and ambros received during the day.

Married at Bryn Mawr, Pa., Wednesday Afternoon.

A very pretty wedding was celebrated at Bryn Mawr, Pa., Wednesday afternoon, when Miss Evangeline Holcombe Walker was married to Professor Charles McLean Andrews at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. Henry W. Holcombe. The house was profusely decorated with laurel, ferns, palms and sweet peas, and the guests were received and ushered to the drawing-room by the bridesmaids, who wore dresses of argent and carried bouquets of lilacs and sweet peas, and the guests were received and ushered to the drawing-room.

The bride's dress was of white satin, trimmed with point lace. Her only ornament was a tiara of six-diamond stars set on a diamond-studded brooch, the gift of her father, holding her veil in place, and ambros received during the day.
Miss Shepard Married D. H. Morris Without Her Mother's Knowledge or Consent.

It was a runaway match, the marriage of the youngest daughter of the late Elliott F. Shepard, to David Hennen Morris, the youthful millionaire and college student. The family of Miss Shepard knew nothing about it until it was over. Mrs. Shepard was bitterly opposed to the marriage.

Not long ago there was a Vanderbilt wedding which made the occasion of one of the most lavish displays New York has ever known. But that wedding did not occasion one-half the talk which will result from the marriage of this granddaughter of the late William H. Vanderbilt to a very rich young man, which came about so suddenly and with no display at all.

People are talking of the freak of fate which has brought about the mating of a daughter of the late Colonel Shepard, one of the most earnest and devout Presbyterians, a man who made his religion stand always prominently forth, to the son of the man who made his great fortune in the Louisiana Lottery and who had a large stable of racehorses. But some of these people recall that the racing reports printed in Colonel Shepard's newspaper were exceptionally good.

To those who know Miss Alice Vanderbilt Shepard that was, it is stranger yet that she should fall in love and wed a man so closely identified with racing. She was known always as the most devout of Colonel Shepard's children. She has devoted a large part of her life to religious and charitable work. But when she first met young Morris she felt much in love with him.

It began last summer. They met on the Majestic. They were strongly attached to one another from the start. She is a fragile young woman with a Madonna face and wonderfully fine, peaceful eyes. He is a slender youth with blonde hair and a little yellow mustache. It was not long after the meeting that the young man summoned up courage to ask Mrs. Shepard's permission to wed her daughter. The mother consented. The wedding was hurriedly arranged.

Elliott F. Shepard's Daughter Married in New York.

New York, June 19.—Dave Hennen Morris, son of the late John A. Morris of Westchester, N.Y., and Alice Vanderbilt Shepard of New York City, daughter of the late Colonel Elliott F. Shepard, were married this afternoon at the Church of the Transfiguration. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. George H. Houghton, assisted by the Rev. C. H. Bridgeman. On account of the recent death of John A. Morris, father of the groom, only a few friends and relatives were present.

It is understood that Miss Shepard and Mr. Morris met on the steamship Majestic on a trip to Europe last summer, and William C. Whitney, who was a fellow passenger, is said to have introduced the young people to each other. The groom is still a student in Harvard University, graduating next year, but has already taken a course under Dr. William Tid Helmuth in surgery and intends to make this his profession.

Mr. Morris is the partner of his brother, Alfred Hennen Morris, in the ownership of the Morris stable of thoroughbreds, and in the racing establishment maintained by the Morris brothers in Texas, Maryland, England and elsewhere. He is a large owner in Morris Park and is reputed to be worth upwards of one million dollars.

Rev. Dr. Geo) ge H. Houghton, assisted the hiorrisses. He performed the core-
The Pratt-Kellogg Wedding

Beautiful Decorations at the House—An Enjoyable Reception After the Ceremony.

George Dwight Pratt and Miss Marian Kellogg, daughter of the late P. P. Kellogg, were married last evening at the Kellogg home on Maple street. There was special interest in the occasion from the activity of the principals in local society and the prominence of the families concerned. But more than that perhaps was the event memorable because Mr Pratt has been such a recognized leader among the young society folks. He had officiated at so many weddings, as best man or usher, and led. Among those who had seen him plan for the pleasure of others wanted to see him the center of attention, and to enjoy the opportunity of seeing a charming bride. This personal interest in the bride and groom was apparent on every face. It took away formality from the ceremony and made the gathering of a harmonious family party, all the gaiety and novelty and rare taste in the selection of colors and effects of the handsome house. The heartiness of the greetings was a pleasure indeed to see, and Mr and Mrs Pratt can have no doubt of the warmth and sincerity of the good wishes so lavishly bestowed.

Mrs Kellogg’s home was peculiarly fitted for a pretty home wedding and the preparations at the house for the event were admirable. The decorations had all the beauty that good taste could suggest. The ceremony proper took place in the spacious library at the north side of the house. Here, as in fact was the case throughout the house, there was a great profusion of handsome roses as though a large portion of the rose show at union fair had been transported there for the occasion. Across the big bay window with its handsome fireplace, a pretty rustic altar was arranged with palms, birches, asparagus, ferns and other beautiful flowers. The reception followed the wedding took place in the drawing room in the northeast corner of the house. Here was a bower of palms, birches, asparagus, ferns and roses under which Mr and Mrs Pratt received congratulations of friends. The staircase was lost sight of in the laurel and roses with which it was covered and the whole of the house was in complete floral harmony.

One of the most striking features of the arrangements was the supper room. This was built out into the lawn adjoining the library for the occasion. Its walls were of white hunting plaid in colonial style, with diamond-shaped windows. The walls and ceiling were festooned with beautiful laurel and amides; this glistens many incandescent lights, making a most striking effect with the deep green. In the ceiling there were designs of flowers.
The marriage of Miss Helen Clark Sears, daughter of the late Dr. G. W. Sears, and Edward Hamilton Sears was solemnized at the Maple-street home of Mrs. Sears yesterday noon, Rev. J. C. Brooks officiating. Only the immediate relatives of the contracting parties and Smith college friends present. Miss G. W. S. was received by her brother, Frederick R. Hayes, an uncle of the bride, and from the bride’s dress was a bride satin trimmed with chil low pansies. The veil out in all the decorat roses consisted in the but pleasing diversion find a pearl ring in ma sies. The cake boxes tied with Renaissance rib yellow roses ends, making the occasion. Then Legen furnished an breakfast. Mr. Sears Mary’s institute at St. the out-of-town guests Sears, Horace Sears, family, Mrs. Andrews of Weston, Mrs Scudder, Miss Alice Mills, Green of Boston. Miss Miss March of Winch of Poultney, N. Y. of New York city.

The Ceremony

A beautifulJune wedding invitation was issued. Allethaire, daughter of Col. and Mrs. E. H. Chase of Louisville, Ky., and Capt. J. Harvey Estey, which was celebrated last evening in the Center Congregational church at Brattleboro. Miss Cherubim, the second son of Gen. and Col. A. J. Estey, and a member of the national guard, being adjutant of the 1st regiment of Vermont. The church was red, focus pointed plant the pulpit and organ 1 wealth of blossoms, a wreath of roses, trimmings with arches of laurel, stretching the corner and a pretty floral gate thro string party through the ceremony. It was sung by a number under the direction of The bride wore a low white satin, trimmings of white satin. She was given away by her uncle, Frederick R. Hayes. All the flower girls were dressed in white satin, trimmings of white satin. Their dresses were made by Miss Helen Clark Sears. The bride carried a bouquet of white roses. The ushers were William C. Chase, of Louisville, Ky., and Capt. J. Gray Estey, the groom, was best man. The guests were brought into the church by the guests. Among the guests were Lizzie Ketcham, Childs of Brattleboro, Loring Bragman of Bennington and Charles Chaplin of Boston. Rev. C. O. Day, pastor of the Church, performed the ceremony. A reception followed at the summer home of Col. Chase, about 250 guests attending. The bride’s father’s gift to the bride was $10,000 in United States two green bank notes. The house was beautifully decorated with laurel and cut flowers. Maresi of New York catered, and the Philharmonic orchestra furnished the music. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Jerome of Louisana, Dr. and Mrs. Gray Greenlough of New York city.

The Ceremony and the Wedding Breakfast Sketches of the Bride and Groom

Bainbridge Colby of New York and Miss Nathalie Sedgwick of Stockbridge were married at high noon yesterday at St. Paul’s Episcopal church at Stockbridge. It was the most brilliant wedding that has taken place in Stockbridge for several years and was of special interest to the Stockbridge residents because the bride is a relative of some of the oldest and best known families in New York and Massachusetts. The bride is a married descendant of Gen. Robert Sedgwick, who was in Crown’s army. She is also a relative of Catharine Sedgwick, who married several years lived in the same house where she cut the bridal cake yesterday at a table around which there were 24 of her and Mr. Colby’s most intimate friends.

The bride was gowned in plain white satin trimmed with duchess lace and pearls. She was left with elbow bal- loon sleeves and had a train. She wore a tulle veil fastened with a beautiful diamond crescent, the gift of the groom, and orange blossoms. She carried a large bouquet of flowers. She is a beautiful bride’s ring on medium height, with a slender, graceful figure. She is called the most brilliant wedding that has been held in Stockbridge for several years. She has always been interested in all the Stockbridge summer events, such as the boat parade on the Lexington river and the parade through Ice Glen.

The groom, Bainbridge Colby, is about 25 years old, three years younger than the bride. He is a graduate of Williams college in the class of 1906 and was graduated from the Columbia law school in 1913. He has an office at 44 Wall street and has a good practice. He is a member of the Alpha Delta Phi chapter at Williams, and is a very popular fellow while in college. He is considered to be one of the leading young lawyers of New York.

Miss Charlotte Mabel Dwight was the maid of honor. She was dressed in pink crepe, trimmed with white lace and green satin. She carried a bouquet of flowers. There were no bridesmaids. The ushers were William Rissman, Clark Williams, Arden French, and Howard Case, all of New York.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Arthur Lawrence, rector of the church, and Rev. Dr. Theodore Sedgwick of Stockbridge, cousin of the bride. Charles J. Brown of Boston was the organist. He played the bridal chorus from "Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme" as the bridal party entered from the church and Mendelssohn wedding march as they went out. He also played softly during the ceremony some selections from Faust. The bride was given away by her uncle, Henry Dwight Sedgwick.

The church was beautifully decorated, the prevailing colors being pink and white. The chancel gates were banked with laurel and there were bunches of laurel at the entrances to the pews. The windows were also banked in laurel. This church has one

The Bride

The bridal party entered the church and the bride was given away by her uncle, Henry Dwight Sedgwick. The chancel gates were banked with laurel and there were bunches of laurel at the entrances to the pews.

The windows were also banked in laurel. This church has one Miss Florence Coyle, Mr and Mrs L. Sprague, Mrs A. Webster, Miss Caroline Webster, Mr Saxe, Mr Prodon, George C. Stiles, all of New York; Mr and Mrs Gould, Albert C. Aldrich and Will B. Goodrich of Boston; George H. Graves of Bridgeport, Arthur C. Graves and Richard S. Graves of New Haven, Thomas Lockwood of Buffalo, Joseph M. Stoddard of Rutland, Mr and Mrs Henry S. Bingham of Bennington. Mr and Mrs Estey left on the night train and on their return they will be at home at the Park house.
Wedding of a Hartford Man at Winsted Yesterday.

One of the prettiest weddings ever held in Winsted took place in the Second Congregational Church there yesterday when Charles Hooker Talcott, of the wholesale drug house of Talcott & Frisbie of this city and Miss Mary Dudley Vail of Winsted, were married. About 1500 invitations to the church were sent out and it was well filled half an hour before the time set for the marriage. The front part was decorated with pine and laurel and bunches of laurel ornamented the gallery and the seats in the middle aisle.

The bridal party entered the church a few minutes after 2 o'clock in the afternoon, the ushers, and Ellery Sedgwick, Arthur Sedgwick, Miss Jnues Sedgwick, cousins of the bride, Mr Rogers, Dr Clar Dickinson, Miss Isabelle Lawrence, Miss Mar-•, Miss Edith Armstrong, Miss and Mrs Edward Lauterback, the Misses Lanterback, Miss Yard, Miss di Polloni, Mr and Mrs Charles Butler, Miss Grace S. Parker, Miss May Lorine Waters, Miss Grace S. Parker, Miss and Mrs Wheeler in the son of the late William F. Wheeler, the former, Miss Fannie Charles E. Butler, Miss Merritt, Miss May Lorine Waters, Miss Minnie Ely, sister of the bride,  Miss Inez Ely's daughters, No. 659 Main street, last evening, when her father, Miss May Lorine Waters, was married to Mr Less Wheeler, a graduate of Yale, class of '93, and now a tutor in that university, by the Rev. Frederic W. Perkins. The bride was gowned in white silk with chiffon trimming, wore a veil and carried a bouquet of white roses. The maid of honor was Miss Louise Spencer, who was gowned in pale yellow silk with white velvet and chiffon trimming, and carried a bouquet of yellow and white roses. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. William De Loss Love, using the ritual of the Episcopal Church. The ushers were W. H. Bigelow, Mrs. L. Wheeler and Miss Elvira M. Ely's daughters, No. 659 Main street, last evening, when Miss Lilla Louise Ely was married to William David Williams of this city, of the Park family were pretty well decorated with palms, hydrangeas and cut flowers. The bridal party entered the rooms as an orchestra played the "Lohengrin" wedding march, the bride gowned in white satin cut en train, with lace and pearl ornaments, was walked in by a pendant star of pearls and diamonds and carrying a bouquet of white roses. The maid of honor was Miss Annie Avery Ely, sister of the bride, who wore pale yellow silk with white velvet and chiffon trimming, and carried a bouquet of yellow and white roses.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. William De Loss Love, using the ritual of the Episcopal Church. The ushers were W. H. Bigelow, Dr Charles E. Martin of Hartford. After the ceremony there was a reception, in which the bride was congratulated by many friends from Enfield, the former home of the bride, this city and other places. Mr. and Mrs. Williams left for New York and will sail for Europe on the steamship Etruria Saturday. After a six week's visit they will return and be at home at No. 659 Main street.

Wheeler-Waters.

There was a pretty home wedding at the home of Mrs. Horace Waters, No. 72 Ann street, last evening, when her daughter, Miss May Lorine Waters, was married to Mr Less Wheeler, a graduate of Yale, class of '93, and now a tutor in that university, by the Rev. Frederic W. Perkins. The bride was gowned in white silk with chiffon trimming, wore a veil and carried a bouquet of white roses. The maid of honor was Miss Louise Spencer, who was gowned in pale yellow silk with white velvet and chiffon trimming, and carried a bouquet of yellow and white roses. The ushers were W. H. Bigelow, Mrs. L. Wheeler and Miss Elvira M. Ely's daughters, No. 659 Main street, last evening, when her father, Miss May Lorine Waters, was married to Mr Less Wheeler, a graduate of Yale, class of '93, and now a tutor in that university, by the Rev. Frederic W. Perkins. The bride was gowned in white silk with chiffon trimming, wore a veil and carried a bouquet of white roses. The maid of honor was Miss Louise Spencer, who was gowned in pale yellow silk with white velvet and chiffon trimming, and carried a bouquet of yellow and white roses. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. William De Loss Love, using the ritual of the Episcopal Church. The ushers were W. H. Bigelow, Dr Charles E. Martin of Hartford. After the ceremony there was a reception, in which the bride was congratulated by many friends from Enfield, the former home of the bride, this city and other places. Mr. and Mrs. Williams left for New York and will sail for Europe on the steamship Etruria Saturday. After a six week's visit they will return and be at home at No. 659 Main street.

TALCOTT-VAIL MARRIAGES.

Wedding of a Hartford Man at Winsted Yesterday.

One of the prettiest weddings ever held in Winsted took place in the Second Congregational Church there yesterday when Charles Hooker Talcott, of the wholesale drug house of Talcott & Frisbie of this city and Miss Mary Dudley Vail, only daughter of Mrs. Theodore F. Vail of Winsted, were married. About 1500 invitations to the church were sent out and it was well filled half an hour before the time set for the marriage. The front part was decorated with pine and laurel and bunches of laurel ornamented the gallery and the seats in the middle aisle. The bridal party entered the church a few minutes after 2 o'clock in the afternoon, the ushers, and Miss Vail on the arm of her brother, Dudley Vail, who gave her away. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Frederic W. Perkins, at the Rev. J. Spence Voorhees, pastor of the church.
The marriage of Miss Mary Wilcox Stanley to Norman Peet Cooley took place at the home of the bride on South Main street last evening at 7 o'clock. The house was beautifully decorated with a profusion of pink roses. The ceremony was performed in the library, which was decorated with a profusion of pink roses. The Rev. G. Henry Sandwell officiated, assisted by the Rev. James Stedard of Cheshire. The bride was dressed in white satin with chiffon trimmings and carried white roses. Miss Little H. Learned, who acted as maid of honor, wore pink organdy and carried pink roses. The bridesmaids were Misses Marjorie Hart and Katherine Wilbur, who were also dressed in pink organdy and carried pink roses. The best man was Dr. George Cooley of Detroit, brother of the groom, and the ushers were Alks Stanley, William P. Felt, James S. North and E. H. Cooper. Welts Symphony Orchestra furnished music. The bride's presents to the ushers were gold collar buttons and the bride's present to the bridesmaids gold rings. After a short wedding trip they will live in Chicago. The guests present from out of town were Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Blair, Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. Blake Barnes, Mr. and Mrs. V. M. MacFarlane of New York, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Wilcox, Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Millett and Miss Celia Miller of New York, Miss Margaret Miller of Smith, Cat., Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Stanley, Maurice Stanley and Miss Polly Cooley of Chicago, and Mrs. T. J. M. Stanley, Boston.

NEW BRITAIN AFFAIRS.

Rose Wedding:

The marriage of Miss Mary Wilcox Stanley to Norman Peet Cooley took place at the home of the bride on South Main street last evening at 7 o'clock. The house was beautifully decorated with a profusion of pink roses. The ceremony was performed in the library, which was decorated with a profusion of pink roses. The Rev. G. Henry Sandwell officiated, assisted by the Rev. James Stedard of Cheshire. The bride was dressed in white satin with chiffon trimmings and carried white roses. Miss Little H. Learned, who acted as maid of honor, wore pink organdy and carried pink roses. The bridesmaids were Misses Marjorie Hart and Katherine Wilbur, who were also dressed in pink organdy and carried pink roses. The best man was Dr. George Cooley of Detroit, brother of the groom, and the ushers were Alks Stanley, William P. Felt, James S. North and E. H. Cooper. Welts Symphony Orchestra furnished music. The bride's presents to the ushers were gold collar buttons and the bride's present to the bridesmaids gold rings. After a short wedding trip they will live in Chicago. The guests present from out of town were Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Blair, Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. Blake Barnes, Mr. and Mrs. V. M. MacFarlane of New York, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Wilcox, Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Millett and Miss Celia Miller of New York, Miss Margaret Miller of Smith, Cat., Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Stanley, Maurice Stanley and Miss Polly Cooley of Chicago, and Mrs. T. J. M. Stanley, Boston.
The marriage of Miss Jean T. Warburton, daughter of Hiram J. Warburton of 114 Magazine street, and Herbert R. Coffin, Jr., of Windsor Locks took place at Olivet church last evening at 6:30 o'clock. Rev. J. H. Cune officiating, the church was handsomely decorated with flowers and fruits by the members of Mrs E. L. Charles's class of which Miss Warburton was a member. The bridal party, consisting of the bride and groom, the couple's father, the best man, W. H. G. North of Newington, the maid of honor, Miss Grace P. Coffin, and of the groom, the ushers, Charles S. Warburton and Edward Ballard of this city and E. Prentice Egglish and Fred G. Emerson of Windsor Locks, marched up the aisle to the music of the wedding march from "Lohengrin" played by the church organist, Miss Voiles: Ur Coffin of Windsor Locks. to Miss Mienie A. Mathison, daughter of Arthur Mathison of Smith college, sister of the bride, and the best man Monroe B. Coburn of this city. The ushers were Dr G. E. Langworthy of Wesleyan university, H. B. Beers of Hamiliton, S. A. and J. E. Stoeck of this city. Rev. W. G. Richardson of St Luke's church performed the ceremony, two rings being used. As the wedding couple came down the aisle a wedding march was played by Organist Price of the South church, and another was played six times during the entire ceremony. The bride wore bingolia with pearl and lace trimming and carried a bouquet of white roses, her veil being caught with a spray of roses. The maid of honor wore light blue taffeta silk trimmed with pink roses and light blue ribbon, and carried a bouquet of pink roses. Barr created the audience being served under a tent on the lawn. Among those present from out of town were: Prof McGregory of Wellesley Norden and wife, Prof Brigham and wife of Colgate university. Mrs and Miss Manyon, Mr and Mrs Wambridge of this city, at the home of the bride's parents. The house and hall were beautifully decorated, the hall being massed with ferns and yellow dahlias, and the reception-room ornamented with roses, yellow ferns, ferns and dahlias. White dahlias and ferns formed a canopy over the bay window under which the couple stood during the ceremony. The bride wore bingolia with pearl and lace trimming, the veil being massed with ferns and yellow dahlias, and the reception-room ornamented with roses, yellow ferns, ferns and Dahlias. White dahlias and ferns formed a canopy over the bay window under which the couple stood during the ceremony. The bride's dress was of white silk with pearl trimming. She wore a tulle veil in which were roses of the valley. The maid of honor, Miss Grace P. Coffin, wore a dress of white silk and carried pink roses.

After the ceremony a reception was given at the home of the bride. Mr and Mrs Coffin received from 7 until 9 o'clock in the parlor, which was decorated with pink and white roses. They were assisted by Mr and Mrs Warburton and Mr and Mrs Herbert Coffin. During the evening refreshments were served. The guests numbered about 200, among whom were Mr and Mrs G. F. Clark, Mr and Mrs Allen Pease, Dr and Mrs Marless, Rev and Mrs Weich and Mr and Mrs C. L. Allen of Windsor Locks, J. T. and Mrs McGregory, Mr and Mrs Persse, Dr J. W. Harper and Mrs and Mr B. B. Allen of Hartford, Mr and Mrs N. W. Weatherly of Windsor, C. T. and Mrs Spaniuling of Nashua, N. A. W. Warburton and L. Hilt of Boston and Mr and Mrs John Warburton and Miss Cora Warburton. The bride received many presents, among which was a pearl pendant from the groom. Mr and Mrs Coffin left last evening for a two-weeks trip to the White mountains and will be at home in Windsor Locks after August 1.

H. W. Haskins and Miss Wagner.

Popular Springfield Man Weds a Sterling Bride—Elaborate Reception After the Ceremony.

The marriage of Miss Estelle M. Wagner, daughter of Mrs M. M. Wagner of Scranton, Pa., to Harry Walter Haskins of this city took place at 6:30 o'clock, the beautiful new hotel on Wyoming avenue in that city last evening. It was in every respect a most charming affair. The handsome reception rooms were elaborately decorated under the direction of the host, Mr Whyte, and the supper-room was particularly attractive, the colors being yellow and pink. The bride wore white satin, with full train, gold beaded border and floating ends of satin ribbon. She also wore a white collar of exquisite point lace and carried white roses. Her veil was fastened by a diamond and pearl star, the gift of the groom.

The maid of honor, Miss Ella Scott of Baltimore, wore yellow silk, sprinkled with a Dresden pattern of pink roses and trimmed with yellow chiffon and yellow ribbons. She carried pink roses. The bridesmaids, Miss Harriet Crane and Miss Grace Spencer, two fair cousins of the bride, wore pink organdy over pink satin. Their gowns were trimmed with butter-colored lace, their flowers were yellow roses. Claude B. Pratt gave the bride away. The best man was Arthur S. Haskins, brother of the groom. The ushers were D. Edward Miller, William H. Sargent, William P. Lmhure of Newtown, Mr and Mrs March Willard of Northampton. The bride received many presents, among which was a pearl pendant from the groom.

The Ushers were D. Edward Miller, William H. Sargent, William P. Lmhure of this city, and Charles S. Crone of Scran- toon, Rev. C. E. Robinson, pastor of the Sec- ond Presbyterian church, performed the ceremony, at the close of which a reception was held. Mrs Claude B. Pratt and Miss Grace Spencer received in the smaller reception room. In another John A. Duckworth and Mrs Harry Mason were stationed where, with the bride's mother, they greeted many friends assembled. The wedding guests included Mr and Mrs Benjamin Haskins, Arthur S. and William Haskins of this city, Mr and Mrs Chamberlain of Boston, Mr and Mrs Harry Mason, Mr and Mrs Frederick Smith, Mrs and Miss Munson, Miss Grace Smith, Miss Emma Stockey, Messrs Cres, Wett, Smith, Harry Kemmerer of Wilkesbarre, Mrs Charles Hubbard of Fitch, Mr and Mrs Burt of Pittsburg,
Mr. and Mrs. Haslins left last night for a western trip, during a portion of which they will join a party of friends made up for a prolonged journey on the great lakes. They will reside in this city. The groom's popularity among his official and club friends was evinced by the many beautiful and costly gifts received from the organizations in which he is prominent. The bride is a exceedingly attractive young woman whose many friends greatly regret her departure from Scranton. She is a granddaughter of the late Edward Spencer, one of the oldest residents of that region, whose large coal interests are now operated by his sons. She is a niece of Edward Spencer, the well-known art connoisseur and organist of Philadelphia.

W. G. MORSE WEDS AT REVERE.

Ceremony Performed in a Historic Church—A brilliant Affair.

Springfield people are interested in the marriage at Revere last evening of Miss Elizabeth C. Kimball, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lyman L. Kimball of that place, to Walter G. Morse of this city, the well-known member of the firm of P. P. Kellogg & Co. of this city. It was solemnized at the historic old meeting-house of colonial days, now known as the First Unitarian church, before a large assemblage, exceeding in brilliancy any gathering congregated within its walls for many a day. The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. G. Butler, pastor of the church.

The wedding party entered the church to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march. The bridal gates at the end of the aisle were opened by the maids of honor, two little tots dressed in pink, daughters of Walter Whittlesey, cashier of the First national bank of Chelsea. Following the maids of honor were the ushers, Frederick T. Kellogg of this city, Charles H. Beal of Westfield, F. P. Farnsworth of Brookline and L. L. Kimball, Jr., brother of the bride. Then came the four bridesmaids, three sisters of the bride, Miss Emma F. Kimball, Miss Clara L. Kimball and Miss Mary I. Kimball and Miss Fannie Caruth of Chelsea, followed by the bride, accompanied by her father.

At the altar the bridal party was met by the groom and his best man, E. A. Carter of this city, cashier of the City national bank. The ceremony was performed beneath an arch of laurel leaves, suspended from the center of which were the initial letters of the bride and groom, "K and M," in blossoms. Statley palms were placed about the pulpit and wreaths of holly and pink ribbons were placed at intervals on the walls. At the pulpit end of the aisle were beautiful bridal gates attached to rustic posts, covered with moss and natural flowers. The bride wore a gown of white satin cut en train and a bridal veil covered with butterfly waltz of the valley. She carried a bouquet of bride roses. Two of the bridesmaids were attired in pink muslin and two in white muslin wearing pink rosebuds.

The ceremony was followed by a brilliant reception at the home of the bride on Prospect avenue where the young couple were showered with congratulations. Among the guests were Rev. and Mrs. Paul Pritchard and Miss Pritchard of this city and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Reed of Westfield. The bride and groom were the recipients of a large number of valuable presents, which included silverware, cut glass, silverware, etc. After the honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. Morse will reside in this city.

NO DIVORCE FOR MRS. SNOW.

She'll Continue To Be Married, Under Court Decision.

Judge Howard J. Curtis in the superior court yesterday denied the application of Mrs. Mary B. Snow of this city for a divorce from Dr. Frank S. Snow of this city. In the memorandum of decision filed by Judge Curtis denying the petition he says: 'The plaintiff has failed to establish the essential allegation of her complaint by a fair preponderance of the evidence.'

Mrs. Snow charged that her husband had had improper relations with Lydia Peterson, a domestic in the Snow home on Fairfield avenue. Dr. Snow contested the suit and the Peterson woman denied the truth of what was testified to by Mrs. Snow and other witnesses. Mrs. Snow's maiden name was Francis, but at the time of her marriage to Dr. Snow in Valatie, N.Y., on October 8, 1896, she was the widow of Henry B. Duclos, who at one time was connected with the Hartford Life Insurance Company as medical examiner and who was the one who devised the safety fund system under which the company did business. Mrs. Snow was a large holder of the stock of the company at the time of her marriage to Dr. Snow and through her influence in the company Dr. Snow was made medical examiner. For a long time he held that post. He and his wife have not lived together since last winter.

A notice of intention to appeal to the supreme court was filed with the clerk of the superior court yesterday by the lawyers for Mrs. Snow.

JUNE 19, 1909.

SNOW—In this city, January 19, 1899, Mrs. Mary B. Duclos Snow, wife of Dr. Frank S. Snow, died yesterday at her home on Fairfield avenue, after a week's illness of pneumonia. She was 62 years old and before her marriage to Dr. Snow was the widow of Henry B. Duclos, who was superintendent of agencies of the Hartford Life and Annuity Insurance Company, which is now known as the Hartford Life Insurance Company. Mrs. Snow brought a divorce suit against Dr. Snow a number of months ago, but Judge Curtis of the superior court refused to grant the decree and an appeal to the supreme court was pending at the time of her death. Mrs. Snow was well known for her fondness for animals.

The funeral will be held tomorrow noon at the Northam Memorial Chapel, Cedar Hill Cemetery.
MISS LYDIA PETERSON
JUDGE CURTIS'S FINDING OF FACTS IN DEGREE IN THE FAMOUS SNOW DIVORCE SUIT.
ANT, DR. FRANK S. SNOW.
FIELD AVENUE, THIS CITY, A WOMAN ABOUT FILED TO-DAY IN THE SUPERIOR COURT BY JUDGE HOWARD J. CURTIS, BEFORE WHOM HAS BEEN MADE BY THE FINDING OF FACTS
RAISED. THE HOME AT NO. 330 FAIRFIELD MOVED TO HARTFORD, WHERE THEY LIVED MARRIED HER SECOND HUSBAND, DR.
ANCE COMPANY.
1895, AND ABOUT TWO YEARS LATER RE-WEALTHY WOMAN AND HER HUSBAND, TO A WOMAN WELL ALONG IN YEARS AND MAR-
COME UNDER THE PRESENT MANAGEMENT
IN APRIL AND MAY, 1908, AND CON-
NOVEMBER 30, 1908.
MAY 20, 1908.
NO IMPROPER RELATIONS.

VINDICATION AGAIN.

NO IMPROPER RELATIONS.

MRS. SNOW'S DIVORCE CASE
FILED TO-DAY.

MRS. SNOW'S DIVORCE

SUIT IS ON TRIAL.

ACCUSES HUSBAND OF INTIMACY WITH MISS PETERSON.

MRS. SNOW CHARGES THE DOCTOR WITH IMPROPER CONDUCT IN HIS OWN HOME.

MRS. SNOW WANTS DIVORCE.

RIVER SUIT.

TESTIMONY IN AND ARGUMENTS BY BOTH SIDES.

THE JUDGE'S FINDING OF FACTS IN THE SNOW DIVORCE CASE.

THE JUDGE'S FINDING OF FACTS IN THE SNOW DIVORCE CASE.

THE JUDGE'S FINDING OF FACTS IN THE SNOW DIVORCE CASE.

THE JUDGE'S FINDING OF FACTS IN THE SNOW DIVORCE CASE.
SNOW DIVORCE TRIAL ENDS.

Parties Are Now Waiting for a Decision from Judge Curtis.

The hearing in the suit which Mrs. Mary B. Snow brought against her husband, Dr. Frank B. Snow, to secure a divorce from him, was concluded before Judge Howard J. Curtis in the superior court yesterday afternoon. Judge Curtis reserved his decision.

As was indicated in “The Courant” of yesterday morning the issue now is more between Lydia Peterson, the servant girl, and Mrs. Snow than it is between Mrs. Snow and her husband in view of the testimony of doctors. The question was asked at the county building yesterday if Miss Peterson could not sue Mrs. Snow for slander in the event of Judge Curtis deciding the case for Dr. Snow and the serious charges which Mrs. Snow had made against the girl.

If Judge Curtis decides the case against Mrs. Snow and in favor of Dr. Snow that will be to his favor, of course, but the Peterson girl can make no claim for damages against Mrs. Snow because anything Mrs. Snow said or did in connection with the lawsuit, as so far appears, was in a court of justice and the Peterson girl, because of this fact, is barred from bringing action. Should Mrs. Snow make the statements outside the courtroom that she made in court and in her complaint, lawyers say, the Peterson girl would have a cause of action against her.
JUNE 27, 1895.

Golden Wedding Celebration.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Stillman celebrated their golden wedding very quietly last evening with their children and grandchildren, at their home on Woodland street. Mr. Stillman was 80 years old on March 2.

Mr. William H. White and wife of Fargo, who have been the guests of the Rev. F. M. Stiles and wife, have returned to Washington and from there leave for their home.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Snow, who has come to this city for the winter, is one of the most delightful centers in Columbia county, New York. It is located within a short distance of Martin Van Buren's old home, and Catskill ranges and the Hudson River families. From all the present Dr. Snow is residing at the Allyn House, but will soon select a home for himself and wife in some eligible section of the city.

NEW MEDICAL DIRECTOR.

Dr. Frank S. Snow at the Head of the Hartford Life and Annuity Medical Department.

Dr. Frank S. Snow has been appointed medical director of the Hartford Life and Annuity Insurance Company, succeeding the late Dr. Irving W. Lyon of this city, and has for some time been discharging the duties of the position. For the present Dr. Snow is residing at the Allyn House, but will soon select a home for himself and wife in some eligible section of the city.

DR. FRANK S. SNOW.

Dr. Snow was born in the town of Root, Montgomery county, New York State, February 1, 1830, and was educated at the Albany Military Academy, completing his course at Claflin College and at the Western Theological Seminary, now the Princeton Theological Seminary.

AUGUST 26, 1895.

SNOW'S COUNTRY SEAT.

In Full View of the Berkshire and Catskill Mountains.

The country seat owned by Dr. and Mrs. Frank S. Snow, which was left to this city for the winter, is one of the most delightful centers in Columbia county, New York. It is located within a short distance of Martin Van Buren's old home, and Catskill ranges and the Hudson River families. From all the present Dr. Snow is residing at the Allyn House, but will soon select a home for himself and wife in some eligible section of the city.

Dr. Snow was born in the town of Root, Montgomery county, New York State, February 1, 1830, and was educated at the Albany Military Academy, completing his course at Claflin College and at the Western Theological Seminary. From all the present Dr. Snow is residing at the Allyn House, but will soon select a home for himself and wife in some eligible section of the city.

NEW MEDICAL DIRECTOR.

Dr. Frank S. Snow at the Head of the Hartford Life and Annuity Medical Department.

Dr. Frank S. Snow has been appointed medical director of the Hartford Life and Annuity Insurance Company, succeeding the late Dr. Irving W. Lyon of this city, and has for some time been discharging the duties of the position. For the present Dr. Snow is residing at the Allyn House, but will soon select a home for himself and wife in some eligible section of the city.

DR. FRANK S. SNOW.

Dr. Snow was born in the town of Root, Montgomery county, New York State, February 1, 1830, and was educated at the Albany Military Academy, completing his course at Claflin College and at the Western Theological Seminary.
Thomas Hopkins Gallaudet, the first great instructor of the deaf and dumb in this country, who learned his methods from the Abbe Sicard, pupil of De l'Epée in Paris, and who married a deaf mute, one of his pupils, and of their children were deaf mutes. The present Dr. Gallaudet also married one of his deaf mute pupils, Elizabeth R. Budd, in 1845, and they have had a most happy and useful life together. His brother, Edward Miner Gallaudet, was famous among the specialists, having devoted his life to the cause of deaf-mute instruction. Dr. Thomas Gallaudet, after a period of service as teacher at the Hartford institution and in New York, in 1858 established St Ann's Protestant Episcopal church for deaf mutes in New York, and so originated the movement for the spiritual instruction of the class which has become an established work in nearly every diocese of the church. Services for deaf mutes are held at stated times in many churches throughout the country. It seems a pity that St Ann's church building in West Eighteenth street should have been torn down, and that there is now no distinctive church for so large a body of communicants as the deaf mutes in New York city. They now worship in the church of St John the Evangelist, New York.

Dr. Gallaudet's Golden Wedding

The Rev. Dr. Thomas Gallaudet, of New York, the general manager of the Church Mission to Deaf Mutes, and rector emeritus of St Ann's Free Church, to-day celebrated the golden anniversary of his marriage.

Dr. Gallaudet is 73 years old. He was born in Hartford, where in 1837 his father, the Rev. Dr. Thomas Gallaudet, was the first rector of the American Asylum for the Deaf and Dumb; the parent institution. There was a general celebration of the anniversary at the New York Deaf and Dumb Institution, at One Hundred and Sixty-third street, of which institution Dr. Gallaudet is one of the directors. A hand some testimonial, in some (as yet) unannounced form, was to be presented to the elderly couple.

Dr. Gallaudet (a graduate of Trinity College, 1842) was married in New York in 1845. His bride, then Elizabeth R. Budd, of New York, was a pupil in the institution which, on the 10th day of celebrating the anniversary, and in which Dr. Gallaudet was at the time an instructor. The doctor's mother, it will be remembered, was the older people of Hartford, was like her son's wife, a deaf-mute and she, like the present Mrs. Gallaudet in early life, was a pupil in a deaf-and-dumb institution in which her teacher and future husband first met her. That was in the old American Asylum at Hartford, the name of which institution in its various forms has been changed for deaf and dumb institutions. At the son's marriage, in 1845, the ceremony was performed by Bishop Bedell of Iowa while Dr. Peet, at that time the principal of the institution, interpreted the service in signs for the guidance of the bride.

It is perhaps a notable fact that all the children of these unions have perfect speech and hearing.

SPRINGFIELD, THURSDAY, JULY 18.

THE BOURNE-NELSON WEDDING

Solemnized in the Stockbridge Congregational Church the 1st Day of July Noon

The wedding of Prof. Edward Gaylord Bourne, who has recently been appointed to the chair of medical history at Yale, and Miss Annie Thomson Nelson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Nelson of Stockbridge, took place at noon yesterday in the Stockbridge Congregational church. The church, which was beautifully trimmed with daisies and maidenhair ferns, was filled with invited guests. As the wedding march from Lobkowicz was played by Miss Dresden of Saratoga, N. Y., the bride accompanied by her father entered the church. She was joined by the groom in front of the pulpit and the ceremony was performed by Rev. P. T. Farrell, who used the Episcopal service. The bride wore a traveling dress of green broadcloth trimmed with gold cord.

There was no maid of honor nor any bridesmaids. The best man was W. H. Her rick. The ushers were Dr. Charles Fairham Collins of New York, Arthur E. Foote of New Haven, Henry Bourne of Cleveland, O., brother of the groom, and Walter Nelson, brother of the bride. After the ceremony there was a reception at the home of the bride's parents. The bride is a graduate of Vassar and has a wide circle of friends. She received many beautiful presents.

The marriage of Prof. Edward Gaylord Bourne, who has recently been appointed to the chair of medical history at Yale, and Miss Annie Thomson Nelson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Nelson of Stockbridge, took place at noon yesterday in the Stockbridge Congregational church. The church, which was beautifully trimmed with daisies and maidenhair ferns, was filled with invited guests. As the wedding march from Lobkowicz was played by Miss Dresden of Saratoga, N. Y., the bride accompanied by her father entered the church. She was joined by the groom in front of the pulpit and the ceremony was performed by Rev. P. T. Farrell, who used the Episcopal service. The bride wore a traveling dress of green broadcloth trimmed with gold cord.

There was no maid of honor nor any bridesmaids. The best man was W. H. Herrick. The ushers were Dr. Charles Fairham Collins of New York, Arthur E. Foote of New Haven, Henry Bourne of Cleveland, O., brother of the groom, and Walter Nelson, brother of the bride. After the ceremony there was a reception at the home of the bride's parents. The bride is a graduate of Vassar and has a wide circle of friends. She received many beautiful presents.

A Silent Wedding Ceremony at Which Dr. Gallaudet Officiated at Newburg

At St. Paul's church, Newburg, N. Y., Wednesday, Mrs. Mary Goodrich Newell, formerly of Goshen, was married to Mr. William James Nelson of Poughkeepsie. Both the bride and groom are deaf mutes. The officiating clergyman was the Rev. Dr. Thomas Gallaudet, of the Gallaudet Home for Deaf Mutes, assisted by the Rev. Rufus Emery, rector of St. Paul's. The bride were a going-away gown of gray cloth, with bonnet to match, the decorations of the latter being violet and pine. There was no bridesmaid or groomsmen. The ushers were Mr. Charles C. Neumann of New York and Miss Nelson of Rome, N. Y., brother of the groom, who is principal of the Central New York Institute for Deaf Mutes. Among the guests were Archdeacon William R. Thomas of Highland Falls; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Nelson, Miss Nelson, Mrs. C. N. Nelson, Mrs. Charles C. Mann. The bride and groom will sail for Glassgow on the Anchorla on Saturday, for an extended trip through Europe.
Duke of Argyl Married.

London, July 30.—The Duke of Argyl was married at Ripon this afternoon to a girl of 21, named Miss Emily Stuart, niece of George M. Pullman, to the Rev. Dr. C. H. Eaton of Buffalo, by the Rev. R. H. Pullman of Baltimore. The wedding was a quiet one, on account of the illness of Mrs. George M. Pullman at Long Branch, which also prevented Mr. Pullman’s attendance.

Decisions of Judge Thayer.

Mrs. J. J. Grace’s Suit for Divorce Is Dismissed.

Judge Thayer yesterday afternoon gave a decision dismissing the complaint in the divorce suit of Ruana E. Grace against James J. Grace.

Additional testimony was introduced in the divorce suit of Annie C. Harrison of this city against Wellington G. Harrison, which was continued from last week. The decision in the case was reserved.

Mrs. Wellington Harrison Divorced.

Judge Thayer has granted a divorce to Annie C. Harrison from her husband, Wellington G. Harrison. Both are residents of this city and the divorce was granted on the ground of intemperance. They were married in this city on October 8, 1888. The plaintiff’s maiden name was Reynolds. She asked in her petition for the custody of a minor child, Harry Lloyd Harrison, four years old, but her petition for the custody of the child was denied.

August 2, 1895.

Zoological Congress.

Dr. Stiles of This City a Government Delegate to Leyden, Holland.

Charles W. Stiles, Ph. D., of the bureau of animal industry connected with the United States department of agriculture, Washington, D. C., will sail for Europe to-morrow in the Persia to be absent until about October. Dr. Stiles goes abroad as a delegate of the United States government and representative of the department of agriculture, the United States National Museum and the Institution to the third international zoological congress at Leyden, Holland. The congress meets every three years and decides international questions in zoology, as for instance the rules to be followed in giving scientific names to animals, and other matters of importance where uniformity is desired in all countries. It also decides questions as to what constitute scientific publications, how priority shall be established, and kindred subjects. The congress is made up of delegates and members, only appointees of governments are delegates, while the members are representatives from various scientific bodies.

All the civilized countries are represented. About 1000 zoologists will be at the meeting, which is to be held from September 15 to 21. There will probably be a number of Americans who attend as members of the congress representing various scientific societies.
Friday, August 2, 1895.
LOUIS CARRIES OFF LOUISE

They Planned the Event Cleverly, and Parental Blessings Are Confidently Expected.

"Change the name and not the letter. Change for worse and not the better."

Prompted, perhaps, in the satisfactory way in which the elopement of her second cousin, Miss Alice Shepard, with Dave Hemen Morris turned out, Miss Louise Vanderbilt Kissam ran away on Wednesday and was married to Louis Sayre Kerr. She had been staying with her parents at Monmouth Beach, N. J., at the club house, and has been a leader in social affairs there, and a great favorite among the aristocratic cottage element, which is made up of the best families from New York.

Mr. Kerr came down about three weeks ago, and while he has been very attentive to Miss Kissam, it was understood that both mother and father objected to him as a son-in-law. Mr. Kerr and Miss Kissam had evidently been planning the elopement, for during the past week they have been seen very little together, as if to avoid any suspicions that might arise.

Both arose very early Wednesday morning and went separately to the station, where they boarded the 9:26 train for New York. The train goes the all-rail route and is seldom used by the people here, who prefer to go by boat, which is the pleasanter and quicker trip. They probably knew that in going this way they would encounter few people they knew.

The first intimation any one here had of the affair was when a telegram was received by Mrs. Kissam, bearing the news of the marriage in New York. Mr. Kissam at once left Monmouth for New York with his family.

It is not known just what the objections of the Kissam family to Mr. Kerr as a son-in-law were, except possibly the matter of millions. Mr. Kerr has an excellent reputation, is one of the best known of the younger set in the Stock Exchange, and has certainly enough money to keep up an establishment with wolf-repelling doors.

He is said to have cleared $80,000 in one industrial deal two years ago, and he has customers whose 'eighths' amount to millions. Mr. Kerr has an ex-senator as second cousin, Miss Alice Shepard, with whom he has been very close friends. It is, therefore, believed by these friends of both "Mw." Kissam that the elopement will be a success.

The first intimation any one here had of the affair was when a telegram was received by Mrs. Kissam, bearing the news of the marriage in New York. Mr. Kissam at once left Monmouth for New York with his family.

It is not known just what the objections of the Kissam family to Mr. Kerr as a son-in-law were, except possibly the matter of millions. Mr. Kerr has an excellent reputation, is one of the best known of the younger set in the Stock Exchange, and has certainly enough money to keep up an establishment with wolf-repelling doors.

He is said to have cleared $80,000 in one industrial deal two years ago, and he has customers whose 'eighths' amount to millions. Mr. Kerr has an ex-senator as second cousin, Miss Alice Shepard, with whom he has been very close friends. It is, therefore, believed by these friends of both "Mw." Kissam that the elopement will be a success.

The first intimation any one here had of the affair was when a telegram was received by Mrs. Kissam, bearing the news of the marriage in New York. Mr. Kissam at once left Monmouth for New York with his family.

It is not known just what the objections of the Kissam family to Mr. Kerr as a son-in-law were, except possibly the matter of millions. Mr. Kerr has an excellent reputation, is one of the best known of the younger set in the Stock Exchange, and has certainly enough money to keep up an establishment with wolf-repelling doors.

He is said to have cleared $80,000 in one industrial deal two years ago, and he has customers whose 'eighths' amount to millions. Mr. Kerr has an ex-senator as second cousin, Miss Alice Shepard, with whom he has been very close friends. It is, therefore, believed by these friends of both "Mw." Kissam that the elopement will be a success.

The first intimation any one here had of the affair was when a telegram was received by Mrs. Kissam, bearing the news of the marriage in New York. Mr. Kissam at once left Monmouth for New York with his family.

It is not known just what the objections of the Kissam family to Mr. Kerr as a son-in-law were, except possibly the matter of millions. Mr. Kerr has an excellent reputation, is one of the best known of the younger set in the Stock Exchange, and has certainly enough money to keep up an establishment with wolf-repelling doors.

He is said to have cleared $80,000 in one industrial deal two years ago, and he has customers whose 'eighths' amount to millions. Mr. Kerr has an ex-senator as second cousin, Miss Alice Shepard, with whom he has been very close friends. It is, therefore, believed by these friends of both "Mw." Kissam that the elopement will be a success.

The first intimation any one here had of the affair was when a telegram was received by Mrs. Kissam, bearing the news of the marriage in New York. Mr. Kissam at once left Monmouth for New York with his family.

It is not known just what the objections of the Kissam family to Mr. Kerr as a son-in-law were, except possibly the matter of millions. Mr. Kerr has an excellent reputation, is one of the best known of the younger set in the Stock Exchange, and has certainly enough money to keep up an establishment with wolf-repelling doors.

He is said to have cleared $80,000 in one industrial deal two years ago, and he has customers whose 'eighths' amount to millions. Mr. Kerr has an ex-senator as second cousin, Miss Alice Shepard, with whom he has been very close friends. It is, therefore, believed by these friends of both "Mw." Kissam that the elopement will be a success.

The first intimation any one here had of the affair was when a telegram was received by Mrs. Kissam, bearing the news of the marriage in New York. Mr. Kissam at once left Monmouth for New York with his family.

It is not known just what the objections of the Kissam family to Mr. Kerr as a son-in-law were, except possibly the matter of millions. Mr. Kerr has an excellent reputation, is one of the best known of the younger set in the Stock Exchange, and has certainly enough money to keep up an establishment with wolf-repelling doors.

He is said to have cleared $80,000 in one industrial deal two years ago, and he has customers whose 'eighths' amount to millions. Mr. Kerr has an ex-senator as second cousin, Miss Alice Shepard, with whom he has been very close friends. It is, therefore, believed by these friends of both "Mw." Kissam that the elopement will be a success.

The first intimation any one here had of the affair was when a telegram was received by Mrs. Kissam, bearing the news of the marriage in New York. Mr. Kissam at once left Monmouth for New York with his family.

It is not known just what the objections of the Kissam family to Mr. Kerr as a son-in-law were, except possibly the matter of millions. Mr. Kerr has an excellent reputation, is one of the best known of the younger set in the Stock Exchange, and has certainly enough money to keep up an establishment with wolf-repelling doors.

He is said to have cleared $80,000 in one industrial deal two years ago, and he has customers whose 'eighths' amount to millions. Mr. Kerr has an ex-senator as second cousin, Miss Alice Shepard, with whom he has been very close friends. It is, therefore, believed by these friends of both "Mw." Kissam that the elopement will be a success.

The first intimation any one here had of the affair was when a telegram was received by Mrs. Kissam, bearing the news of the marriage in New York. Mr. Kissam at once left Monmouth for New York with his family.

It is not known just what the objections of the Kissam family to Mr. Kerr as a son-in-law were, except possibly the matter of millions. Mr. Kerr has an excellent reputation, is one of the best known of the younger set in the Stock Exchange, and has certainly enough money to keep up an establishment with wolf-repelling doors.

He is said to have cleared $80,000 in one industrial deal two years ago, and he has customers whose 'eighths' amount to millions. Mr. Kerr has an ex-senator as second cousin, Miss Alice Shepard, with whom he has been very close friends. It is, therefore, believed by these friends of both "Mw." Kissam that the elopement will be a success.

The first intimation any one here had of the affair was when a telegram was received by Mrs. Kissam, bearing the news of the marriage in New York. Mr. Kissam at once left Monmouth for New York with his family.

It is not known just what the objections of the Kissam family to Mr. Kerr as a son-in-law were, except possibly the matter of millions. Mr. Kerr has an excellent reputation, is one of the best known of the younger set in the Stock Exchange, and has certainly enough money to keep up an establishment with wolf-repelling doors.

He is said to have cleared $80,000 in one industrial deal two years ago, and he has customers whose 'eighths' amount to millions. Mr. Kerr has an ex-senator as second cousin, Miss Alice Shepard, with whom he has been very close friends. It is, therefore, believed by these friends of both "Mw." Kissam that the elopement will be a success.
THEIR DIAMOND WEDDING.

The diamond wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph D. Manuel was celebrated at Kennebunkport, Me., Saturday afternoon in the presence of a large gathering. A pleasant program was carried out consisting of music and speeches. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. J. Moody, Rev. J. J. M. Prescott, and the Rev. T. E. Parker of the South Congregational Church. The engagement was given there as it has been regularly felicitous. The Rev. Dr. E. Gorton and Mr. Thomas C. Hooker officiated. Mr. and Mrs. C. Frederiek Hamilton, Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Young, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Deming, Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Burdett, Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Loomis and the Misses Loomis were no bridesmaids. The bridal guests included Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Hooker and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bingham. There were many beautiful wedding presents. Mr. and Mrs. Judd, after a brief wedding trip, will leave for Pendleton, where Mr. Judd is engaged in business, and will reside there permanently.

Aug.—Ley.

Miss Catherine Levy and Martin Fagan were married yesterday morning at St. Patrick's Church. The bride had lived in the house of the late Vicar-General Hughes for ten years. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. John Lee, and the wedding breakfast was served at their home on Broad Street. The engagement is announced of J. Madison Hoppin to Miss Sue Mitchell of New Haven. Mr. Hoppin is the son of Prof. James M. Hoppin of Yale University and is a graduate of Oxford University, England. He has long been known as one of the most popular men in New Haven and is the best known author. The engagement is announced of J. Madison Hoppin to Miss Sue Mitchell of New Haven. Mr. Hoppin is the son of Prof. James M. Hoppin of Yale University and is a graduate of Oxford University, England. He has long been known as one of the most popular men in New Haven and is the best known author. The engagement is announced of J. Madison Hoppin to Miss Sue Mitchell of New Haven. Mr. Hoppin is the son of Prof. James M. Hoppin of Yale University and is a graduate of Oxford University, England. He has long been known as one of the most popular men in New Haven and is the best known author.

BY THE SOUND.

Dolings of Summer Visitors at Westbrook.

(Wesbrook, Aug. 19.)

E. B. Morris, Yale '97, and S. A. Ellis, Trinity '98. Mr. Ellis is a bicycle tour, and E. B. Morris, Yale '97, and S. A. Ellis, Trinity '98. Mr. Ellis is a bicycle tour, and has been guests at the Stewart cottage on West Beach during the past week.

HARRY K. TAYLOR. The son of J. C. Taylor of the Charter Oak National Bank, sailed on the 21st of this month for a six-weeks' continental trip, visiting London, Paris, the Rhine and Holland, and returning the latter part of October.
Interest in the Proceedings of the New York Writer Against His Wife Who is Now at West Granville.

Unusual interest has been manifested in the suit for divorce which has been instituted by Mr. W. F. Gill of New York against his wife, Mrs. Edith O. Gill, who is living at present at North Lane, West Granville. Mrs. Gill is a sister of Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt. The suit was entered at the court-house in this city some time ago, and the notice of it was served on Mrs. Gill by Sheriff A. O. King of Westfield last week. Mrs. Gill has retained Lawyer A. S. Knell of Westfield as her counsel, and Mr. Gill also has a Westfield lawyer. The notice of the suit is returnable September 2.

The suit was entered at the court-house in this city some time ago, and the notice of it was served on Mrs. Gill by Sheriff A. O. King of Westfield last week. Mrs. Gill has retained Lawyer A. S. Knell of Westfield as her counsel, and Mr. Gill also has a Westfield lawyer. The notice of the suit is returnable September 2. The man Acker, who was arrested in the Westfield district court Monday for drunkenness on complaint of Mrs. Gill, and who was discharged, is somewhat of a mystery, and it is not known what part he is playing in the whole affair. Mrs. Gill evidently fears him. Yesterday he received a telegram from Mr. Gill who is in New Jersey, to go there at once. The household servants at Mrs. Gill's house at West Granville are nearly all foreigners.

The New York Herald said yesterday

MR. GILL'S CHARGES WITHDRAWN.

He Doesn't Want a Divorce.

A Sensational Development in the Famous Suit Made a Whirlwind Last Evening

W. F. Gill of New York, who instituted recently the sensational divorce suit against his wife, Mrs. E. O. Gill, a sister of Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, has withdrawn charges made against his wife and desires to withdraw the proceedings in the suit. The Gill's have a summer place at Granville and Westfield, and lawyers have been retained in the case. A. S. Knell, being counsel for Mrs. Gill and Judge Kellogg being counsel for Mr. Gill, Mr. Knell announced last evening that he had in his possession the following document, drawn up and signed by Mr. Gill and witnessed by Charles Wilgeroth, the family cook:

In the matter of the divorce proceedings instituted against E. O. Gill, I hereby withdraw the charges of gross intoxication from indulgence in choral and desire to withdraw any and all proceedings in said suit.

W. F. Gill

The paper is dated August 31. It seems that Mr. Gill was at Granville Saturday. What transpired at the house is not known, but Mr. Gill said that the action was caused by a misunderstanding and misapprehension. The result will be that the case will never come to trial, and the statement held by Mr. Knell may be filed with the superior court in this city, or Lawyer Kellogg, counsel for Mr. Gill, and Mr. Knell may file a stipulation with the court, and thus stop any further proceedings. Mr. Gill's statement came like a thunderbolt, and was wholly uninvited by Mrs. Gill or her counsel. Mr. Gill has returned to New Jersey and Mrs. Gill still remains at the farm in Granville. What action she will take in the matter is not known. It will be in accordance with advice of counsel. Judge Kellogg, who is in the case for Mr. Gill, was probably as much surprised as any one at the receipt of the communication, and is claimed to have known nothing of it until informed by Mr. Knell. Judge Kellogg is said to be in receipt of a letter from Mr. Gill which is rather indefinite in its statement and says something in regard to a settlement. Judge Kellogg did not understand it until informed of the paper held by Mr. Knell. He then wrote at once to his client for further explanations. Word had not been received from him last night.

With the announcement of the action on the part of Mr. Gill, several questions arise to be solved. There must have been some motive on the part of Mr. Gill in bringing suit in the first place. The man, H. C. Acker, who is connected with the case, in that he was arrested recently for drunkenness on complaint of Mrs. Gill, is believed by many to have had a hand in the divorce suit. He left Granville on being discharged by Mrs. Gill and Mr. Gill, and Mr. Gill is staying. Lawyer Knell has in his possession, however, a letter from Acker stating that he would be no good for a witness on either side, for he is an ex-convict. Acker also stated how long he had served and for what offense. It was for shooting his wife with a shot-gun, and she was so injured that one hand had to be amputated.

Lawyer Knell has in his possession written and signed documents which include statements made by the servants in regard to their knowledge as to whether Mrs. Gill had ever shown any signs of the effects of taking the drug. One and all stated under oath that they had never seen any chloral hydrate in the house and that Mrs. Gill never drank any liquors or drugs except under the doctor's prescription or in case of sudden sickness. David E. Gwinn of New York city, brother of Mrs. Gill, was in Westfield last evening and had a long talk with Mr. Knell in regard to the affair. He had not seen his sister and could offer no explanation as to Gill's action. He went to Westfield to go to Granville and says he will assist his sister in every way possible. It will not be surprising if matters do not end with this latest development.

JANUARY 11, 1899.

Mrs. Edith Olive Gwinn Gill, wife of William Fearing Gill, who died in Paris Monday, is remembered by Westfield people and also the residents of Granville. A few years ago Mr. and Mrs. Gill had a summer home at West Granville and were seen in Westfield a great deal. Mrs. Gill was a sister of Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Mr. and Mrs. Gill had considerable trouble about three years ago and separated, and had not been in this section since then to remain for any length of time.
AUGUST 24, 1895.

WAS ON THE SEAFORD.

Miss Lewis of Hartford had an experience

Miss Mary B. Lewis of this city, daughter of Dr. John B. Lewis of the Travelers Insurance Company, Miss Leonora Henry, daughter of Congressman Henry, and Mrs. William H. Prescott and daughter of Rockville, who went abroad together last June, were among the passengers who escaped from the steam steamer, which went to the bottom in the English Channel on Tuesday. They started from Paris for London by the 11 o'clock morning and stopped over night in Rouen. The next morning they took the steam steamer, which reached a cablegram saying that the transmission of the telegraph was not expected until he had reached Rouen. Mrs. Lewis of Hartford was among the passengers who were very fortunate in escaping from the wreck.

December 13, 1910.

JAMES P. ANDREWS

ELECTED A DIRECTOR.

Takes Place of Silas W. Robbins in Phoenix Mutual Life.

At a meeting of the directors of the Phoenix Mutual Life Insurance Company held yesterday, James P. Andrews was elected a director to fill the vacancy created by the death of Mr. W. H. Seelye. Mr. Andrews is the reporter of the Connecticut supreme court and lives at No. 151 Prospect avenue, New York.

James P. Andrews was born October 23, 1854, in East Windsor. He is the son of the late Rev. Samuel James Andrews. He was graduated from Yale College in 1877, and from the Yale Law School in 1879, being admitted to the bar in 1879. He was married in Ashfield, Mass., August 27, 1895, to Julia Lincoln Ray. His law practice has always been in this city. He has been the reporter of the supreme court of errors since 1894. He is a Republican and a Congregationalist. He is a member of the Hartford, the University, and the Hartford Golf clubs. He is the author of "The Connecticut Index Digest."

MARRIED AT ASHFIELD.

James P. Andrews Weds Miss Julia

Lincoln Ray of Chicago.

(Special to The Courier.)

Ashfield, Mass., Aug. 27.

Miss Julia Lincoln Ray of Chicago was married in the Congregational Church at this place at 5 o'clock to-day to James

P. Andrews of Hartford. Miss Ray was met by her sister, Mrs. W. K. Vanderlip, of Hartford, who accompanied her from the railroad station. The bride and bridegroom immediately proceeded to the church, where the ceremony was performed by Rev. George Blatchford of Chicago. Miss Curtis of

New York, the daughter of the late George William Curtis, and Mr. and Mr. Camp Was on the Seaford.

John S. Camp of this city and William H. Presbrey of this city, who are the son of the late Rev. J. A. Ray, who died in Boston last month, are the son of Lincoln Clark, were passengers on the "Chicago" steamer, which went to the bottom in the English Channel on Tuesday. They started from Paris for London by the 11 o'clock morning and stopped over night in Rouen. The next morning they took the steam steamer, which reached a cablegram saying that the transmission of the telegraph was not expected until he had reached Rouen. Mrs. Lewis of Hartford was among the passengers who were very fortunate in escaping from the wreck.

SEPTEMBER 6, 1893.

THE SCOWDER-SEELYE WEDDING.

Dr. Seelye's Daughter Marries a Boston Physician at Northampton.

The wedding of Miss Abigail Taylor Seelye, daughter of President L. Clark Seelye of Smith college, and Dr. Charles Locke Scudder of Boston took place at Northampton yesterday afternoon. It was very quietly celebrated, the ceremony being performed in College hall at 5 o'clock in the presence of between 500 and 700 relatives and near friends. No reception was held. The occasion was marked by simplicity both in the ceremony and the decorations. It was the first wedding solemnized in College hall. Dr. B. C. Bidggett presided at the organ and before the hour of the wedding played a few selections, introductory to the Vorspiel from Wagner's Lohengrin, to the notes of which the bridal party entered. Dr. Arthur K. Stone of Boston was best man and the ushers were Dr. Ralph H. Seelye of this city and Walter C. Seelye, brothers of the bride, Dr. Gardner H. Scudder of Cambridge, cousin of the groom and Dr. Malcolm Starer of Boston. Miss Harriet C. Seelye, sister of the bride, was of honor.

The bridal party was led by the ushers, the groom and best man following. Then came Miss Harriet Seelye, the maid of honor followed by the bride and her father. Upon arriving at the platform, President Seelye took his place before the bridal party and performed the ceremony. The service, which was in English, was one of Seelye's special favorites. The decorations were not elaborate but the lights in the hall made them very effective. Green was the predominating color and the columns and staircases in the corridors were decorated with laurel and ground pine and in the hall laurel and clematis covered the arches overhead. The platform was banked with palms, ferns and laurel leaves relieved by a few potted plants in blossom. Overhead just in front of the platform was a large marriage hall of hydrangea blossoms from which were suspended on all sides festoons of clematis. Beneath this was the bridal couple standing during the ceremony.

At the conclusion of the service as the bridal party was passing down the aisle, Dr. Bidggett played the choral theme from Beethoven's 9th symphony. The bride wore a dress of white peau de suie and a bridal veil of white chiffon trimming and a beautiful bridal veil of Brussels net caught with orange blossoms. She carried a bunch of white sweet peas. The maid of honor's dress was white crêpe trimmed with white chiffon. The home of the bride was decorated with ferns, palms and flowers more elaborately than the hall. In one of the rooms was displayed the wedding gifts, many of which were of great value. The relatives and immediate friends of the family at the wedding included many from Boston, New York, this city, Amherst and Easthampton. Dr. and Mrs. Scudder will live on Beacon street in Boston in which city Dr. Scudder is a successful physician. He is a graduate of Yale and of the Sheffield scientific school and alo of the Harvard medical school. The bride, who is one of Northampton's most popular young women, is a Smith college graduate and an accomplished singer, having spent considerable time in Paris in study with Marchesi.
A missionary service will be held at Trinity Church on Sunday at 7:30 p.m. in recognition of the consecration of the Rev. D. Trumbull Huntington to the missionary jurisdiction of China. The service here will be practically simultaneous to that at Shanghai, China, on March 25, of the Rev. D. Trumbull Huntington, bishop of the missionary jurisdiction of Hunan. Short addresses will be made by the Rev. Dr. Francis Goodwin, the Rev. Dr. Samuel Hart of the Berkeley Divinity school and the Rev. Dr. J. J. McCook, whose son-in-law is Harrington Littell, son of the late Rev. J. M. McKenzie of New Bedford, Massachusetts. The Missions Board passed upon his appointment.

The Rev. D. Trumbull Huntington, who was the first man of the three men and three women to go from Trinity parish to the mission field, was graduated from Yale College in the class of 1892 and from Berkeley Divinity school in 1895. He was admitted to the diaconate by Bishop Williams of Connecticut that same year, and volunteered service in China. At that time the financial condition of the board of missions did not warrant the appointment of another missionary in China, but at this juncture the Church Students’ Missionary association, having learned the facts and guaranteed the support of Mr. Huntington, and the board passed upon his appointment. After three years’ work in Hankow, 600 miles up the Yangtse river, he was sent to take charge of the mission at Ichang, 100 miles further on. Here Mr. Huntington found at Ichang a missionary residence, a church and a small school for boys with thirty boarders and seventy day scholars; a girls’ school with thirty pupils; a large industrial work and employment over 150 women (founded by its aunt, Miss M. C. Huntington), and the unique trade school for destitute and forsaken boys. Besides all this, he carried on for seven years a normal school, later reorganized and located at Hankow. He has also been of great service in the surrounding district, and with his inspiring faith and undaunted courage secured the property knowing that the church at large would again honor his daring, and his trust was not misplaced. He is a Christ man, we can trust him, we can follow him.”
in Hartford seventy or more years ago:

Mr. Tinker writes thus entertainingly of his visit and events and persons in Hartford seventy or more years ago:

Mr. Tinker was born in Hartford early in 1813 and is consequently 82 years old. He was christened in the old South Church by the Rev. Dr. Flint and remembers the tearing down of the old church, the second structure which was erected after the present edifice in 1827. A week ago Sunday Mr. Tinker returned safely home in St. Paul. I returned via the city of Washington, where I layed my call on you and Dr. Parker, to a late period of my visit, as I am driven to the City Hotel, and the next day a great part of the city. I enjoyed my visit very much. I laid my call on you and Dr. Parker, who peopled the streets in former years in their old original places: John Omlstead, corner of Pearl and Main streets, Mr. Olmstead and Caleb Goodwin and James B. and Charles Hosmer, and, further south, Ward & Bartholomew, and then my father's cousin was the kind opened.

CAPT. D. M. TAYLOR ARRIVES.

Capt. Daniel M. Taylor, for the second time in six years, has been assigned to the post at the United States armory in this city. The captain arrived in the city last evening at 7:30 o'clock and is now stopping at Maj. Ruxford at the armory. He left his post in Augusta (Ga.) arsenal early in Monday afternoon. The order which carried him was dated May 13, 1889, and transferred him from Washington to this armory. At that time he remained on duty in this city until September 1889, leaving here after three days and four hours. Capt. Taylor made a good name in Augusta during his other residence here and all will be glad to welcome him here again. The family of Capt. Taylor, which he now has here as soon as he secures permanent quarters, are well known to Spring-preached before the local society. What his assignment here means to those at Augusta is known. Capt. Taylor made a good name in Augusta during his other residence here and all will be glad to welcome him here again.

The Military career of Capt. Taylor has been of the kind opened.

The last military career of Capt. Taylor has been of the kind opened.

The last military career of Capt. Taylor has been of the kind opened.
The Republican.

SPRINGFIELD, FRIDAY, SEPT. 6, 1895.

NOW CAPT TAYLOR MUST LEAVE.

Springfield to Lose a Popular Army Officer, Who Became Well Known Outside of Uncle Sam's Iron Fence.

Army orders issued yesterday relieve Capt. Daniel M. Taylor from service at the Springfield armory and transfer him to the present at Augusta, Ga. Capt. Taylor has been here since the spring of 1892 and at first was in charge of the watershops. On Capt. Blunt's departure he was assigned the milling shops, an important position. Officers at the armory come and go, and the movements of officers are not much concern the Springfield public. But Capt. Taylor's removal is a loss to the social life of the community. He is a gentleman as well as a soldier, and he has taken an interest in the life of the city. The members of his family have also been welcomed in society here and they will be missed by many of their friends. This popular officer will no doubt have occasion to remember many Springfield people pleasantly, but he will certainly not forget his "double," ex-Lieut.-Gov. Haile, for whom he has frequently been mistaken, even where Mr. Haile is so well known.

Capt. Charles W. Whipple, who is to succeed Capt. Taylor, has been attached to the office of the chief of ordnance at Washington. He is about 47 years old, is married and has several children. Capt. Whipple is a graduate of West Point in the class of '83. He entered the artillery at once and served actively until about 1873. He was on duty at the centennial exposition and won praise because of the manner in which he managed his department there. After this he was stationed at the proving ground or Sandy Hook.

The military career of Capt. Taylor began with his appointment to West Point by President Johnson as "cadet at large" July 1, 1865. He was graduated fifth in a class of 37 in 1869, and was commissioned a 2d lieutenant in the 1st artillery June 15, 1869. He served in garrison at Fort Schuyler and Fort Hamilton, and made a winter march through Dakota with a body of recruits. Afterwards he took active part in suppressing illicit distilleries in Brooklyn, N. Y., and subsequently was ordered to West Point as assistant professor of French and assistant instructor of artillery tactics. In 1870 at his own request he was ordered to the Rock Island arsenal, and remained on duty there till August 1878, when he was detailed to Fort Leavenworth, where he established a depot of ordnance. There he was adjutant officer and served also as chief ordnance officer of the department of the Missouri, aid-de-camp, acting judge advocate and acting adjutant-general of the department till November, 1883, when he was ordered to San Francisco. While on duty at Leavenworth he was frequently detached and served actively during the Ute and Apache troubles. He held important positions in the service in California.

In 1886 Capt. Taylor was relieved and proceeded to Washington, D. C., where he was assigned to duty in the war department under the adjutant-general and the secretary of war, being chief secretary to the latter under the administration of President Cleveland. There he had general charge of all matters relating to the militia and from May, 1886, to 1892 he was recorder of the board of ordinance and fortification and a member of the board to test range and position finders.

During the past year Mr. Chamberlin has relinquished most of his business and has resided in retirement at Washington Avenue home. Mrs. Chamberlin has been in impaired health most of the time during the past year and a half, but is now much better and able to take care of her house without difficulty. The aged couple have no children. Mr. Chamberlin has represented Hartford in the General Assembly, and has taken an active part in the interests of the town and city. He has received numerous congratulations, today, on account of the golden wedding anniversary.

CAPT. F. M. TAYLOR.

SEPTEMBER 3, 1895.

GOLDEN WEDDING.

Franklin Chamberlin and Mrs. Chamberlin celebrated their Golden Wedding yesterday. They have been married 50 years.

Bride and groom received congratulations from friends and strangers.

Mr. Chamberlin is now city commissioner.

Capt. Daniel M. Taylor from service at the Springfield armory and transfer him to the present at Augusta, Ga. Capt. Taylor has been here since the spring of 1892 and at first was in charge of the watershops. On Capt. Blunt's departure he was assigned the milling shops, an important position. Officers at the armory come and go, and the movements of officers are not much concern the Springfield public. But Capt. Taylor's removal is a loss to the social life of the community. He is a gentleman as well as a soldier, and he has taken an interest in the life of the city. The members of his family have also been welcomed in society here and they will be missed by many of their friends. This popular officer will no doubt have occasion to remember many Springfield people pleasantly, but he will certainly not forget his "double," ex-Lieut.-Gov. Haile, for whom he has frequently been mistaken, even where Mr. Haile is so well known.

Capt. Charles W. Whipple, who is to succeed Capt. Taylor, has been attached to the office of the chief of ordnance at Washington. He is about 47 years old, is married and has several children. Capt. Whipple is a graduate of West Point in the class of '83. He entered the artillery at once and served actively until about 1873. He was on duty at the centennial exposition and won praise because of the manner in which he managed his department there. After this he was stationed at the proving ground or Sandy Hook.

The military career of Capt. Taylor began with his appointment to West Point by President Johnson as "cadet at large" July 1, 1865. He was graduated fifth in a class of 37 in 1869, and was commissioned a 2d lieutenant in the 1st artillery June 15, 1869. He served in garrison at Fort Schuyler and Fort Hamilton, and made a winter march through Dakota with a body of recruits. Afterwards he took active part in suppressing illicit distilleries in Brooklyn, N. Y., and subsequently was ordered to West Point as assistant professor of French and assistant instructor of artillery tactics. In 1870 at his own request he was ordered to the Rock Island arsenal, and remained on duty there till August 1878, when he was detailed to Fort Leavenworth, where he established a depot of ordnance. There he was adjutant officer and served also as chief ordnance officer of the department of the Missouri, aid-de-camp, acting judge advocate and acting adjutant-general of the department till November, 1883, when he was ordered to San Francisco. While on duty at Leavenworth he was frequently detached and served actively during the Ute and Apache troubles. He held important positions in the service in California.

In 1886 Capt. Taylor was relieved and proceeded to Washington, D. C., where he was assigned to duty in the war department under the adjutant-general and the secretary of war, being chief secretary to the latter under the administration of President Cleveland. There he had general charge of all matters relating to the militia and from May, 1886, to 1892 he was recorder of the board of ordinance and fortification and a member of the board to test range and position finders.

During the past year Mr. Chamberlin has relinquished most of his business and has resided in retirement at Washington Avenue home. Mrs. Chamberlin has been in impaired health most of the time during the past year and a half, but is now much better and able to take care of her house without difficulty. The aged couple have no children. Mr. Chamberlin has represented Hartford in the General Assembly, and has taken an active part in the interests of the town and city. He has received numerous congratulations, today, on account of the golden wedding anniversary.

CAPT. F. M. TAYLOR.

SEPTEMBER 3, 1895.

GOLDEN WEDDING.

Franklin Chamberlin and Mrs. Chamberlin celebrated their Golden Wedding yesterday. They have been married 50 years.

Bride and groom received congratulations from friends and strangers.

Mr. Chamberlin is now city commissioner.

Capt. Daniel M. Taylor from service at the Springfield armory and transfer him to the present at Augusta, Ga. Capt. Taylor has been here since the spring of 1892 and at first was in charge of the watershops. On Capt. Blunt's departure he was assigned the milling shops, an important position. Officers at the armory come and go, and the movements of officers are not much concern the Springfield public. But Capt. Taylor's removal is a loss to the social life of the community. He is a gentleman as well as a soldier, and he has taken an interest in the life of the city. The members of his family have also been welcomed in society here and they will be missed by many of their friends. This popular officer will no doubt have occasion to remember many Springfield people pleasantly, but he will certainly not forget his "double," ex-Lieut.-Gov. Haile, for whom he has frequently been mistaken, even where Mr. Haile is so well known.

Capt. Charles W. Whipple, who is to succeed Capt. Taylor, has been attached to the office of the chief of ordnance at Washington. He is about 47 years old, is married and has several children. Capt. Whipple is a graduate of West Point in the class of '83. He entered the artillery at once and served actively until about 1873. He was on duty at the centennial exposition and won praise because of the manner in which he managed his department there. After this he was stationed at the proving ground or Sandy Hook.

The military career of Capt. Taylor began with his appointment to West Point by President Johnson as "cadet at large" July 1, 1865. He was graduated fifth in a class of 37 in 1869, and was commissioned a 2d lieutenant in the 1st artillery June 15, 1869. He served in garrison at Fort Schuyler and Fort Hamilton, and made a winter march through Dakota with a body of recruits. Afterwards he took active part in suppressing illicit distilleries in Brooklyn, N. Y., and subsequently was ordered to West Point as assistant professor of French and assistant instructor of artillery tactics. In 1870 at his own request he was ordered to the Rock Island arsenal, and remained on duty there till August 1878, when he was detailed to Fort Leavenworth, where he established a depot of ordnance. There he was adjutant officer and served also as chief ordnance officer of the department of the Missouri, aid-de-camp, acting judge advocate and acting adjutant-general of the department till November, 1883, when he was ordered to San Francisco. While on duty at Leavenworth he was frequently detached and served actively during the Ute and Apache troubles. He held important positions in the service in California.

In 1886 Capt. Taylor was relieved and proceeded to Washington, D. C., where he was assigned to duty in the war department under the adjutant-general and the secretary of war, being chief secretary to the latter under the administration of President Cleveland. There he had general charge of all matters relating to the militia and from May, 1886, to 1892 he was recorder of the board of ordinance and fortification and a member of the board to test range and position finders.

During the past year Mr. Chamberlin has relinquished most of his business and has resided in retirement at Washington Avenue home. Mrs. Chamberlin has been in impaired health most of the time during the past year and a half, but is now much better and able to take care of her house without difficulty. The aged couple have no children. Mr. Chamberlin has represented Hartford in the General Assembly, and has taken an active part in the interests of the town and city. He has received numerous congratulations, today, on account of the golden wedding anniversary.

CAPT. F. M. TAYLOR.
BEADLE-WELLES WEDDING.

Pretty Ceremony at Roger Welles's Home in Newington.

The marriage of H. Leonard Beadle of the Society for Savings of this city, and Miss Grace Mather Welles took place at the house of the bride's father, Roger Welles, in Newington Tuesday. The Rev. Mr. Macy of the Newington Congregational Church performed the ceremony, assisted by the Rev. Edwin Stanley Welles. The house was profusely decorated with wild flowers, ferns and garden flowers. The ceremony was performed at 7 o'clock, and the bride, leaning upon the arm of her father, passed through an aisle for by white ribbons held by Miss L. Beadle, Miss Mary Welles, Miss Cora Beadle and Miss Margaret Perry, and entered upon the arm of Ham Caton of Alexandria, Va. On count of a recent death in the family of the invited guests present were: There was a display of many beau and costly presents from friends both bride and groom. The married couple left on an evening for Springfield, from which place they went to the Catskills by way of bany and the Hudson. On their return they will occupy rooms at No. 45 Fellington avenue in this city.

SEPTEMBER 4.

Fashionable Wedding in Norwich.

Miss Irene W. Colt, daughter of the Brigadier-General James Colt, was wed at Norwich to Henry Bronson Ge, postmaster at General, N. Y. On account of recent deaths in the family of the bride and the bridegroom, only intimate family friends present at the ceremony. The ushers Ralph and Archie Colt, Jan M. and Hurwood Reynolds. The bride's gown was of white India crepe. Miss Colt has the distinction of having been the first girl to try the examination for admission to College. An old Puritan precedent veils females from becoming students at the university, but she received her certificate. Miss Colt knew of this prohibition of the early college fathers who tried the examination, and did not enter become a student. Nevertheless, she wished to prove that girls are equal, capable with boys in a struggle for college honors.

SEPTEMBER 5.

Mr. and Mrs. Pliny Jewell ob their fiftieth wedding anniversary at home. No. 44 Farington av Thursday evening by giving a d to a few relatives. Their son, Ed Jewell of Boston, was present.

A delightful home wedding which many Western Massachusetts took place at Middlefield, Ct., ye afternoon, when Gertrude White daughter of Dwight C. Coe of the Holyoke college class of '91, and Leonard Sanford Thomson of New town, were married by Rev. Prentice Buckley, the Episcopal rector at the Union Congregational Church. The floral decorations of the were in white and green, and the who was given away by her father, dressed in lavender and wore a veil. The bridesmaids were her cousins from Miss Rosetta M. White and Mrs. Governor and Mrs. Everett J. Lake have issued invitations to a dance to be given on Friday evening, January 21 at the Hartford club in honor of their daughter, Miss Marjorie Sykes, who will make her debut in society. Miss Lake, who attended Miss Spence's school in New York, spent last winter in a trip around the world, having been absent from the city more than eight months. She spent most of the time in Japan, China and India, sailing from California in the fall of 1910 with a group of school friends.
Career of Farm Lad Who Became Great Football Player, Business Man and Lieutenant Governor.

Senator Lake cannot complain of unkind or inappreciative treatment at the hands of Hartford republicans. The title prefixed to his name is, in itself, conclusive as to that. For a man yet young in years and in politics, a seat in the Senate of this ancient commonwealth is high advancement—a signal attestation of favor.

What kind of return is Senator Lake making for the treatment he has received from Hartford, when he lends himself to the projects of Mr. Paige of Rockville for imposing his personal stamp on the Trust Company, and will upon Hartford republicans and demonstrating at their expense that there's a new political boss in Connecticut?

Suppose Ajax junior—college athlete, mighty of thews, swift of foot, a glory of the gridiron—should let him, if possible, take a seat in the Senate of 1905? He has been openly spoken of as the successor to Representative Henry, when that gentleman sees fit to retire. I have not the faintest idea that he will land the nomination for second place on the state ticket which makes his colleague more mysterious than ever.

Of course, the analogy tucked away in the little allegory is by no means perfect; it should not be pressed a hair's-breadth too far. But some of the old admirers of Senator Lake of Hartford are surprised, as well as sorry, to see Allen W. Paige's colors pinned on him.

Mr. Lake shall for residuum to financial or political gain, rain practically manu-
DAVIS—STERNBERG—In Grace Church, Newington, September 9th, the Rev. Jared Starr, Gustavus F. Davis of Hartford and Francesca S. Sternberg of Newington.

Gustavus F. Davis, only son of Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Davis of this city, and Miss Francesca S. Sternberg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Sternberg of Newington, were married at Grace Church, Newington, yesterday at 5 p.m. by the Rev. Jared Starr officiating. The church was beautifully decorated with ferns, flowers, and ribbon, and was crowded with friends. The bride was gowned in cream taffeta silk, with pearl trimming and lace; her train, with but one wide strip of diamond points, was the gift of the groom and carried a bouquet of roses. The maid of honor was Miss Emma L. Frances, the bridesmaid being Miss Ina V. Hartford of Elmwood and Miss Francesca M. Sternberg of West Hartford. The best man was Bernard S. Carlton of Hartford, and the ushers were Codella Brown and Robert Brown of Hartford, John C. Sternberg, jr., and Frederick W. Davis of Newington. The music rendered by Edmund Starr, organist, was especially fine. After the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride for the family. Among the guests present were: Professor S. P. Butler of New Haven, Mrs. T. F. Briggs, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Risley of East Hartford, assisted in entertaining.

The marriage of Adolph Carl Sternberg, jr., son of Professor J. C. Sternberg, and Miss Anna Grace Allen, daughter of Horace Allen, took place in the Congregational church, West Hartford, at 6 o'clock yesterday evening. The church was decorated in a unique manner with pines and great branches of foliage, the effect being exceedingly beautiful. The ceremony was performed by the pastor of the church, Rev. T. M. Hodgdon. The bridal party was very prettily arranged; the ushers, John C. Sternberg, jr., of Newington, W. Fritz Sternberg of New Haven, William S. Griswold and Harry Swift of West Hartford, were followed by the bridesmaids, Miss Isabel Louise Allen, a sister of the bride, Miss Margaret Clara Sternberg, a sister of the groom, both of whom were gowned in pink silk, and Miss Elizabeth Starr Hamilton and Miss Lilian Shepard, who were gowned in pale blue silk with lace trimmings. The maid of honor, Miss Frances Marie Sternberg, also attired in blue silk, came next, and then the bride with her brother-in-law, Dr. George F. Hutch of Thompsonville, dressed simply, in a heavy white India silk cut en train and trimmed with pearls; her veil was fastened with white rosebuds and she carried a bouquet of roses. A very anxious little page followed, bearing carefully the wedding rings on a silver tray. The groom with his best man, Ernest Hamilton Brandt of Hartford, met the party at the church. After the ceremony, a large gathering, who preceded at the organ, began Mendelssohn's wedding march, and Hamilton Hall, the page, led the way down the aisle strewing choice flowers in the path of the newly made bride. It was an unusually pretty wedding and was largely attended, many out of town friends being present. Mr. and Mrs. Sternberg left at once for a short trip. They will give an "at home" of their new location, "Sternberg Hall," on September 16th.

The marriage of Theodore B. Dickinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Dickinson of Norwood, Mass., and Miss Ina Young of Wethersfield, took place last Saturday at Grace Church, Hartford, in a very prettily arranged wedding. The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. L. Thorpe of the First Congregational Church. The beautiful Episcopal service was used, the best man being Mr. Tenmau W. Preston, father of Miss Florence Shiptman, sister of the bride; was maid of honor. The ushers were: Mr. T. Howard Seymour, Mr. T. H. T. M. Hodgdon. The bridal party was made up of the bride, groom, best man, and bridesmaids.

A pretty wedding was solemnized at 4:30 this afternoon, the contracting parties being Mr. Ernest Nathaniel Waite and Mrs. Effie Shipman Mandeville. The marriage of Adolph Carl Sternberg, jr., son of Professor J. C. Sternberg, and Miss Anna Grace Allen, daughter of Horace Allen, took place in the Congregational church, West Hartford, at 6 o'clock yesterday evening. The church was decorated in a unique manner with pines and great branches of foliage, the effect being exceedingly beautiful. The ceremony was performed by the pastor of the church, Rev. T. M. Hodgdon. The bridal party was very prettily arranged; the ushers, John C. Sternberg, jr., of Newington, W. Fritz Sternberg of New Haven, William S. Griswold and Harry Swift of West Hartford, were followed by the bridesmaids, Miss Isabel Louise Allen, a sister of the bride, Miss Margaret Clara Sternberg, a sister of the groom, both of whom were gowned in pink silk, and Miss Elizabeth Starr Hamilton and Miss Lilian Shepard, who were gowned in pale blue silk with lace trimmings. The maid of honor, Miss Frances Marie Sternberg, also attired in blue silk, came next, and then the bride with her brother-in-law, Dr. George F. Hutch of Thompsonville, dressed simply, in a heavy white India silk cut en train and trimmed with pearls; her veil was fastened with white rosebuds and she carried a bouquet of roses. A very anxious little page followed, bearing carefully the wedding rings on a silver tray. The groom with his best man, Ernest Hamilton Brandt of Hartford, met the party at the church. After the ceremony, a large gathering, who preceded at the organ, began Mendelssohn's wedding march, and Hamilton Hall, the page, led the way down the aisle strewing choice flowers in the path of the newly made bride. It was an unusually pretty wedding and was largely attended, many out of town friends being present. Mr. and Mrs. Sternberg left at once for a short trip. They will give an "at home" of their new location, "Sternberg Hall," on September 16th.
Dr. Philip D. Bunce, son of Jonathan E. Bunce, has opened an office at 35 Pratt Street. He is a graduate of the College of Physicians and Surgeons in New York City and for several years was a resident physician at St. Luke's Hospital and at the Sloane Maternity Hospital in that city.

Louis B. Wilson of this city, Yale '39, was best man at the wedding of his classmate, George Arthur Hadsell, and Miss Sara Sherwood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Platt of Poughkeepsie, at the home of the bride's parents, Wednesday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Hadsell will reside in St. Louis.

Where President Cleveland Will Visit

Miss Sadie C. Kellogg of New Haven is, with her cousin, Clara Louise Kellogg Straksosch, the guest of J. W. Doane at Pomrose farm Thompson. Mr. Doane is a multi-millionaire from Chicago, and it is at his "farm" President Cleveland is expected to stay for some time after leaving Gray Gables. Miss Kellogg writes to a friend in New Haven that the grounds are like an immense park, and in the stables there are twenty horses and driving horses. The house, verandas and the grounds are lighted with electric light. An immense piazza 240 feet in length encircles the house, and there are sixteen guests at the house. The dinners are magnificent.

Mr. Milan B. Woods, son of Major George Arthur Madsen, and well known in Pueblo, Colorado, for the past five years, returned home, Sunday evening, on a visit to his parents. He is in excellent health.

Mr. John Cotterell and wife of Dayton, Ohio, are spending a number of weeks in Hartford, being at the Allyn House. Mrs. Cotterell was the widow of Mr. Arthur Pomeroy at the time of her marriage with Mr. Cotterell and resided with the late Mr. Pomeroy in a large residence that is now occupied by William T. Savage. She has a large circle of friends in this city and in Suffield.

Mrs. Charles H. Northam left yesterday for Mount Pleasant, la., to be absent three weeks. She was accompanied by her aunt, Mrs. Susan Youngs of this city, and they go to visit Mrs. Youngs' brother, Palmer C. Tiffany, 86 years old, whom she has not seen for twenty-five years. Mr. Tiffany is a brother of the late E. D. Tiffany of this city.

"JOE" BARBOUR HOME

A Few Things That Impressed Him on His Visit to Russia.

Lawyer Joseph L. Barbour returned, Monday, from his trip to Russia, arriving in New York at 1:00 p.m., on the steamship "Trumeau." It was his seventh journey abroad, and he expresses himself, this morning, to a Times reporter, as having had a splendid time, and that he had returned home in the best of health and spirits.

Mr. Barbour spent most of his time in St. Petersburg and Moscow, and at the annual fair at Vigni Vovgorod on the River Volga, which, during the month of August, is visited by 250,000 people.
The Congregational Church, West Hartford, presented a brilliant scene last night, the occasion being the marriage of Miss Anna Grace Allen, daughter of Horace B. Allen, and Adolph Carl Sternberg, Jr., son of Representative A. C. Sternberg. At 6 o'clock the bridal march from Lohengrin was played by Organist Charles Jaggar as the bridal party entered. The bride leaned upon the arm of her brother-in-law, Dr. G. T. Finch of Thompsonville. She was dressed in white India silk trimmed with pearls, wore a bridal veil and carried a large bouquet of white roses. Immediately following was Master Hamilton Hall, a young friend of the bride, who carried a silver tray containing the wedding rings. Miss Francesca Marie Sternberg as maid of honor wore light blue silk. The accompanying bridesmaids were Miss Mabel Louise Allen, a sister of the bride, dressed in light pink silk; Miss Margaret Clara Sternberg, a sister of the groom, in light pink silk; Miss Elizabeth Starr Hamilton and Miss Lillian E. Shepard in light blue silk. Each bridesmaid wore ribbons tastefully fastened at the shoulder.

Ernest Hamilton Brandt of Hartford acted as best man. The Rev. T. M. Hodgdon performed the ceremony, the Episcopal service being used and the bride being given away by her brother, Dr. Finch. At the close of the impressive service, the familiar strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march sounded from the organ as the newly wedded pair passed down the aisle, Master Hall strewing flowers in advance of the procession. The ushers were W. Fritz Sternberg of New Haven, John C. Sternberg, Jr., of Newington, William S. Griswold and Harry G. Swift of West Hartford. The young couple took the 7:10 train for New York. The Hudson River will be included in the bridal tour. A great number of presents was received, including a banquet lamp, several etchings, numerous articles in silver and cut glass. The bride is a well-known West Hartford girl, who has many friends. The groom is a graduate of Storrs College, a successful fruit culturist, recently appointed upon the state commission for peach inspection. Among the guests present were: Mrs. G. T. Finch and Martin and George Finch of Thompsonville, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Haskell of Enfield, Mass., Miss Emma Stafford of Gardner, Mass., Mr. and Mrs. Justus Traut and Mr. and Mrs. George Traut of New Britain, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Allen of Enfield, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Sternberg and Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Starr of Newington, Mrs. Charles King, Miss Emma King, Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Davis, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Wander, Mrs. William Wander, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Wander, Mr. and Mrs. R. Hakewell, Mrs. Agnes Boissier, Mr. and Mrs. H. Davis, Miss Louise Haas and L. R. Haas of Hartford, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Allen and Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Truitt.
A BIG BERKSHIRE CEREMONY

HALE HOLDEN WEDS MISS WESTON,

Brilliant Gathering at the Home of Ex-Lient-Gov Weston at Dalton.

Dalton saw a very pretty wedding last evening at 6:30 when Miss Ellen Mitchell, daughter of ex-Lient-Gov and Mrs Byron Weston, was married to Hale Holden of Kansas City. The ceremony was performed at Grace Episcopal church and was followed by a large reception at Westombale, the residence of the bride's parents.

The bride is one of the most prominent and attractive young women in the society set of central Berkshire, and she has a host of friends at home and abroad. Mr. Holden is a graduate of Williams, class of '86, and also a graduate of the law school. He is a member of a leading law firm of Kansas City and enjoys an extensive and highly lucrative practice. Their friends joined in contributing to their happiness and Grace church, which is a rare of a structure, was very finely decorated and decorated. It was a pink and white wedding and pink and white brides and flowers were to be seen everywhere. The windows and chancel were banked with oak boughs, which the recent frosts had set aglow with tint. Garlands of smilax swept from pew to pew and down the many aisles, and the pew posts were crowned with wreaths of pink and white sweet peas. The altar rail was a mass of pink and white carnations and the pulpit was hung with garlands of pink and white dahlias. Candelebra with many brilliant jets were here and there and the lights and all made a very pretty spectacle.

The members of the wedding party were the maid of honor, Miss Agnes J. Currie of Baltimore; the bridesmaids, Miss Bertha L. Weston, Miss Louise and Caroline Weston, sisters of the bride; Miss Croft Thompson of Hartford, Miss Olive Barker of Pittsfield, and Miss Hopkins of Worcester; best man, Willard M. Holden of Kansas City, brother of the groom; the ushers, C. C. Nott and Dr. Vanderpoel Adriance of New York, Erastus Hopkins of Worcester, McGregor Jenkins of Boston, E. Harris Brewer of this city, and Franklin Weston, brother of the bride. The bride was accompanied by her father, who gave her away.

Organist Way of Pittsfield gave an impromptu recital while the guests gathered and the strain of the local Leventritt church gave the signal at 6:30. The little door to the vestry-room opened, and the maid marched down the aisle to meet the bride at the main entrance. The ushers parted as they advanced and a moment later the procession took up the steps to the altar. First came the ushers, then the maid of honor, followed by the bridesmaids, and then the bride, leaning on the arm of her father and looking straight up the aisle to the groom. The groom then took his place at the altar and exchanged rings. The priest then pronounced the couple to be man and wife, and the party left the church, keeping time to Mendelssohn's wedding march.

The bride wore a beautiful gown of ivory satin, en train, with high neck and trimmed with duchess lace. Her only ornament was a diamond and pearl crescent, the gift of the groom. The maid of honor and bridesmaids wore white dresses of brocaded taffeta silk, trimmed with gold-plaited tulle, with butterfly knots on their sleeves.
The Rev. Wodcott Webster Ellsworth, a son of Dr. P. W. Ellsworth and Miss Leah Louise von Wettberg, and Miss Leila Morgan, daughter of the late Edward von Wettberg, were married in ChristChurch at noon to-day. The Rev. L. C. D. Stirling assisted at the ceremony, and the Rev. E. D. F. Miel. Miss von Wettberg wore a handsome gown of white satin covered with a crape, and trimmed with Duchess lace. Miss Clara von Wettberg, a sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and she wore a becoming gown of chintz. The two bridesmaids—the Misses Edith T. and Alice G. Ellsworth, sisters of the groom—were at the ceremony, and others for decoration.

The wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's mother, No. 446 Park Avenue, and was attended by the immediate friends of the newlyweds. After the ceremony, the bride and groom left for Berlin, September 19, and will reside in Unionville, where Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth have a home.

Silver Wedding Celebrated.

The silver wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Francis E. Bliss of this city was celebrated at the Prospect House on Mt. Holyoke, Saturday. The marriage of the couple took place twenty-five years ago. The visitors were met by mountain wagons at Mt. Tom station and conveyed to the foot of Mt. Holyoke, and thence to the summit by the mountain railway. At 2 o'clock, while the orchestra played the wedding march, the host and hostess descended the main stair-case. They were preceded by their two sons, F. E. Jr., and E. F., who acted as ushers, and were followed by others of the immediate family and a chain of honor. After a promenade through the corridor they received their friends in the drawing room. They were assisted in receiving by Mrs. Elisha Bliss, mother of the bride, and Mrs. J. W. French, mother of Mrs. Bliss. Mrs. Bliss wore a handsome gown of white silk, with trimmings of pearls and embroidered chiffon, and carried a bouquet of white roses. The guests were presented by the hostess, Mrs. Bliss.

ON Mt. HOLYOKE SUMMIT.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis E. Bliss celebrate their silver wedding.

A large party of Hartford people went to the Prospect House at the summit of Mt. Holyoke Saturday to attend the reception held there by Mr. and Mrs. Francis E. Bliss of this city in celebration of their silver wedding. Mt. Holyoke was formerly the home of Mr. Bliss, and many of the guests at the reception Saturday were present also at the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Bliss, which took place in the same house twenty-five years ago. In addition to the large party from this city there were guests from Worcester, Northampton, Holyoke and Florence. Elaborate arrangements had been made to accommodate all corners and those who were fortunate enough to attend this novel festival above the clouds will long remember it as an occasion of unusual interest and pleasure.
The Reed Place.
Mr. Grover W. Curtis of Charles R. Hart & Co., has purchased the estate of R. P. Reed, the residence built and occupied by Mr. Reed, late manager of the Adams Express Company of this city. It is situated on the main road to Windsor and is one of the finest places in that town. It contains twenty-nine acres of land and is well stocked with choice fruit trees.

Mr. Curtis will thoroughly renovate the house, barn and grounds, and it will be ready for occupancy in the early fall.

OCTOBER 2, 1895.

Off for Their Windsor Home.
Mr. and Mrs. "Grove" Curtis are moving into their new residence in Windsor, and within a few days will be in full enjoyment of their pretty country place. The house has been thoroughly overhauled and beautified within and without in touch with the tastes of its future occupants. It is situated about four miles from the city, but the trolley brings it near enough to business and social enjoyment. The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis will wish them prosperity and many happy days in their new home.

Lynn-Martin Nuptials.
New Hartford, Oct. 2. Miss Martin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Martin, and Dean Lyman were married by the Rev. Dr. Harwood at Trinity Church at 6 o'clock to-night. The groom graduated from Yale in '94. Harry Lyman, '92, of Omaha, a brother of the groom, was the ushers were, Tom Arbutnott, '94, J. Warwick Price, '94, Augustus Kouritz, '91, S. James E. Brown, '93, James E. Wheeler, '92, and A. N. C. Tice. Miss Quimby of Lakeport was maid of honor. The six bridesmaids were Miss Ethel Morrison and Miss Harriet McKnight of Middletown; Miss Grace Taft of Whitingville, Mass.; Miss Edith Ney of Hartford, Miss Carrie Ludlow and Miss Charlotte Ludlow of Syracuse.

The Bliss-Hatch Wedding.

Celebrated at North Church Last Evening.
There was a wedding at North church last evening when Miss Abbie Louise Hatch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence W. Hatch, and J. Elliot Bliss were united by Rev. F. Barrows Makepeace, with whom both had co-operated for many years in church work. The ceremony came at 8 o'clock, when the bridal party made its way to the altar. It was composed of the ushers, H. L. Gaylord, Homer L. Hatch, a brother of the bride, and Frank E. Edwards, all of the Henry Wood of New Britain, and the bridesmaids, Misses Bliss of Middletown, Miss E. B. Winsted of Springfield, Miss M. R. Root of East Greenfield, Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Root of Clarendon, Misses Newcomb, Miss H. F. A. Husted of Hartford, Miss L. A. P. Porter of New Britain, Miss E. E. MeNnacht of Morris, Miss L. E. Root of New Haven, and Miss E. M. Taylor of Boston, Misses Newcomb, Miss H. F. A. Husted of Hartford, Miss L. A. P. Porter of New Britain, Miss E. E. MeNnacht of Morris, Miss L. E. Root of New Haven, and Miss E. M. Taylor of Boston.

The McKnight-Taylor Wedding.

Begathering of Springfield Society at the Residence of Mr. & Mrs. McKnight.
Springfield society had an opportunity to look upon a pretty or more elaborate wedding reception than that which followed the marriage of Miss Lillian James McKnight, the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. McKnight, and George Wood Taylor at the beautiful home of the McKnights on Worthington street yesterday afternoon. There have been few prettier homes in the city, and nearly everybody was privileged to be present at the ceremony, which was performed by Rev. Dr. S. G. Buckingham at 1:30 o'clock. The wedding service was held in a front parlor, which was made beautiful by apartments torn suspended from the ceiling and nearly completely hiding it. And then in every corner and about the windows were palm trees, with which many other rooms of the house were also decorated. In the bridal party the maid of honor was Miss Mary E. Reynolds of East Orange, N. J., who wore green muslin de pour, and the bridesmaids, Miss Mildred Candice of Brookline and Miss Ruth M. Hawley of Brattleboro, Vt., both of whom wore white organdy gowns with green trimmings and carriages. The ushers were, the best man was J. Allen Taylor of Boston, a brother of the groom, Henry E. Woods and W. Lawrence Taylor of Boston and Henry Knox of New York.

The reception which followed was from 3 until 5 o'clock and nearly 500 people, who nearly taxed the capacity of the large parlors and hall, were present. The guests were presented by the ushers to the bride and groom, who stood in the room in which they were married. Those present included members of the old families of the city, while many were present from out of town. Among the guests were greatly in the majority. At the left of the house a large tent had been erected in which refreshments were served. By this arrangement everything passed off smoothly. Bar had charge of the catering. The Philharmonic orchestra, stationed on the piazza, played throughout the reception. Among those present were Candice of Brookline, Mr. and Mrs. David H. James of New York, Herbert Woods, Arthur Henry Taylor of Boston, Frank E. Edwards and Frederick Merrill of Morristown, N. J. Miss Ella Breck of Greenfield, Mr. and Mrs. Newton Hawley, Mrs. Newell and Mrs. W. Taylor left last night for a wedding trip, in what direction only three or four people know and they were pledged to secrecy. They will be at home after January 1 at their new home at the corner of Clarionton street and Dartmouth terrace, Mr. Taylor having permanently settled in Springfield to follow his profession as a house designer.
SOCIETY WEDDING IN STOCKBRIDGE.

The sweetest wedding that Stockbridge has seen for some time took place at St. Paul's Episcopal Church yesterday, the principals being Miss Katherine de Pollone and H. H. Pease of New York. The bride was dressed in a clinging gown of white satin with a veil of gold lace, held in place by a spray of gold in her hair, a gold and diamond tiara on her head, and diamond bracelets on her hands. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. John W. Brown of New-York, and later a civil ceremony was performed at the house by Selectman F. S. Aymar, as the bride and groom were non-residents. The breakfast came immediately after the ceremony at "Bonny View," the country home of Miss Yard, on the bank of the brook, and was served by Mrs. Yard, who had discussed music on the lawn during the breakfast. There was a large attendance both at the marriage and breakfast, and many prominent people from New York and throughout the county were present. The church was beautifully decorated by friends of the bride and groom.

One of that of Mr. Clark's. October 5 (Special to the Pall Mall."

The walls and ceiling of the structure were decorated with the richest decorations of the church and house and the decorations of the church were particularly splendid in the decorations of the church and house. The walls and ceiling were elaborately draped and decorated with Japanese paper and floral designs. The floors were of polished marble, and the great grotto of corn was husked by the young people to whom Mr. and Mrs. Pease had invited. Shortly after 11 o'clock the guests began to arrive, and soon the great barn resounded with the bridal songs of the married couple. How the pretty girls blushed when their beaux took advantage of their luck in finding red ears. The "bee" was given in honor of Misses Nina and Marguerette Goodwin, cousins of the family, and was attended by Misses Nina de Pollone, second Augustus L. Brown, of New-York; her father was the late Count De Pollone, of Turin. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. John W. Brown, of New-York, and the bride was given away by her uncle, John Yard, of New-York. The maid of honor was Miss Emily L. Hill, cousin of the bride, and the bridesmaids were Misses Helen L. Maynard, Lena P. Hayward, Edna G. Storm and Mary I. Hayes, all of New-York. The ushers were Grenville Winthrop, Lloyd McKim, Garrison B. Buell, Hollister W. N. Duane, Walter E. Maynard and Henry E. Loney. They are all local talent. After several hundred bushels of corn had been husked a dinner collation was served by Delmonico. Among the bridal gifts was silver service from Mrs. D. S. Grant, spoons from Col. and Mrs. Pease, and silver bottles from Mrs. Algernon Sartoris, who was too ill to be present at the wedding.

Stockbridge, Mass., Oct. 5 (Special to the Pall Mall."

The "HUSKING BEE" AT FARMINGTON.

An Enjoyable Occasion at S. C. Colt's

October 6, 1895.

"A veritable bower of beauty," was the exclamation of nearly everybody, Thursday evening, when they entered the capacious barn of S. C. Colt, or Mr. Colt's extensive estate on Hartford Avenue, in the historic old town of Farmington. The interior of the structure was elaborately draped and decorated with Japanese paper and floral designs. On the floor of the barn was a great pile of corn to be husked by the young people to whom Mr. and Mrs. Colt had extended invitations. Shortly after 8 o'clock the guests began to arrive, and soon the barn resounded with their hilarious fun. How the pretty girls blushed when their beaux took advantage of their luck in finding red ears. After several hundred bushels of corn had been husked a fine collation was served by the hostess. Then, without food and with music by local talent, the party indulged in dancing until long past morning. About seventy young people present from Hartford, New Britain, Uninville, West Hartford, Bloomfield, Elmswood, Newington and Farmington. Mrs. Perkins of California, who is visiting Mrs. Cat, assisted her in receiving. The "bee" was given in honor of Misses Nina and Marguerette Goodwin, cousins of the family. The bride's mother, Mrs. U. S. Colt, Grant, and her mother, Mrs. Dent, have resided in Washington. The wedding was celebrated at the residence of their intimate friends, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Raymond, No. 203 West Seventy-third street.

MISS MARIE RAYMOND—On Wednesday, Oct. 5, at the home of the bride, No. 15 East Thirty-fourth street, by Dr. D. Parker Morgan, D.D., rector of the Church of the Holy Name, officiating. The best man was Mr. Henry Grant, and the ushers were Messrs. William Bergh, J. B. Dewnap, G. G. Dewnap, and Lieut. L. M. Dewnap. At the house of the bride's father, No. 15 East Thirty-fourth street, the R. W. C. A. met at 3 o'clock, and the wedding was celebrated at St. James' Church, West Hartford.

The marriage of Miss Bettie Bain Dent, daughter of the late Louis Dent, Mrs. Ulysses S. Grant's youngest brother, to Lieutenant Garrish Smith took place at noon yesterday. The bride is a daughter of the late Louis Dent, youngest brother of Mrs. Ulysses S. Grant, and she and her mother, Mrs. Dent, have resided in Washington.

The wedding was celebrated at the residence of their intimate friends, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Raymond, No. 203 West Seventy-third street.

HUSBAND & WIFE—On Wednesday, Oct. 5, at the residence of their intimate friends, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Raymond, No. 203 West Seventy-third street, by Dr. D. Parker Morgan, D.D., rector of the Church of the Holy Name, officiating. The best man was Mr. Henry Grant, and the ushers were Messrs. William Bergh, J. B. Dewnap, G. G. Dewnap, and Lieut. L. M. Dewnap. At the house of the bride's father, No. 15 East Thirty-fourth street, the R. W. C. A. met at 3 o'clock, and the wedding was celebrated at St. James' Church, West Hartford.
Iried white roses. The church "we.% hand-were invided. The house was PrebtilY daughter of Mrs. Fidelia Rockwell, and ceremony a reception was •lisid at the son'ely decorated wIleh palms and eenta, N. Y., was meld of honor. Ber-Arson :a and Theodore Powell. The over AVRACil fell a bridal veil fastened by charge of the decorations. After the lilies of she valley. The maid of honor was dressed in white chiffon and ca•- the bridesmaids. The bride wore es/elite 511k mull cut en train, was served for several years on the town women. The wedding journey will include places of interest as far north as Mon- tro=a1  and  will occupy about two weeks. I extensive scale. He is also a practical of 'West Hartford, their friends being elaborate reception at the Coifing resimany others. A great number of beautiful gifts were The ceremony was followed by an elaborate reception at the Coffing residence. The bride and groom are among the most popular of the young people of West Hartford. Their friends being only limited by the extent of their acquaintance, which includes many in this city and other places. Mr. Beach is a graduate of Amherst Agricultural College and is a scientific farmer on an extent scale. He is also a practical surveyor and civil engineer and has served for several years on the town school committee and board of selectmen. The wedding journey will include places of interest as far north as Montreal and will occupy about two weeks.
PAGE—ROCKWELL—In Bristol, October
5, DeWitt Page and Miss May Belle Rockwell. There was a brilliant wedding at the Prospect Methodist Church last evening at 6:30 o'clock. The contracting parties were Miss May Belle Rockwell, daughter of Mrs. Pidelia Rockwell, and DeWitt Page. There were about 800 present. The service was very impressive. The Rev. C. H. Buck of-ofiliated. Professor Hosmer presided at the organ. Miss Edith Blend of On-entia, N. Y., was maid of honor. Ber-and A. Page, brother of the groom, was best man. The ushers were Robert Coddray, Dr. W. A. Damon, Ralph E.
Page of Hartford, Edward Richardson of Watertown, Benjamin Louis of America, and Theodore Powell.
The bride wore white silk muslin cote d'arm, over which she wore a veil fastened by a pearl brooch, a silt of the groom.
She carried a bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley. The maid of honor wore a train of white chiffon and carried white roses. The church was handsomeley decorated with palms and potted plants. Terry & Peck had charge of the decorations. After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of A. F. Rockwell, to which only the relatives and a few intimate friends were invited. The house was bril decorated.
The catering was by Rosa
Hay A. F. Rockwell.

TWO WEDDINGS YESTERDAY.
Frank P. Reynolds and Miss Nellie
Carey married in church.
Frank P. Reynolds and Miss Nellie
S. Carey were married at the South
Baptist Church last evening at 6 o'clock by the Rev. Frank Dixon, assisted by the Rev. George M. Stone. The church was comfortably filled with friends of the couple to witness the ceremony.
Miss Grace Hudgins of New York was maid of honor, and Miss Eliza Ayer and Miss Alice Williams of this city were bridesmaids. Mr. Reynolds, of this city, was best man and the other ushers were Charles R. Burnham, Wilbur
R. Barrett, Philip E. Peck, Harry Reyolds and Frank Gill of this city and J. Benjamin Cabb of New York. The bride wore a suit of white satin with train, and trimmed with point de vall. The shorts and the maid of honor wore white and carried bouquets.
The bride entered the church leaning upon the arm of her father and they were preceded by the maid of honor, the bridesmaids and the ushers.
S. Camp was at the organ and while the party was on the way to the pulpit where it was met by the groom and best man, the bridal chorus from "The Rose Maiden" was played. As the parently the church the wedding march from "Holengrin" was rendered. Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds have gone for a wedding trip and on their return they will live in this city.
Smith-Getty.

Eben E. Smith, treasurer of the National Life Association, and Miss Mary
P. Gillette, daughter of Mrs. Cornelia
H. Gillette, were married at 30 o'clock last evening at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. James R. Lepley, No. 820
Farmington avenue. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Joseph H.
Twichel, Herbert H. Smith, son of S. A.
Johnsboro, Vt., was the best man.
From 1 to 10 o'clock there was a reception at the house. The rooms and grounds were elaborately decorated and musicians were kept busy playing on the verandas.
There was music during the hours of the reception, which was attended by a large number of guests. Mrs. Smith will board on High street.

Miss Clara L. Buncell was married yesterday to J. Russell Watkinson, a printer at R. L. Peck & Co.'s. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. W.
Bradley.

WATKINSON-BUNCELL.
Marriage of Allison R. Wells and Miss Annie Hubbard Thrall.

The Congregational Church was the scene of one of the prettiest marriage ceremonies last evening that has been seen in Windsor for some time. The contracting parties were Allison R. Wells and Miss Annie Hubbard Thrall of Suffield. Five o'clock was announced as the hour of the ceremony, but long before that a good number of invited guests and friends had arrived. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Roxoee Nelson, a ring being used. The church was prettily decorated with WELLS-SESSIONS.

A Wethersfield Man Takes a Bristol Bride.

(Special to The Courant.)

Bristol, Oct. 9.

One of the prettiest weddings ever seen in Bristol was that this noon at the home of Mrs. Ellen Sessions on High street, when her daughter, Miss Ellen W. Sessions, was married to Stephen M. Wells, jr., of Wethersfield. About one hundred guests were present, including only the family and most intimate friends of the bride and groom. The drawing room, reception rooms and conservatory of Terry If Peek, furnished by Severn's orchestra of Hartford added much to the enjoyment of the occasion and to the effectiveness of the marriage service. Soon after 12 o'clock the strains of the Lohengrin wedding march were heard and the bridal party advanced to the bay window of the drawing room, which had been tastefully decorated with ferns and flowers. The groom was attended by his brother, Dudley Wells. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Ida Sessions, who acted as maid of honor, and by her mother, Mrs. Sessions, who gave her away. The Rev. Thomas M. Miles officiated, using the entire Episcopal service, the orchestra rendering soft strains of Lohengrin music throughout the ceremony. The bride was beautifully dressed in white satin cut en train and trimmed with yellow silk with yellow chiffon and also yellow satin duchesse, and carried a bouquet of yellow roses. Following the marriage, a little time was spent in congratulations and good wishes, after which a very dainty wedding breakfast was served by Caterer Besse of Hartford. The wedding presents were numerous, handsome, and costly. Among these was a check for $1,000 from S. W. Sessions of Cleveland, O., uncle of the bride. Among the out-of-town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Sessions of Cleveland, O.; Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Wells of Wethersfield, Mr. and Mrs. William T. Wells of Hartford, Miss Virginia Wells of Hartford, Miss Emily Wells of Holyoke, Mass.; Miss Sarah Wells of Boston, Miss Annie Wells of Bridge-water; Jonathan Barnes of Springfield, Dr. Louise Brigham of Hartford, Mrs. Romartha Wells of Chicago, Mrs. Mary D. Griggs of Watertown, Van Deen Redfield of Watertown, Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Wells of Wethersfield, James Wells of Wethersfield, Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Castle of Harwinton and Mr. and Mrs. Homer Redfield of Hartford. About 2 o'clock the happy pair left for lands unknown, with the compliments of the groomsman and bridesmaid.
OCTOBER 18, 1895.

A DAY OF AUTUMN WEDDINGS.

THE CARTER-GOODWIN NUPHTALS.

Attended a Large Company to Indian Orchard—Many Other Ceremonies in the City and Vicinity.

Indian Orchard was the scene of an elaborate wedding last night, when, with music, colored lights, and a beautiful display of flowers, Miss Nina Noble Goodwin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Goodwin, and Edwin Albert Carter, cashier of the City national bank of this city, were married. Both parties have a wide acquaintance in social circles, and the Episcopal church, where the ceremony was performed, was crowded with relatives and invited guests of the bride and groom. The bridal party of many persons showed brightly against the lovely grounds of the Goodwin home, and in the hour of the wedding the white form of the large banqueting tent looked up from the ground like a giant chateau. At 7.45, the time of the wedding, the guests began to arrive by train and by street car. Before 6 o'clock the orchestra began to play and the church was 60% filled. The ushers were sent out from this city, and began to fill seats, and proved absolutely necessary. The occasion was excellently arranged, recaptured, recollected, was attractive to the eye and many bright flowers decorated the church, while the cross hung beautiful clusters of flowers were also sewed in a beret over the gallery hanging rods. At the end of each pew were white cosmos and white carnations. The window curtains were white satin ribbed.

Wheeler H. Hall played the wedding march on the organ, party entered. The ushers, Edward T. Warren and Henry E. Smith of this city and Charles H. Goodwin of Indian Orchard marched down the right aisle to the door and formed the right line, while the left line was thrown open. The bride, followed by her father, then turned to the altar in reverse order, proceeded down the left aisle to the door, formed the left line of the church, and finally, with the right hand of the organist, while the cross rod overhead were hung branches of the myrtle vine. The windows were hidden by masses of the same vine and over the front of the gallery hung festoons of green vines. Bunches of white satin and clusters of white carnations and white cosmos were fastened at the end of each pew.

As Wheeler H. Hall played the wedding march from Lehengrin the ushers, Edward T. Warren and Henry E. Smith of this city, and cousin of Miss Nina Noble Goodwin, were sent out from this city. Mrs. Thomas H. Hall, Henry H. Bosworth and Charles Beals of Westfield, marched down the right aisle to the chapel door and formed the right line, while the cross rods overhead were hung branches of the myrtle vine. The windows were hidden by masses of the same vine and over the front of the gallery hung festoons of green vines. Bunches of white satin and clusters of white carnations and white cosmos were fastened at the end of each pew.

As Wheeler H. Hall played the wedding march from Lehengrin the ushers, Edward T. Warren and Henry E. Smith of this city, and cousin of Miss Nina Noble Goodwin, were sent out from this city. Mrs. Thomas H. Hall, Henry H. Bosworth and Charles Beals of Westfield, marched down the right aisle to the chapel door and formed the right line, while the cross rods overhead were hung branches of the myrtle vine. The windows were hidden by masses of the same vine and over the front of the gallery hung festoons of green vines. Bunches of white satin and clusters of white carnations and white cosmos were fastened at the end of each pew.

James Hodgkins of New York was best man, and the ushers, with the help of the organist, were given father following the Episcopal church of Miss Helen W. Hall, Edward T. Warren and Henry E. Smith of this city and Charles H. Goodwin of Indian Orchard, was the scene of an elaborate wedding last night, when, with music, colored lights, and a beautiful display of flowers, Miss Nina Noble Goodwin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Goodwin, and Edwin Albert Carter, cashier of the City national bank of this city, were married. Both parties have a wide acquaintance in social circles, and the Episcopal church, where the ceremony was performed, was crowded with relatives and invited guests of the bride and groom. The bridal party of many persons showed brightly against the lovely grounds of the Goodwin home, and in the hour of the wedding the white form of the large banqueting tent looked up from the ground like a giant chateau. At 7.45, the time of the wedding, the guests began to arrive by train and by street car. Before 6 o'clock the orchestra began to play and the church was 60% filled. The ushers were sent out from this city, and began to fill seats, and proved absolutely necessary. The occasion was excellently arranged, recaptured, recollected, was attractive to the eye and many bright flowers decorated the church, while the cross hung beautiful clusters of flowers were also sewed in a beret over the gallery hanging rods. At the end of each pew were white cosmos and white carnations. The window curtains were white satin ribbed.

Wheeler H. Hall played the wedding march on the organ, party entered. The ushers, Edward T. Warren and Henry E. Smith of this city and Charles H. Goodwin of Indian Orchard marched down the right aisle to the door and formed the right line, while the left line was thrown open. The bride, followed by her father, then turned to the altar in reverse order, proceeded down the left aisle to the door, formed the left line of the church, and finally, with the right hand of the organist, while the cross rod overhead were hung branches of the myrtle vine. The windows were hidden by masses of the same vine and over the front of the gallery hung festoons of green vines. Bunches of white satin and clusters of white carnations and white cosmos were fastened at the end of each pew.

As Wheeler H. Hall played the wedding march from Lehengrin the ushers, Edward T. Warren and Henry E. Smith of this city, and cousin of Miss Nina Noble Goodwin, were sent out from this city. Mrs. Thomas H. Hall, Henry H. Bosworth and Charles Beals of Westfield, marched down the right aisle to the chapel door and formed the right line, while the cross rods overhead were hung branches of the myrtle vine. The windows were hidden by masses of the same vine and over the front of the gallery hung festoons of green vines. Bunches of white satin and clusters of white carnations and white cosmos were fastened at the end of each pew.

As Wheeler H. Hall played the wedding march from Lehengrin the ushers, Edward T. Warren and Henry E. Smith of this city, and cousin of Miss Nina Noble Goodwin, were sent out from this city. Mrs. Thomas H. Hall, Henry H. Bosworth and Charles Beals of Westfield, marched down the right aisle to the chapel door and formed the right line, while the cross rods overhead were hung branches of the myrtle vine. The windows were hidden by masses of the same vine and over the front of the gallery hung festoons of green vines. Bunches of white satin and clusters of white carnations and white cosmos were fastened at the end of each pew.

As Wheeler H. Hall played the wedding march from Lehengrin the ushers, Edward T. Warren and Henry E. Smith of this city, and cousin of Miss Nina Noble Goodwin, were sent out from this city. Mrs. Thomas H. Hall, Henry H. Bosworth and Charles Beals of Westfield, marched down the right aisle to the chapel door and formed the right line, while the cross rods overhead were hung branches of the myrtle vine. The windows were hidden by masses of the same vine and over the front of the gallery hung festoons of green vines. Bunches of white satin and clusters of white carnations and white cosmos were fastened at the end of each pew.

As Wheeler H. Hall played the wedding march from Lehengrin the ushers, Edward T. Warren and Henry E. Smith of this city, and cousin of Miss Nina Noble Goodwin, were sent out from this city. Mrs. Thomas H. Hall, Henry H. Bosworth and Charles Beals of Westfield, marched down the right aisle to the chapel door and formed the right line, while the cross rods overhead were hung branches of the myrtle vine. The windows were hidden by masses of the same vine and over the front of the gallery hung festoons of green vines. Bunches of white satin and clusters of white carnations and white cosmos were fastened at the end of each pew.

As Wheeler H. Hall played the wedding march from Lehengrin the ushers, Edward T. Warren and Henry E. Smith of this city, and cousin of Miss Nina Noble Goodwin, were sent out from this city. Mrs. Thomas H. Hall, Henry H. Bosworth and Charles Beals of Westfield, marched down the right aisle to the chapel door and formed the right line, while the cross rods overhead were hung branches of the myrtle vine. The windows were hidden by masses of the same vine and over the front of the gallery hung festoons of green vines. Bunches of white satin and clusters of white carnations and white cosmos were fastened at the end of each pew.

As Wheeler H. Hall played the wedding march from Lehengrin the ushers, Edward T. Warren and Henry E. Smith of this city, and cousin of Miss Nina Noble Goodwin, were sent out from this city. Mrs. Thomas H. Hall, Henry H. Bosworth and Charles Beals of Westfield, marched down the right aisle to the chapel door and formed the right line, while the cross rods overhead were hung branches of the myrtle vine. The windows were hidden by masses of the same vine and over the front of the gallery hung festoons of green vines. Bunches of white satin and clusters of white carnations and white cosmos were fastened at the end of each pew.

As Wheeler H. Hall played the wedding march from Lehengrin the ushers, Edward T. Warren and Henry E. Smith of this city, and cousin of Miss Nina Noble Goodwin, were sent out from this city. Mrs. Thomas H. Hall, Henry H. Bosworth and Charles Beals of Westfield, marched down the right aisle to the chapel door and formed the right line, while the cross rods overhead were hung branches of the myrtle vine. The windows were hidden by masses of the same vine and over the front of the gallery hung festoons of green vines. Bunches of white satin and clusters of white carnations and white cosmos were fastened at the end of each pew.

As Wheeler H. Hall played the wedding march from Lehengrin the ushers, Edward T. Warren and Henry E. Smith of this city, and cousin of Miss Nina Noble Goodwin, were sent out from this city. Mrs. Thomas H. Hall, Henry H. Bosworth and Charles Beals of Westfield, marched down the right aisle to the chapel door and formed the right line, while the cross rods overhead were hung branches of the myrtle vine. The windows were hidden by masses of the same vine and over the front of the gallery hung festoons of green vines. Bunches of white satin and clusters of white carnations and white cosmos were fastened at the end of each pew.
Miss Mary Augusta Brady and Condr Robert Mallory Berry, United States navy, were celebrated yesterday noon at St. Paul's church, Detroit, Mich. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Bruder B. Bouch of New York city and Rev. Rufus W. Clark, rector of the church. Lieut. Winslow, United States navy, was the groomsmen and Miss Elwood of Detroit, the maid of honor.

THE JOHNSON-BETTS WEDDING.

The marriage of Miss Frances Johnston Betts and Miss Emma Johnston Betts in Grace church, New York city, Tuesday, has an interest for Massachusetts people. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George P. Betts and Mrs. Johnson in the son of Samuel Johnson of Boston. The church at Grace church was flanked with palms and white roses, and on the altar were two golden vases filled with large clusters of American beauty roses. In the absence of Rev. Dr. William R. Huntington the ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Henry B. Corwall of Newberg on Hudson, and was fully closed. The bride, who carried a bouquet of white orchids tied with white satin ribbon, wore a gown of white satin, with skirt having flounces of point lace. The corsage was cut high and the booke was draped with quantities of point. The veil, also of point, was secured to the hat by a diamond pin.

A very delightful tea was given by Mrs. George B. Holbrook, Mrs. Robert Pay, Mrs. H. H. Bo Newell, Mrs. J. Charles A. Nichols Mrs. Luke Corcoran who assisted were Glover, Miss Hol Miss White, Miss M Miss Pauline Day tion was the presence of husbands invited grace the occasion.

A very delightful tea was given by Mrs. George B. Holbrook, Mrs. Robert Pay, Mrs. H. H. Bo Newell, Mrs. J. Charles A. Nichols Mrs. Luke Corcoran who assisted were Glover, Miss Hol Miss White, Miss M Miss Pauline Day tion was the presence of husbands invited grace the occasion.

The marriage of Miss Mary Augusta Brady and Condr Robert Mallory Berry, United States navy, was celebrated yesterday noon at St. Paul's church, Detroit, Mich. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Bruder B. Bouch of New York city and Rev. Rufus W. Clark, rector of the church. Lieut. Winslow, United States navy, was the groomsmen and Miss Elwood of Detroit, the maid of honor.

The marriage of Miss Mary Augusta Brady and Condr Robert Mallory Berry, United States navy, was celebrated yesterday noon at St. Paul's church, Detroit, Mich. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Bruder B. Bouch of New York city and Rev. Rufus W. Clark, rector of the church. Lieut. Winslow, United States navy, was the groomsmen and Miss Elwood of Detroit, the maid of honor.

A Remarkable Young Man.

OCTOBER 12, 1895.

THE WORK OF FRED H. LEY.

The marriage of Miss Mary Augusta Brady and Condr Robert Mallory Berry, United States navy, was celebrated yesterday noon at St. Paul's church, Detroit, Mich. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Bruder B. Bouch of New York city and Rev. Rufus W. Clark, rector of the church. Lieut. Winslow, United States navy, was the groomsmen and Miss Elwood of Detroit, the maid of honor.

THE WORK OF FRED H. LEY.

His Successful Career as a Civil Engineer and Contractor—A Record Seldom Duplicated.

HIE YOUNG man of to-day it is often said never gets a start until he reaches 30, but now and then we find a splendid exception to the rule and we see a young man scarcely of age assuming the responsibilities which make gray even older heads. It is indeed seldom that we find a young man to-day who at the age of 23 years has accomplished enough to make it worth while to record his achievements, but such a man is Fred H. Ley, a young man whom Springfield already has reason to be proud of. His work in surveying and engineering has attracted wide attention and his success as a contractor, bidding against old and established engineering firms, has been nothing short of remarkable.

Fred H. Ley received his education in the Springfield schools, entering the high school with the class of '88. But he did not remain to graduate in 1887 and entering the office of the city engineer, where he remained for several years. While here he made his first bid for a contract, but as he was yet a minor, he had to enter the bid in his father's name. It was a $20,000 contract for building the Rowland avenue sewer's bid was $300 lower than that of his nearest competitor. But, the very fact of the lowness of his bid and his extreme youth caused the prospectors to fear that he had bid lower than was practicable, and rather than see him get swamped, rejected the bid on the plea that he was then in the employ of the city. This fact would not, however, have prevented him from carrying out the contract, he had been assured by the city officers. But using this as an excuse his bid was rejected and the contract awarded to his nearest competitor. And when completed it proved that it would have been a remunerative job even at the bid made by Mr Ley.

When the Springfield street railway decided to introduce the electric cars here to replace the old horse cars in 1889, Mr Ley, under the direction of the city engineer, did all of the surveying, first on the Forest park line, which was the first branch equipped, and after on all the other lines throughout the city. In 1893, having left the city engineer's office, he was awarded the contract for constructing a sewer system for Plymouth. This was his first independent contract, and was a large and difficult one, including as he did the construction of a culvert 1+ mile out into the harbor. But after four months of hard work and constant worry the contract was successfully completed. He still made his headquarters at the city engineer's office, but his work was chiefly for real estate men and others in the city.

He next completed an extensive survey of nearly all the lands of the Indian Orchard land company. In the autumn of 1894 he undertook and successfully completed in about three months, the contract for building the electric road from Manchester to Hartford, Ct. In connection with this road the city of Hartford carried out the development of a large park, known as Lancer park, and which is at Hartford what Forest park is to our own city. This rendered necessary the construction of a bridge, which Mr Ley also built. The Manchester people were speaking of an extension of their road, lately, paid Mr Ley a high compliment for his work, and said that they considered their road the best equipped of any in the country. In the spring of 1895 he built the electric road from New Britain to Berlin, Ct, comprising four miles of track and occupying about two months.

Mr Ley has just completed with great success a $75,000 contract for constructing eight miles of road in Bristol, Ct. This has been, so far, his most important contract, and it is a source of no little satisfaction to know that it has been so successfully completed. Mr Ley provided all the material and did all the grading, spending about $30,000 in grading, bridges, etc.

This was the signal for the departure of the bridal party and as the notes of the organ issued from the instrument the song “How lovely” issued from the organ and as the notes of the organ issued from the organ the song “How lovely” issued from the organ.

The bridal party, consisting of the bride and her father in long and successful careers: and the Whittingtons and choice greenhouse blossoms, arrived at the church and as a remembrance there was a crush of carriage's that policemen and livery men restrained with great difficulty. The wedding breakfast was served at the house of the bride and groom and as a result there was a crush of carriages that policemen and livery men restrained with great difficulty. The wedding breakfast was served at the house of the bride and groom and as a result there was a crush of carriages that policemen and livery men restrained with great difficulty. The wedding breakfast was served at the house of the bride and groom and as a result there was a crush of carriages that policemen and livery men restrained with great difficulty. The wedding breakfast was served at the house of the bride and groom and as a result there was a crush of carriages that policemen and livery men restrained with great difficulty. The wedding breakfast was served at the house of the bride and groom and as a result there was a crush of carriages that policemen and livery men restrained with great difficulty. The wedding breakfast was served at the house of the bride and groom and as a result there was a crush of carriages that policemen and livery men restrained with great difficulty. The wedding breakfast was served at the house of the bride and groom and as a result there was a crush of carriages that policemen and livery men restrained with great difficulty.
The usual Episcopal ceremony was divided, the betrothal taking place at the chancel rail where the bride was met by the groom, the bearer, his brother, Har- old Howard of Chicage, and Rev Mr Bul- laryne, rector of St Peter's, who officiated. This solemn contract was made with no accompanying music or soft notes from the organ accompanied the recital of the service at the altar. There the usual cer- emony was performed, the only change in- troduced being a blessing by the priest before the use as an emblem of matrim- ony. The bride and groom knelt to re- ceive the mutual blessing and the ceremony was over. The marriage out of the church was led by the flower girls, who prophesied happiness by scattering yellow rose petals for the young pair to walk upon. Next came Harold Howard escorting the maids of honor, and the ushers followed. The bride, according to the pretty custom pre- vailing in England, rode to and from the church in the family coach, and missed the crowds of white flowers, while ten- der vines were trailed over mirrors, mantels and stair rails. Dr and Mrs Bradt, the guardian mother, Mrs William 0. Breck, relatives of the bride, were seated. "Msia was beautifully dressed with gold sleeve bintons, and tho tair or was A dining hall had been added to the house by a tent on the lawn, opening from the piazza. The verandas were also floored, yellow bunting within, both on the house walls and lining canvas throwing a soft light on the gay scene. The tent decorations were yellow, while scores of hoops heavy with ammonia folicieide the platform cir- cular each supporting post. An orchestra played in the library as the guests were re- ceived at the front parlors. The decorations in the parlors were received in the front parlors. The rooms were decorated with green and flowers, while ten- der vines were trailed over mirrors, mantels and chairs. An orchestra played in the library as the guests were received in the front parlors. The rooms were decorated with green and flowers, while ten- der vines were trailed over mirrors, mantels and chairs. An orchestra played in the library as the guests were received in the front parlors. The rooms were decorated with green and flowers, while ten- der vines were trailed over mirrors, mantels and chairs. An orchestra played in the library as the guests were received in the front parlors. The rooms were decorated with green and flowers, while ten- der vines were trailed over mirrors, mantels and chairs. An orchestra played in the library as the guests were received in the front parlors. The rooms were decorated with green and flowers, while ten- der vines were trailed over mirrors, mantels and chairs. An orchestra played in the library as the guests were received in the front parlors. The rooms were decorated with green and flowers, while ten- der vines were trailed over mirrors, mantels and chairs. An orchestra played in the library as the guests were received in the front parlors. The rooms were decorated with green and flowers, while ten- der vines were trailed over mirrors, mantels and chairs. An orchestra played in the library as the guests were received in the front parlors. The rooms were decorated with green and flowers, while ten- der vines were trailed over mirrors, mantels and chairs. An orchestra played in the library as the guests were received in the front parlors. The rooms were decorated with green and flowers, while ten- der vines were trailed over mirrors, mantels and chairs. An orchestra played in the library as the guests were received in the front parlors. The rooms were decorated with green and flowers, while ten- der vines were trailed over mirrors, mantels and chairs. An orchestra played in the library as the guests were received in the front parlors. The rooms were decorated with green and flowers, while ten- der vines were trailed over mirrors, mantels and chairs. An orchestra played in the library as the guests were received in the front parlors. The rooms were decorated with green and flowers, while ten- der vines were trailed over mirrors, mantels and chairs. An orchestra played in the library as the guests were received in the front parlors. The rooms were decorated with green and flowers, while ten- der vines were trailed over mirrors, mantels and chairs. An orchestra played in the library as the guests were received in the front parlors. The rooms were decorated with green and flowers, while ten- tender vines were trailed over mirrors, mantels and chairs. An orchestra played in the library as the guests were received in the front parlors. The rooms were decorated with green and flowers, while ten- tender vines were trailed over mirrors, mantels and chairs. An orchestra played in the library as the guests were received in the front parlors. The rooms were decorated with green and flowers, while ten- tender vines were trailed over mirrors, mantels and chairs. An orchestra played in the library as the guests were received in the front parlors. The rooms were decorated with green and flowers, while ten- tender vines were trailed over mirrors, mantels and chairs. An orchestra played in the library as the guests were received in the front parlors. The rooms were decorated with green and flowers, while ten- tender vines were trailed over mirrors, mantels and chairs. An orchestra played in the library as the guests were received in the front parlors. The rooms were decorated with green and flowers, while ten- tender vines were trailed over mirrors, mantels and chairs. An orchestra played in the library as the guests were received in the front parlors. The rooms were decorated with green and flowers, while ten- tender vines were trailed over mirrors, mantels and chairs. An orchestra played in the library as the guests were received in the front parlors. The rooms were decorated with green and flowers, while ten- tender vines were trailed over mirrors, mantels and chairs. An orchestra played in the library as the guests were received in the front parlors. The rooms were decorated with green and flowers, while ten- tender vines were trailed over mirrors, mantels and chairs. An orchestra played in the library as the guests were received in the front parlors. The rooms were decorated with green and flowers, while ten- tender vines were trailed over mirrors, mantels and chairs. An orchestra played in the library as the guests were received in the front parlors. The rooms were decorated with green and flowers, while ten- tender vines were trailed over mirrors, mantels and chairs. An orchestra played in the library as the guests were received in the front parlors. The rooms were decorated with green and flowers, while ten- tender vines were trailed over mirrors, mantels and chairs. An orchestra played in the library as the guests were received in the front parlors. The rooms were decorated with green and flowers, while ten- tender vines were trailed over mirrors, mantels and chairs. An orchestra played in the library as the guests were received in the front parlors. The rooms were decorated with green and flowers, while ten- tender vines were trailed over mirrors, mantels and chairs. An orchestra played in the library as the guests were received in the front parlors. The rooms were decorated with green and flowers, while ten- tender vines were trailed over mirrors, mantels and chairs. An orchestra played in the library as the guests were received in the front parlors. The rooms were decorated with green and flowers, while tend ten-

A Remarkable Affair Reported From New Milford.

Dr. W. L. Staub, of New Milford, son of ex-State Comptroller Nicholas Staub, and Miss Sarah J. Mallett, daughter of Samuel Mallett, of the firm of Mallett & Hatch of Bridgewater, were the principal witnesses at the home of the bride in New Milford on Thursday last, when the marriage ceremony was performed with due formality.

The couple were married yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock, and the wedding party proceeded at once from the residence of the bride's father, Mr. Dr. Staub, to the Hotel Granville, where they remained until the arrival of the train.

The bride's gown was of white cotton, and she carried a bouquet of white carnations. The best man was George H. Condon of Bridgeport, who has been a close friend of the bridegroom.

The wedding guests included Mrs. E. Smith, Miss Gertrude C. Smith, E. C. Kellogg, clerk of the House of Representatives, and many others.

The wedding dinner was a simple one, consisting of cold meat, vegetables, and fruit. The couple then proceeded to their hotel room, where they remained until the train arrived.

They left for New York on the 2:24 train, and arrived at their destination at 4:15. They will remain in New York for a few days, and then proceed to their home in Bridgeport.

The couple will reside in Bridgeport, where they have a fine house and garden.

The wedding is reported to have been a success, and the couple are expected to return to New Milford in a few weeks.
WEDDING AT THOMPSONVILLE.

Pretty Nuptials at the Home of Henry Abbe—William E. Whitney the Groom.

The home of Henry Abbe on Enfield street in Thompsonville presented a pleasing appearance last evening, the occasion being the marriage of Mrs Abbe's granddaughter, Miss Mary Elizabeth Pryor, to William Hiram Whitney. There was a large response to the invitations sent out and the spacious rooms were well filled with friends of the bride and groom. The decorations were very pretty. The wedding arch consisted of autumn leaves, roses and other flowers. The ceremony was performed beneath an arch of silk and white roses in the center of which a white dove was placed. The usherers were Robert T. Root of Greenwich, C. and Charles H. Brown of Brooklyn, N. Y. Rev. O. W. Means of the Enfield Congregational church officiated. The wedding march was played by Arthur L. Brown of Brooklyn, a personal friend of the groom. The bridal party entered the parlor from the hall and passed through an aisle of flowers. The ribbons were held by Miss Edith G. Whitney, sister of the groom, and Miss Julia P. Allen of Hartford. Both were dressed in white.

FIFTY FIFTH AVRUE, NEW YORK,

Mr. Searle will make their home on Ashley street, Hartford. Mr. Searle is in the employ of the Connecticut mutual life insurance company.

GILBERT'S DRAWINGS.

DECEMBER 1903.

Gave birth to.

Delta, Ohio.

Mrs. Collins, of Boston, is spending a few days, with her mother, Mrs. S., and Miss Amy Barbour of Beacon street.

She is a native of Hartford, her father, the Rev. Dr. Searle, having been some forty years old, pastor of the South Baptist church of this city. He

C. Allan Gilbert is now to be seen at the Knickerbocker Trust building, 55th Avenue, New York, and will be worth seeing. Mr. Gilbert is a native of Hartford, and his success in this line of work may be judged from the article printed below. It is from the pen of Mr. J. B. Carrington, one of the editors of Scribner's Monthly.

The successful illustrator of to-day is Gilbert, whose work has shown especial interest expressed in some individual and very personal way, and who is also usually running a half a foot or two for a certain brilliancy for this sort of treatment and appreciation of beauty dash, fifteen for its own sake. To draw well is, of course, essential, for he must deal with running by many people, and shall have been equal to depicting the human face and figure. It is no little distinction to have established a reputation for creating types of feminine beauty, faces that embody the ideals of feminine loveliness at the same time expresses char-
Quiet Home Affair Attended by Many Friends and Relatives.

A very pretty home wedding occurred this afternoon at 4 o'clock, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles De Forest, No. 19 Babcock street. Their daughter, Miss Florence May De Forest, was married to Mr. Frank Reed Hills. The wedding was largely attended by relatives and friends. The house was prettily decorated with palms and cut flowers. The bridal party entered to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, rendered by an orchestra. The bride was given away by her father, and was attired in ivory satin, trimmed with duchess lace and orange blossoms. She carried bridal roses. The maid of honor was Miss Emma Gilbert of Chester, Conn. Little Miss Hills, a niece of the groom, acted as flower girl. Mr. J. P. Hills, brother of the groom, was best man, and Howard S. Hunt and Albert R. McKinney were ushers. The reception will be held from 5 to 7 o'clock.

A New House, Built.

The Hills-D'Ore Forest Wedding.

Mr. Dominick F. Burns and Miss Harriet A. Harrison were married this morning at 8 o'clock in St. Peter's church. A nuptial mass was said by the pastor, the Rev. Thomas W. Broderick, who performed the ceremony. Mr. John Hughes was groomsman and Mrs. Mary Harrison, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid. The bride was dressed in a blue-gray traveling dress and carried a prayer book. The dress of the bridal maid was rose color, trimmed with velvet. A wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's mother, No. 84 Capitol Avenue, where the happy couple received the congratulations of their friends. Mr. and Mrs. Burns left on the 11:38 train for a wedding trip to Montreal, Canada. On their return they will take up their residence at No. 64 Lawrence street, in a new house which Mr. Burns has just built.

THE HILLS-D'OFOREST WEDDING.

Quiet Wedding at Alderman Wieder's House Yesterday.

Henry W. Seide, a clerk at W. E. Baker & Son's insurance agency, and Miss Ida Goldstein, sister of Mrs. Mortiz Wieder, were married at Alderman and Mrs. Mortiz Wieder's house, No. 25 Morgan street, at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon by the Rev. Dr. Elkin. The wedding was a private one on account of the recent death of the bride's father and most of the invitations were recalled. The best men were M. Wieder and B. Seide, father of the groom. The maid of honor was Miss Ettie Wieder. The bride's father's ring, a diamond pin, gift of Amos F. Eno, and was worn on her lapel. The ceremony took place at 4 o'clock, the bridal party took train for an extended tour.

The house in which the ceremony took place has been the abiding place of six generations of the well-known family of Eno, and was built in 1754. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. E. P. Tuller of Lawrence, Mass., cousin of the bride. The bride, Miss Frances A. Eno, daughter of Mrs. Elizur Hart Eno of Simsbury, was given away by her father, Mr. C. H. Eno, and was a pleasant home affair. The decorations were elaborate and the contracting parties were united under a bower of running pine and laurel branches, the whole relieved and brightened by full-blown roses.

The bride's dress was of heavy white satin trimmed with duchess lace. She wore a diamond pendant, the gift of Amos F. Eno. The present all the marriage were Mr. Amos R. Eno, Mrs. C. B. Wood, Mrs. J. W. Pinchot, the Misses Florence and Mary Eno, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Welch, Mr. P. Welch, all of New York City; the Rev. Herbert Welch and wife and the Rev. J. O. Wilson and wife of Brooklyn, Mrs. S. L. Bennett and wife of President N. J.; Mrs. Eleanor Welch of Sea Warren, N. J.; W. A. Welch of Middletown, Mrs. E. Humphrey of Hamilton, Mrs. and Mr. G. W. Tuller, Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Erving, Mrs. W. J. Tuller, all of Hartford; Mr. and Mrs. Evelyn Eno, Mr. Chester Eno, Mr. Lewis Eno and wife, Mr. R. B. Eno, Miss Mary C. Eno, Mr. Aaron Eno and wife, Misses Jane and Sarah Eno, Mr. and Mrs. G. G. Goodrich, Miss Juliette Goodrich, the Rev. C. E. Stowe and wife, all of Simsbury; Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Eno of Wilkesbarre, Penn.; Mr. and Mrs. Palmer Campbell of Hoboken, N. J.

The presents were of a costly character and consisted of solid silver offerings of every description, pictures and delicate fancy-work in variety, and such other articles as denote a wishing of happiness to the bride and groom.

Cards of invitation have been issued by Captain and Mrs. Charles A. Stillman, formerly of this city, to the marriage of their daughter Harriet to Harry Cadwallader Raynes at Winchester, Mass. The ceremony will take place Wednesday evening, October 23. Captain Stillman was the second captain of the Hartford on the Great Western Sound, which was appointed a lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps and retired with the rank of captain several years ago.

Charles E. Schroeder, clerk at Schroeder's confectionery store and Mrs. Bertha M. Strelau were married by the Rev. Hugo B. Erdmann, the German Protestant minister, in a tastefully decorated home in Wethersfield.

In Simsbury, Oct. 23, at the residence of Mr. C. H. Eno, enq. by the Rev. E. P. Tuller of Lawrence, Mass., Mr. Peter A. Welch of New York and Miss Frances A. Eno of Simsbury. At Simsbury this afternoon occurred the marriage of Mr. Peter Ambrose Welch of New York City and Miss Frances Eno of Simsbury, sister of Mr. C. H. Eno. Only the immediate relatives of the family were invited. After the ceremony, which took place at 4 o'clock, the bridal party took train for an extended tour. The house in which the ceremony took place has been the abiding place of six generations of the well-known family of Eno, and was built in 1754. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. E. P. Tuller of Lawrence, Mass., cousin of the bride. The bride, Miss Frances A. Eno, daughter of Mrs. Elizur Hart Eno of Simsbury, was given away by her father, Mr. C. H. Eno, and was a pleasant home affair. The decorations were elaborate and the contracting parties were united under a bower of running pine and laurel branches, the whole relieved and brightened by full-blown roses.

The bride's dress was of heavy white satin trimmed with duchess lace. She wore a diamond pendant, the gift of Amos F. Eno. The present all the marriage were Mr. Amos R. Eno, Mrs. C. B. Wood, Mrs. J. W. Pinchot, the Misses Florence and Mary Eno, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Welch, Mr. P. Welch, all of New York City; the Rev. Herbert Welch and wife and the Rev. J. O. Wilson and wife of Brooklyn, Mrs. S. L. Bennett and wife of President N. J.; Mrs. Eleanor Welch of Sea Warren, N. J.; W. A. Welch of Middletown, Mrs. E. Humphrey of Hamilton, Mrs. and Mr. G. W. Tuller, Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Erving, Mrs. W. J. Tuller, all of Hartford; Mr. and Mrs. Evelyn Eno, Mr. Chester Eno, Mr. Lewis Eno and wife, Mr. R. B. Eno, Miss Mary C. Eno, Mr. Aaron Eno and wife, Misses Jane and Sarah Eno, Mr. and Mrs. G. G. Goodrich, Miss Juliette Goodrich, the Rev. C. E. Stowe and wife, all of Simsbury; Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Eno of Wilkesbarre, Penn.; Mr. and Mrs. Palmer Campbell of Hoboken, N. J.

The presents were of a costly character and consisted of solid silver offerings of every description, pictures and delicate fancy-work in variety, and such other articles as denote a wishing of happiness to the bride and groom.

Cards of invitation have been issued by Captain and Mrs. Charles A. Stillman, formerly of this city, to the marriage of their daughter Harriet to Harry Cadwallader Raynes at Winchester, Mass. The ceremony will take place Wednesday evening, October 23. Captain Stillman was the second captain of the Hartford on the Great Western Sound, which was appointed a lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps and retired with the rank of captain several years ago.
The Williams-Rhodes Wedding.

The marriage of Mr. Edward C. Williams and Miss Louise Rhodes took place this afternoon at 4 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, No. 4 Barricaid street. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. E. C. Atchison, rector of Trinity church, Middletown, and was witnessed by the personal friends and relatives of the contracting parties. The rooms were tastefully decorated with green and cut flowers, which added much to the interest of the pleasant occasion. The best man was Mr. G. E. Rhodes, brother of the bride, and the bridesmaids were Miss Louise Johnson and Miss Idi Beckman of Middletown. Mr. and Mrs. Williams left on an evening train for the West, and will be away for two weeks. On their return they will reside at No. 4 Barricaid street, and will have "at home" to their friends after November 1. The young couple were generally remembered by their friends.

Noyes-Armstrong.

Judge Walter C. Noyes of the court of common pleas of New London county was married at New London this afternoon to Miss Harriet E. Brainard, only daughter of Dr. H. M. Brainard, formerly of the New London bar. Mrs. William Glidewell of New York, who formerly resided in this city, was present at the twenty-fifth Second Congregational wedding anniversary of former Judge Noyes, which took place Friday evening at his home in Old Lyme. A dance was held after the celebration. Mrs. Glidewell was the guest of honor of the evening.

Colonel Samuel P. Colt.

Colonel Colt was informed fully in regard to his removal to the Colt residence at Bristol, know of all the correspondence between Mrs. Colt and Van Alen and never attributed anything of a criminal nature to any of it until he was informed that Mrs. Colt had become cognizant of the proceedings at Jackson Falls, in consequence of which her self-respect would not permit her to live longer with him. Then, and not until then, it was said, did Colonel Colt see anything of a criminal nature in the relations between his wife and the man from whom he had received courtesies and to whom he had extended attentions even after he had been made acquainted with all that had transpired between Mr. Van Alen and Mrs. Colt.

In relation to the coaching incident following the dinner at Stonington, it is stated that Mr. Van Alen, instead of driving to Newport, as was his expressed intention, drove to the Colt mansion and remained there over night, while Colonel Colt was away. Mrs. Colt's friends said that Mr. Van Alen was at the Colt mansion the night before, and when Colonel Colt returned from Cape Cod, he was informed that Mr. Van Alen had been unable to get to Newport as intended, and that he had remained at the Colt mansion over night. So far from attributing anything wrong in the case, it was said, Colonel Colt continued to count Mr. Van Alen among his intimate friends, and accepted and extended courtesies from and to him as before.

The facts in relation to the demand of Mrs. Colt for a separation were said to be that she had merely asked that Colonel Colt consider the matter. She had said that she could not consent to live with him after the Jackson Falls affair, and had taken her request for a separation Colonel Samuel P. Colt lives in what is probably the handsomest house in Bristol County.

It is a big, four-story, white-painted, structure, with four immense columns reaching to the roof in front, and is surmounted by a bold, cupola-shaped roof, which terminates at one end in a round turret and at the other in a big square conservatory. The house stands back from the main street, from which it is separated by a large and trim square lawn. A wide stone sidewalk bordered with flowers leads directly through a gateway of maple and azaleas to the main entrance, up to a big, square, Colonial door of solid wood, upon which is an oval silver plate bearing the name of the house, "Bristol Point." The quaint windows of the house remain as they were seventy or more years ago, when the house was built. They are made up of tiny squares surrounding a large center pane, and reach clear down to the veranda front.

The veranda is part of the main house, called, as it is, the "American Arms Company." The father of Colonel Samuel P. Colt was Christopher Colt, a brother of Colonel Samuel Colt, founder of the Colt Arms Company of this city. He was also a director of the Rhode Island National Bank, and had charge of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad, then the Industrial building, where he has an office, as its chief legal adviser and president.

The building Colonel and Mrs. Colt may gaze upon, opposite the Colt homestead, and this building Colonel and Mrs. Colt may gaze at daily, for, as has been said, they both are living yet in the Colt mansion.

TOGETHER, YET DIVIDED.

Notwithstanding this apparent union, they are really just as much separated as though Mrs. Colt was in Greenland and Colonel Colt in Central Asia. While sleeping under the same roof, they occupy different parts of the mansion. They have done for many months.

By common consent, Mrs. Colt occupies one wing of the house and Colonel Colt the other. The family servants consist of three maids, a cook, a butler and a coachman. The servants wait on their master or mistress as usual, and Colonel Colt goes out of the house and over to his two barns early each morning, and later takes the early morning train to Providence, over the Warren and Bristol branch of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad, to its Industrial building, where he has an office, as its chief legal adviser and president.

Colonel Colt usually returns to his home at 6 o'clock in the evening, unless he passes the night in Providence.

MRS. COLT'S DAILY PURSUITS.

Mrs. Colt also makes no effort to shunt herself away from public gaze. She is a very pretty woman, with deep brown eyes and hair and a clear, pinky complexion. She has a habit of drawing her hair back from her forehead and folding it, much as Mrs. Cleveland wears hers.

Mrs. Colt is an expert bicycle rider, and ever since her trouble has been seen wheeling about country roads dressed in a neat bicycle costume of gray cloth, with leggings and a knot behind, much as Mrs. Cleveland wears hers.

Colonel Samuel P. Colt has, upon the recommendation of a member of the Democratic national committee, secured the consent of Samuel R. Honey, who, as a member of Colonel Colt's family, has done for many months. By common consent, Mrs. Colt occupies one wing of the house and Colonel Colt the other. The family servants consist of three maids, a cook, a butler and a coachman. The servants wait on their master or mistress as usual, and Colonel Colt goes out of the house and over to his two barns early each morning, and later takes the early morning train to Providence, over the Warren and Bristol branch of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad, to its Industrial building, where he has an office, as its chief legal adviser and president. Colonel Colt usually returns to his home at 6 o'clock in the evening, unless he passes the night in Providence.

MRS. COLT'S DAILY PURSUITS.

Mrs. Colt's Daily Pursuits.

Mrs. Colt, who is the name of the woman set up in Mrs. Colt's application for a divorce. Mrs. Colt is very well known at Bristol. She is about 26 years of age, tall, and has blue eyes and blue hair. Through the Barlows, the well-known New Engl...
A Gathering of Friends.

An interesting fact in connection with this New York visit of the lawyers is that other persons who are in the case were already in the metropolis. It was early yesterday afternoon that Colonel Colt started for New York. Ex-Senator Nelson W. Aldrich, who has long been an intimate friend of the Colt family, took a later train, and Mr. James Tillinghast, one of Colonel Colt's attorneys, took an early train.

Owing to the fact that so many prominent persons had gone to New York, Providence society people had difficulty in expressing the opinion that an attempt is to be made to effect a settlement on neutral ground.

No Settlement Possible.

Mr. Francis Colwell, Colonel Colt's prior attorney, was seen, however, and was denied that there was any possibility at the parties in the two suits would come to an amicable adjustment. During the interview Mr. Colwell took occasion to say at the report that Mrs. Samuel P. Colt had only demanded the sum of $500 a month, without foundation.

He said that Mrs. Colt went to Colonel Colt's office, in the Industrial Trust Company's building, less than a month ago, and asked for $30,000. This was a personal favor, he said. About two weeks later Mrs. Colt again appeared at the office and informed the colonel that she had decided that it would be impossible for her to live with him any longer.

Mrs. Colt's Demands.

Mr. Colwell refused to say just how much Mrs. Colt demanded, but said that it was far in excess of the sum that has been mentioned by Mrs. Colt's attorneys. Mr. Colwell said that Colonel Colt's attorneys had never given him the first story that had been given to the press. He said that Colonel Colt had been very anxious to keep the secret of his doings, and he believed that he had been unwise in bringing any proceedings until Mrs. Colt had taken the first step.

Advances and Refusals.

Mrs. Colt informed her husband that if he would consent to the proposed agreement she would consent to live in the same house with him as husband and wife. Colonel Colt refused to agree to the proposition, and a few days later Mrs. Colt's attorneys called upon him. The second attorney, was seen, however, and gave the colonel until the next noon to prepare an answer. Colonel Colt, however, took the decisive step without hesitation by refusing to state anything to do with such a proposition.

The information that was given out by Colonel Colt's mother has been a matter of regret to the attorneys in the case. They state that the elder Mrs. Colt has an inexplicable dislike for her daughter-in-law, and that Mr. Colwell's reason has colluded her stories about her.

THE COLT CASE WITHDRAWN.

No Effect on Mrs. Colt in the Suit Against Van Alen.

Providence, R. I., December 11.—The Colt case was withdrawn from the court this morning when Attorney Ripley, attorney for Mrs. Colt, appeared before Judge Stines of the Superior Court and moved for the dismissal of the petition for divorce. In seconding the motion, Mr. Colwell, attorney for Mrs. Colt, read a letter from his client in which she said that, despite the statements of some newspapers, his suit against Van Alen did not reflect upon Mrs. Colt's conduct in any way. The motion for discontinuance was then granted. The attorney for Mrs. Colt in the case said the affair was now all over, and there was nothing more to say.
CHARLES T. WELLS DEAD.

Son of the Discoverer of Anaesthesia—

In this city, June 8, 1909, Charles T. Wells, aged 69 years, Funeral services at his late residence, No. 17 Spring street, Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Son of the Discoverer of Anaesthesia—

In Hartford, April 25, 1839, Dr. Horace Wells, aged 69 years, from a few years of age. He was a son of a discoverer of anaesthesia, and his life was spent in the work of his profession.

IN MEMORY OF DR. WELLS.

A bronze wreath, designed for the tomb of the discoverer of anaesthesia, is to be placed on the monument.

Charles T. Wells, who had lived in Hartford his entire life, died at his home, No. 17 Spring street, Tuesday evening, after being ill for the past year and a half. He was a son of the discoverer of anaesthesia, and has been a resident of this city for 69 years.

Son of the Discoverer of Anaesthesia—

Dr. Horace Wells was born in Hartford, Conn., in 1816, and was educated in the public schools of this city and at an early age entered the employment of the Aetna Fire Insurance company, with which he remained until his retirement from active business life.

Bronze Wreath, Gift of Spanish Odontologic Society,

On March 10, 1897, Mr. Wells was elected mayor of the city, and held this office until a few years ago. He was also a deacon of the church and held this office at the time of his death.

IN MEMORY OF DR. WELLS.

Mr. Wells was a lover and collector of rare books and pictures and had a valuable collection of both. He was modest in disposition and shunned publicity, and though his friends had easy access to his collections, he always avoided any exploiting of his books or paintings. The Athenaeum and the state library have received from him gifts of documents of great value and interest.

The father of James L. Freeborn, formerly of this city, died in the New York Hospital on Wednesday night aged 83 years.

The tablet sent to this country by the Odontological society of Spain as a tribute to the memory of Dr. Horace Wells of Hartford reached Mayor Hooker's office this morning. It was designed for the monument to be erected in the city.

THE DARTFORD TIMES, THURSDAY, APRIL 15, 1897.

Bronze Wreath, Gift of Spanish Odontologic Society, to Be Placed on Monument.

A bronze wreath, designed for the tomb of the discoverer of anaesthesia, is to be placed on the monument to Dr. Horace Wells, the discoverer of anaesthesia, and in honor of his memory, Mayor Hooker's office yesterday received information of this gift from Ramon Pina y Millet, Spanish minister to the United States, who wrote the mayor as follows:

Legacion de Espana, Washington, D.C., 14th April, 1897.

Honorable Mayor of the City of Hartford, Conn.

R. L. DITTY MILLER

Minister of Spain

The wreath was sent to this country by the Odontological society of Spain as a tribute to the memory of Dr. Horace Wells of Hartford, and arrived in the city on Saturday. It is designed for the monument to be erected in the city.

The tablet sent to this country by the Odontological society of Spain as a tribute to the memory of Dr. Horace Wells of Hartford reached Mayor Hooker's office this morning. It was designed for the monument to be erected in the city.

The tablet sent to this country by the Odontological society of Spain as a tribute to the memory of Dr. Horace Wells of Hartford reached Mayor Hooker's office this morning. It was designed for the monument to be erected in the city.

The tablet sent to this country by the Odontological society of Spain as a tribute to the memory of Dr. Horace Wells of Hartford reached Mayor Hooker's office this morning. It was designed for the monument to be erected in the city.

The tablet sent to this country by the Odontological society of Spain as a tribute to the memory of Dr. Horace Wells of Hartford reached Mayor Hooker's office this morning. It was designed for the monument to be erected in the city.
The Colt-Van Alen Case in the Courts.

The case between Mr. Samuel P. Colt, Jr., and Mrs. Elizabeth M. Colt, has been set for trial in the courts of Providence, R. I., on October 22.

The court, which was due to be held at the same time as the trial of the divorce case, is to be presided over by Justice H. S. Peck, who is also a member of the court, and who is known to be a friend of Mr. Samuel P. Colt, Jr., and Mrs. Elizabeth M. Colt.

The case has been set for trial in the courts of Providence, R. I., on October 22.

The court, which was due to be held at the same time as the trial of the divorce case, is to be presided over by Justice H. S. Peck, who is also a member of the court, and who is known to be a friend of Mr. Samuel P. Colt, Jr., and Mrs. Elizabeth M. Colt.

The case has been set for trial in the courts of Providence, R. I., on October 22.

The court, which was due to be held at the same time as the trial of the divorce case, is to be presided over by Justice H. S. Peck, who is also a member of the court, and who is known to be a friend of Mr. Samuel P. Colt, Jr., and Mrs. Elizabeth M. Colt.

The case has been set for trial in the courts of Providence, R. I., on October 22.

The court, which was due to be held at the same time as the trial of the divorce case, is to be presided over by Justice H. S. Peck, who is also a member of the court, and who is known to be a friend of Mr. Samuel P. Colt, Jr., and Mrs. Elizabeth M. Colt.

The case has been set for trial in the courts of Providence, R. I., on October 22.

The court, which was due to be held at the same time as the trial of the divorce case, is to be presided over by Justice H. S. Peck, who is also a member of the court, and who is known to be a friend of Mr. Samuel P. Colt, Jr., and Mrs. Elizabeth M. Colt.

The case has been set for trial in the courts of Providence, R. I., on October 22.

The court, which was due to be held at the same time as the trial of the divorce case, is to be presided over by Justice H. S. Peck, who is also a member of the court, and who is known to be a friend of Mr. Samuel P. Colt, Jr., and Mrs. Elizabeth M. Colt.

The case has been set for trial in the courts of Providence, R. I., on October 22.

The court, which was due to be held at the same time as the trial of the divorce case, is to be presided over by Justice H. S. Peck, who is also a member of the court, and who is known to be a friend of Mr. Samuel P. Colt, Jr., and Mrs. Elizabeth M. Colt.

The case has been set for trial in the courts of Providence, R. I., on October 22.

The court, which was due to be held at the same time as the trial of the divorce case, is to be presided over by Justice H. S. Peck, who is also a member of the court, and who is known to be a friend of Mr. Samuel P. Colt, Jr., and Mrs. Elizabeth M. Colt.

The case has been set for trial in the courts of Providence, R. I., on October 22.

The court, which was due to be held at the same time as the trial of the divorce case, is to be presided over by Justice H. S. Peck, who is also a member of the court, and who is known to be a friend of Mr. Samuel P. Colt, Jr., and Mrs. Elizabeth M. Colt.

The case has been set for trial in the courts of Providence, R. I., on October 22.

The court, which was due to be held at the same time as the trial of the divorce case, is to be presided over by Justice H. S. Peck, who is also a member of the court, and who is known to be a friend of Mr. Samuel P. Colt, Jr., and Mrs. Elizabeth M. Colt.
COL. COLT DEAD
AT HOME IN R. I.,
AGED 69 YEARS

J. S. Rubber Company Board
Chairman Succumbs to Recent Paralytic Stroke — Attainments in Legal and Other Fields Prior to Giving His Attention to Industry.

KNOWN TO HARTFORD
INTERESTS AND VISITS

Providence, R. I., August 13.—Colonel Samuel P. Colt, chairman of the board of the United States Rubber company, died at his Bristol home at 1:10 this afternoon, his death following a severe paralytic shock which he suffered a week ago yesterday.

Colonel Colt was 89 years of age. He had been ill after a nervous debility since June, when he came here from his camp at Mt. Katahdin, Me.

OCTOBER 14, 1909.
COL. COLT'S HOMECOMING.

Colonel Samuel Pomeroy Colt, who is a captain of industry in general and executive head of the United States Rubber company in particular, is recognized as the first citizen of Bristol,
R. I. He likes Bristol; Bristol likes him. For two years Colonel Colt has been away on a difficult task—the task of restoring his shattered health. He has forced the malady to declare a truce.

Tuesday evening Colonel Colt returned to Bristol, and the welcome which he found awaiting him must have warmed the cockles of his heart.
The whole community turned out to meet him. Decoration of buildings, ilumination of streets, discharge of works, a big parade and speaking-taking were features of the demonration.

Former Governor A. A. Bourn had been designated to deliver an address of welcome. When it came Colonel Colt's turn to say something he was deeply touched. In the course of his remarks, which came directly from his heart, he said:

It is here, in this dear old town of Bristol, that I passed my boyhood days.
It is here that my ancestors for many generations past have lived and died.
It was here that my beloved mother was born, lived and died at the age of 81 years in the same room, and it occurred to me to-day that October 12 is the anniversary of my mother's birthday.

What could be more fitting than scenes that are now taking place? If she looks down from above and sees the citizens!
assembled her joy must be greater than ours.

It is here for half a century nearly that I have beheld the rising and setting of the sun.

It is here, when this earthly life is ended, that my ashes will repose.

The whole celebration was spontaneous, and was designed to let Colonel Colt know that the town liked him and that it appreciated the large things which he had done for the community.

The colonel declared that it was the happiest evening of his life, and we guess it was. Such a tribute from one's fellow townsmen could not fail deeply to impress him. The reception was a pleasing incident in Colonel Colt's life and also in Bristol's life.